Government Plans Aerial Defense Outpost In Alaska

TWO FLIGHTS TO BE MADE NEXT MONTH

Secretary of Commerce Roper Sails from Seattle for Alaska for Studies
PLANS NAVAL BASE
Flights Expected to Show Practicability of Manoeuvres of Huge Fleets

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(UP)—Masked behind ostensible friendly rivalry between the U. S. army and navy air services, the administration went forward with a plan today which may make Alaska an outpost for aerial defense as important as the Pearl harbor naval base is for navy surface ships.

Plans were announced for two mass flights by American fighting aircraft, one by army bombing planes and one by naval patrol planes, which will link both eastern and western seaboard of the United States with the Alaskan coast. At the same time the flights will determine how long it would take in an emergency to transfer large army and navy air forces to this important northern outpost.

The flights scheduled for the middle of July, will find Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, nominal head of American civilian aviation, in Alaskan waters. Roper is now enroute from Seattle to the Pribilof islands on a tour of inspection. Later he expects to study aviation possibilities in Alaska proper.

Geodetic Survey
For the past three years representatives of the department of commerce, through the geodetic survey or the bureau of fisheries, have been making almost continuous investigations of aviation possibilities in Alaska and connecting islands.

Officials of all government departments insisted there was no military or naval significance in the simultaneous flights of army and navy military and naval strategists, however, made no effort to conceal their interest.

They pointed out that establishment of important air bases in Alaska or adjoining islands would materially strengthen American national defense by effectively "covering" the great circle steamship route from the Orient to the Pacific coast of the United States.

The distance from Seattle to Yokohama over this route is only about 2300 miles, while the direct route from San Francisco is over 4100 miles, and via Honolulu the distance is nearly 6000 miles.

Present plans call for 12 navy patrol planes to hop off from San Diego on July 17 for a mass flight by easy stages to Dutch Harbor, Unalaska.

URGE STREET CAR BOYCOTT
MILWAUKEE, June 27.—(UP)—Labor organizations in socialist-governed Milwaukee today urged a boycott on use of street cars and buses throughout the city.

The boycott appeared to be gaining some ground as employees of labor unions drove automobiles to work or walked rather than utilize the street cars or buses operated by strikebreakers.

Chief of Police Jacob G. Laubenthal appealed to citizens to remain away from the zone of trouble in the event of further riots similar to the one that flared last night.

White House Dog Gets Gold License
WASHINGTON, June 27.—(UP)—Winks, the egg-eating dog of the White House, is going to have a gold-plated tag.

Winks is the number one dog of the city, that numerical being on the tag that was presented President Roosevelt today by the District of Columbia commissioners.

On the reverse side of the tag which bears a dog's head, is the word Winks. President Roosevelt proudly exhibited the tag at his press conference today.

Winks once ate all the servants' breakfasts at the White House and thereby made page one.

YOUNG HEIR
When the son of the late William Andrews Clark, Jr., California millionaire, died several years ago, George John Pale, 18, below, son of Mr. Clark's housekeeper, was taken in as a ward. Now young Pale will receive $500,000—largest single bequest in Clark's will.

JOS. HARRIMAN SENTENCED TO FEDERAL JAIL

Former New York Banker Ordered to Serve Four and Half Years

NEW YORK, June 27.—(UP)—Joseph W. Harriman, former president of Harriman National Bank and Trust company, today was sentenced to a term of four and one half years in federal penitentiary for falsifying records of his bank.

Harriman was convicted on 16 counts, each of which drew a penalty of four and one half years, or a total of 72 years. Federal Judge C. Knox decreed that the sentences should be served concurrently.

Judge Knox stayed execution of the sentence until next Tuesday to permit the defendant time to file petition for an appeal.

Harriman took the sentence almost cheerfully. The judge hurried from the bench in such haste that he forgot to add the sentences to be run concurrently.

"Of course, that is what I mean," he said later.

The indictments against Harriman charged the falsification of records to the extent of $1,112,223 and the misapplication of $600,000 of the bank's funds.

Albert M. Austin, vice president of the Harriman bank, who was tried with Harriman, was acquitted.

FARLEY LAUDS NRA AT ROTARY SPEECH
DETROIT, June 27.—(UP)—The present business situation, pictured to the people a year ago would have appeared at that time as a "vision of paradise," Postmaster James A. Farley said in an address here today.

Speaking to thousands of delegates to the 25th annual convention of Rotary International, Farley unfolded a story of facts and figures which he said pointed to recovery.

"I do not mean to tell you that we have been suddenly lifted from a pit to a mountain top," he said. "We have still a considerable way to go before we get back to the figures we like to see. But we are on our way. The statisticians tell me that the general business index shows an average of 26 per cent over what it was during the first three months of 1933."

ADJOURN ACTION
NEW YORK, June 27.—(UP)—Fay Webb Valle's action to set aside the $100 a week separation agreement she contends Rudy Valle negotiated by fraud was adjourned in supreme court today until November 19. Mrs. Valle charges the crooner deluded her regarding his financial condition.

CUTTLE DECREES RIVERSIDE MUST O. K. COUNTY WATER PLAN

BRIGHT FUTURE IS PAINTED BY REX J. TUGWELL
Tells 1800 Iowa Farmers of Steps Taken by New Deal to Aid Growers

DES MOINES, Ia., June 27.—(UP)—A future in which industry, government and agriculture are all to be "partners in the same firm," was described today by Rexford G. Tugwell, under-secretary of agriculture, before 1800 Iowa bankers and farmers at the Iowa Bankers' association convention here.

In his missionary campaign to re-sell the New Deal to the corn belt, as "one dirt farmer to another," the brain trust chief said the government would use its position as partner to help "not only big business men, but also others interested in the enterprise—the farmers, the workers, the investors and the consumers."

The partnership would be evolved, Tugwell said, through "social management." He explained he used the term "social management" because "planning is a label which scares business men."

The AAA and the NRA represent an effort in social management which "will not work unless farmers in the one case, and industrialists in the other, make their work," he continued. "The government cannot do it. That is obvious. Indeed, it can do little more than provide a legal structure which will give the opportunity for co-operation."

Tugwell told of steps taken by the New Deal to protect the farmer from exploitation by meat packers, canners and milk distributors.

"As soon as the AAA was passed," he said, "the big meat packers presented us with a marketing agreement they wanted us to sign. It would have given them everything they have dreamed of for years. It contained a single specific enforceable agreement on their part for the benefit of farmers or for protecting consumers. It committed the packers to nothing but the vaguest promises to help the hog farmer and the cattle raiser."

"Because we refused to enter into such a fantastic agreement and because the department happened about this time to begin proceedings against several big packers under the packers and stockyards act, they stirred up opposition to our activities and vigorously fought our amendments."

The apparent unwillingness of some big industrialists to co-operate in the three-cornered partnership among business, the farmer and government represents merely the "survival of the old in the new," he declared.

"We are moving now into an age in which the measure of justice will be more accurate in economic terms," he promised. "Resistance may be strong enough to bring on another period of reaction, but it cannot ultimately prevail."

DEL RIO PICTURE IS BARRED IN N. Y.
NEW YORK, June 27.—(UP)—A Mae West movie of the same type that established the swagging actress as the premier screen siren and one featuring Dolores Del Rio as the French Courtesan, Madam Du Barry, became the first victims of a militant church campaign for decency in pictures today.

Both the Mae West movie, "It Ain't No Sin," and Miss Del Rio's title role picture were withdrawn from application for licensing in New York state.

Paramount Productions, Inc., producers of Miss West's picture, announced it was being sent back to Hollywood for revision and would be reissued "under another name." Warner Brothers pictures, Inc., almost simultaneously announced that "Madame Du Barry" would undergo re-filming for elimination of a bedroom scene.

GLASSFORD CHARGES COUNTY SUPERVISORS WILLING TOOLS IN IMPERIAL LAWLESSNESS
EL CENTRO, Cal., June 27.—(UP)—Although members of the Imperial County Board of Supervisors refused to comment today on the report of General Pelham D. Glassford which charged that "lawlessness and intimidation" were rampant in the Imperial valley, other county officials and prominent growers were heated in their replies to the former Federal labor conciliator's statements.

The supervisors said the report, which they participated in the act had been discussed informally, but no formal action on it had been taken. There was no indication when it would formally be brought before the board.

Ultimatum Is Sent To This County

Stipulates Entire County Must Agree on Plan or Suffer Rejection

ORANGE COUNTY water interests must be united before Francis Cuttle, Riverside, president of the Water Conservation association and California representative on the permanent projects committee of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, will forward the plan to Washington for government aid on a water program here.

This was learned today in a letter received by Chairman Willard Smith of the board of supervisors from Cuttle, who frankly set forth his position in regard to Orange county's water problem.

A significant statement made by Cuttle in the letter to the effect that he would push such plans forward, providing they are acceptable to other interests outside of Orange county which might be affected by putting such plans into effect, was being seriously considered today by Orange county groups.

Orange county water interests never have been closer to presenting an united front on a water conservation and flood control program than at the present time, members of the board of supervisors and others interested in the water situation, declare they have reason to believe, but many persons in Orange county today were puzzling over the statement made by Cuttle that Orange county's plans must be acceptable to other interests outside Orange county.

Retains Report
Cuttle made it known that he has not forwarded copies of the Elliott report, given to him by Murray Thompson, Orange county flood control engineer, to Washington.

"In order that there may be no misunderstanding," Cuttle said in the communication, "permit me to say that when Mr. Thompson furnished copies of these reports to be forwarded to the secretary of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, I advised him in writing that when all of the organizations in Orange county interested in flood control and conservation of water agreed on a plan and so advised me in writing, that I would forward copies of such plan to Washington, and do everything in my power to push such plans forward, providing that such plans are acceptable to other interests outside Orange county which might be affected by putting such plans into effect."

"For instance," he continued, "if the building of the dam at the upper site in the lower Santa Ana canyon would inundate lands in Riverside county, then the board of supervisors of Riverside county would have to be consulted and approve of such plans, my point being that I cannot take sides in favor of one interest in Orange county when opposed by some other organization, nor can I take sides with one county against another; but as soon as all are united on a plan, be assured that I will cooperate in every possible way to secure the endorsement of the board."

DRINKING OF STRONG LIQUOR IN PUBLIC PLACES IS HELD ILLEGAL BY SUPREME COURT
SAN FRANCISCO, June 27.—(UP)—California's state liquor law was tangled further today following ruling by the state Supreme Court that hard liquor may not be consumed in any public place, no matter how it is obtained.

Consumption of beer and wine in public places was not affected by the ruling.

In handing down its decision, the court upheld without equivocation the state board of equalization's authority to police public places and enforce the law.

The decision was not unexpected. State officials, however, indicated that legitimate hotels and other dining places probably would not be molested if they continue their present practice of permitting customers to furnish their own liquor.

The court's ruling resulted from an appeal of the test case brought by F. W. Sandelin, owner of a hotel at Ukiah, against the equalization board. The board upheld the decision of the Mendocino county court.

BRITISH MOVE BUILDING WORK TO STRENGTHEN AT NEWPORT TO BATTLE FORCES START SHORTLY

Cabinet Endorses Estimates for Increasing Army, Air and Navy Forces

LONDON, June 27.—(UP)—The cabinet meeting today, as hopes for naval disarmament dwindled, was reported to have endorsed supplementary estimates to strengthen the navy, army and air force.

Increases for the navy and air force were said to be large, and for the army, small.

It was reported that a bill incorporating the supplementary estimates would be introduced in parliament next week and would signalize the opening move in an impressive plan for rearmament in view of the serious world political situation.

Reliable information was that the government had determined to go ahead with its plan—based on the certainty of failure of the land disarmament conference—to make Britain's air force as large as that of the greatest one within striking distance.

This plan would mean building up to the level of France and Italy. But it is aimed frankly at Germany in view of Germany's expressed determination to re-arm.

Differences between the United States, Britain and Japan over naval armament have been revealed in current conversations here as so wide that many well-informed persons already were losing hope there could be a successful disarmament conference.

The west jetty will be extended 700 feet, making it 2900 feet long, while the east jetty will be extended 950 feet, making it 1600 feet long. In addition, repairs will be made.

Yesterday the War department awarded a contract to Rohl-Connelly company, Los Angeles, for extension of the two jetties at Newport Harbor and certain repairs on the jetties. The contract was for $557,790. The company announced today that work would be started immediately.

MILTON C. WORK IS CALLED BY DEATH
PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—(UP)—Milton C. Work, celebrated master of whist and auction and contract bridge, died in Landkenn hospital early today. He had been ill a week of heart disease. He was 69.

Work was America's oldest bridge expert both in age and length of tenure in the public eye. Until he was surpassed by the young and colorful Ely Culbertson he was the best known of the men who changed a nation of poker players to the more effete and involved game of bridge.

He began his experting back in 1881 with whist, then the game of society and upper crust generally. He survived as an expert when whist was modified into auction bridge and when auction merged into contract.

POTENTATE
Shriners of the nation will be held the coming year by Dana S. Williams, below, of Anah temple, Lewiston, Me. He was elevated to imperial potentate at the convention in Minneapolis.

FEDERAL DRIVE IS STARTED TO COLLECT TAXES

Internal Revenues Bureau Plans Levies on Corporation Surpluses

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(UP)—The internal revenue bureau was revealed today to be in the midst of a campaign to tap new tax resources by levies on huge surpluses accumulated in recent years by several large corporations.

The bureau hopes to obtain large sums from corporations, including personal holding companies, which in recent years have permitted surpluses to accumulate instead of distributing profits in the form of taxable dividends.

Between 150 and 200 tax accounts are under scrutiny, the Treasury suspects that undistributed profits were permitted to accumulate for the purpose of avoiding taxation. The penalty for such evasion is 50 per cent of the net income in any given year in addition to the regular corporation tax.

Names of the corporations were withheld by the bureau in accordance with the established custom. Their affairs, however, are being scrutinized by a special committee appointed several weeks ago by Commissioner of Internal revenue Guy T. Helvering.

Almost a score of minor cases already have been settled out of court, it was learned, though the actual cash return so far has been meagre.

These cases have been settled out of court with the payment of the penalty tax and were not arrived at by compromise, it was explained.

These settlements are preliminary to the main drive. Other assessments are to be made in the hope that some of the cases will find their way to the courts which have hitherto been loathe to uphold this punitive section of the tax law.

The courts generally have ruled that the penalty might not be imposed so long as the corporation involved could make a reasonable showing that the surplus was accumulated for purposes other than tax evasion.

The corporations thus were enabled to claim that they were storing funds to insure dividends in lean times or needed an unusually large amount of cash on hand.

TAKES STEPS TO SPEED UP SETTLEMENT

Oregon Senator Meets With Roosevelt and Claims New Moves Are Planned TO MEET SECRETARY

Entire Situation Will Be Gone Over at Conference at White House

BULLETIN
SAN FRANCISCO, June 27.—(UP)—Hope that the local longshoremen's strike would be settled today was expressed by Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, as he entered a new conference with the workers' strike committee.

McGrady explained that strong efforts were being made to persuade all striking maritime workers to return to their jobs pending arbitration of the walk-out by the National Longshoremen's board appointed last night by President Roosevelt.

The board will hold its first meeting this afternoon.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(UP)—President Roosevelt is considering further steps to speed settlement of the Pacific coast longshoremen's strike, San Francisco, Steiner, R. Ore., said today after a White House conference.

Steiner, who reviewed the strike situation at length with Mr. Roosevelt, represented the president as being much concerned and eager to restore harmony. He explained that the president planned to review the strike later today with Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

The senator would not say whether the administration had under consideration a new peace proposal, but he emphasized after his conversation with the president that vigorous conciliation measures would be undertaken.

Situation Serious
He pointed out that the situation daily was growing more serious because the northwest has had its earliest harvest in 30 years and that products were decreasing in price because farmers were unable to make any shipments.

President Roosevelt invoked his special labor arbitration powers in an effort to end the strike. His action forecast new national labor conciliation machinery to pacify industrial unrest raging for weeks in all parts of the country.

The new arbitration set up to be announced today or tomorrow is expected to apply to the deadlocked dispute of steel companies and their workers, and similar stubborn labor situations. The plan will carry into practice the special labor disputes legislation passed in the closing days of congress.

Board Is Named
In the longshoremen's strike, the president, acting under authority, has named a board of arbitration.

NOTED PUBLISHER DIES
MEXICO, Mo., June 27.—(UP)—Col. Robert Morgan White, 79, a newspaper publisher for 58 years, will be buried here tomorrow. Colonel White died last night of a lingering illness.

Owner of the Mexico Ledger since 1876, he was one of the nation's oldest editors from standpoint of age and service.

At the age of 21, he received an offer of the St. Louis Browns to enter major league baseball and purchased the Ledger, then a weekly.

To Crown Queen At Motor Pageant In Bowl Tonight

VARIED EVENTS ON PROGRAM AT LEGION'S SHOW

Thrilling midjet auto races, interspersed with a varied program of style showings, beautiful girls, new cars, motorcycle stunt formations, music and humor, will be served race fans who attend the Mid-Summer Motor Pageant in the Municipal Bowl tonight, starting at 8 o'clock.

American Legion race officials, in conjunction with the Automotive Trades association of Orange county, have arranged a full program of entertainment, including music by the Legion drum and bugle corps and the Municipal band, and "remarks" by "Happy" Winters, master of ceremonies. "Curly" Mills and Chester Mortimer will take the racing spotlight when they hook up in a special five-lap match race. Mortimer will pilot his new Grand Central garage creation with No. 96 on the tail, while Mills will defend his laurels in No. 36. A host of speed merchants will take part in the nine races, the card including 15-lap and 30-lap main events. The winner of the trophy dash will be honored by the winning queen in a contest conducted for the past three weeks.

Intricate formations and stunts performed at high speed will be given by a Los Angeles police motorcycle squad of 30 riders, unless a last minute outbreak should call them to the harbor strike area.

WILL ROGERS says:
BEVERLY HILLS, June 27.—(To the Editor of The Register:) Congressmen coming dragging in from Washington. Some of 'em look like they had hitch-hiked. Now their real work starts. That is trying to get elected this fall. I tell you it's no easy life when you consider that battle to get back there. I just don't know what they are going to promise the voters this fall. This is a tough time to think up something new. About a man's only chance is to just say, "Well, boys, I don't know what I will do, I will just have to wait till I get there and see what Mr. Roosevelt wants. He knows more about it than me."

WILL ROGERS.

BRITISH MOVE TO STRENGTHEN BATTLE FORCES

Visualizing the failure of the present conversations and the postponement of the 1935 conference, scheduled to re-draft the existing agreements, big navy men, including leading conservatives, were beginning to hint that Britain must increase its strength.

While Britain and American talked here, France was preparing for talks with Britain beginning July 8. Minister of Marine Francois Pietri will be the French chief delegate.

ULTIMATUM IS SENT TODAY TO ORANGE COUNTY

The National Rivers and Harbors Congress, and such agencies in Washington, may have charge of the use of funds for flood control and conservation and river regulation.

The letter was signed by Cuttie as president of the Tri-County Water Conservation Association.

Orange county's project was fifth on a list submitted by President Roosevelt to Congress as an ideal place in which the government could spend around $12,000,000 on a water development and flood control project. The basic Elliott plan was submitted to Cuttie in order to keep Orange county's position in the government program.

Showing the extent in which water interests in Orange county are working in harmony, a meeting scheduled to be held today between the board of supervisors and directors of the Orange County Water District to attempt to settle any differences there might be regarding details of the plan, has been called off because there was no need for the session, according to C. A. Palmer, secretary of the district.

Another point which shows the harmonious relations regarding water plans is that in the last several water meetings which have been held in Orange county, where formerly fireworks prevailed, now only calm discussions are held.

Orange county's position in regard to the water situation was set out in the following statement, which was included in the basic plan submitted to Cuttie by Thompson:

"Giving consideration to present developments and in view of the fact that there now exists a shortage in supply relative to the demand for water, the water of the Santa Ana River system should be conserved and used only with due regard to the equities of the situation and no part of the area should be developed to the detriment of the remainder.

"Immediate flood control and conservation on the Santa Ana river system is absolutely necessary for the protection of life and property; and for the future development and financial credit of San Bernardino, Riverside and Orange counties. All control and conservation works on this river would be planned with full consideration of the equities and needs of the three counties which have a common dependence upon the water crop of this drainage area."

The Public Forum

Communications under this heading must be signed by the name of the writer. These communications express the opinions of the writers of them. The opinions may or may not be the opinions of The Register.

Editor Santa Ana Register,

Dear Sir:

The much discussed and popular Townsend pension plan contains two jokers the general public may not see. Jean Ellis in the Illustrated Daily News, calls attention to this by saying: "The point is cleverly hidden by bait to the unwary—it is to be paid by a sales tax. A federal sales tax, called by President Roosevelt 'horrible', is a scheme favoring the wealthy (strongly upheld by the Hearst papers); it's a tax on the poor to save the imposition of a higher tax on large incomes."

Most of our industries now producing consumable goods are owned or controlled by the so-called "big interests" who are, we believe, blindly "laying up treasures on earth" in tax-exempt securities.

Every time the $200 per month pension fund "revolves", big business takes off a slice from the little pile still in the hands of our common people and adds it to the big pile now in the hands of about 5 per cent of our favored few. This is one of the most clever and subtle devices ever invented for making money. Raise this pension fund by 50 per cent.

When Henry Ford established a higher minimum wage rate in Detroit, rents and the cost of living at once advanced to absorb all or more than this increased buying power. The same thing will happen if the Townsend plan is ever tried. Raise this pension fund by an increase in income and inheritance taxes in the higher brackets and we will have made a beginning in the reduction of our congested wealth, the cause of all our present distress.

Big business can confiscate our boys for cannon fodder when their interests are in danger. Some of us at least consider these far more sacred than property rights. The above proposal will of course be denounced as "confiscation" but it is only "restitution."

Make this change in the Townsend plan and note how strangely silent the "kept press" suddenly will become on this much ballyhooed subject.

I wish I could induce more thinking people to read Upton Sinclair's "Boss Chicago" and learn the fact about our controlled press. Before publishing this remarkable book he submitted to Samuel Untermyer, who advised strongly against its publication, as he said it would lay him liable to at least 50 criminal suits and more than 1000 lawsuits. But he published it and was so sure of his facts that no suit was ever brought against him.

When this old boy states a thing as a fact, you can safely bet he knows what he is talking about.

Very truly,
L. B. BEILL.

that no officers were present when Attorney Grover Cleveland Johnson assembled was attacked.

In answer to Glasford's assertions that growers have "exploited communistic hysteria for the advancement of their own interests" and had made "willing tools out of county officials," officials pointed to a statement issued by Glasford in April.

This statement by Glasford said in part:

"There exists a very serious situation in the valley, created by attempts to organize a local unit of the cannery and agricultural workers' industrial union.

"My investigation has shown that the union is indisputably a threat indirectly, connected with a widespread communistic program."

General Glasford left the Imperial valley Sunday after about three months as federal labor mediator in the district. In leaving he sent a statement to the board of supervisors advising it that a report of conditions and plans to remedy them was to be forwarded.

This report was received and made public late yesterday.

Four main lines of action were suggested in the report. They are: 1. Outing of B. A. Harrigan as imperial county agricultural commissioner.

Establishment of a minimum wage scale based upon a reasonable balance between profit and labor cost.

3. Repatriation of unemployed Mexicans to lessen the relief burden of the county.

4. Elimination of labor camps by providing each worker with a plot of ground of about one-quarter or one-half acre each.

Referring to Harrigan, Glasford charged the official had not "made fair use of his office and authority but helped strike labor."

be made on the west jetty. The work is to be completed by June 30, 1935.

When the jetties have been extended and repaired and the bay dredged out the Orange county harbor will be one of the finest yachting harbors on the Pacific coast.

City Engineer R. L. Patterson of Newport Beach pointed out today that the actual signing of the contract will be made by the district engineer in Los Angeles within a few days and that action taken in Washington was approval of the work by the chief of engineers, which makes the actual awarding of the contract a mere formality.

TWO FLIGHTS WILL BE MADE DURING JULY

Almost simultaneously 10 huge Martin bombing planes of the army air corps will take off from Bolling field at Washington on a flight by stages to Fairbanks, Alaska, about 350 miles almost due north of Dutch Harbor.

Pearl Harbor, first line of American naval defense in the Pacific is about 2200 miles almost straight south of Dutch Harbor. If the present flight by navy planes is successful, naval officials believe the next such "training flight" may be attempted from Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, to Dutch Harbor. This would definitely link American naval defense with aerial developments on the Alaskan coast. The present flight will link continental west coast defenses with the northern territory.

The army air corps flight, military strategists believe, will demonstrate the operating radius of the proposed "G. H. Q. Air Force" which the general staff proposes to create. This independent concentration of all types of fighting land planes is expected to total between 800 and 1000 planes. It will operate as an offensive and defensive air force, in conjunction with land and naval forces, or independently, as the general staff may decide and the occasion warrants.

The massed flight of the bombing planes is expected to show the practicability of maneuvering whole squadrons of these big planes over long distances.

PRESIDENT IN MOVE TO HALT COAST STRIKE

thority of this legislation, named a three-man board to arbitrate as reports of a dangerously tense situation came in.

His executive order was seen as a model of future industrial peace plans. The outline broadly is similar to that adopted in the automobile strike this spring.

In the reorganization the president is expected to name a key arbitration board of three members from the present personnel of the national labor board. This board would be empowered to settle all labor disagreements.

On the basis of this action in the longshoremen's situation, it was considered likely that in major conflicts such as the steel case, a special three-man board would be named.

The key board then would be in a position to coordinate the entire national labor situation while special boards strove to solve the knottiest problems. The reorganization is imperative due to the new legislation and to the faulty functioning of present arbitration machinery. The present national labor board has met constant difficulty in trying to keep the peace due to lack of definite powers.

Individual Boards. Until the issuance of the executive order last night, it was thought that the president planned a single three-man board to act in all major labor crises. Now, however, the possibility seemed stronger for individual boards.

The executive order named the Rt. Rev. Edward J. Hanna, chairman of the arbitration board, with O. K. Cushing, and Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor and advisor to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, as members.

The order was issued under authority of the national industrial recovery act and the labor disputes resolution.

It authorized the board to: "Investigate issues, facts, practices and activities of employers or employees that are burdening or obstructing or threatening to burden or obstruct the free flow of interstate or foreign commerce; to hear, make findings of fact and take appropriate affirmative action regarding complaints of discrimination against or discharge of employees; to act as voluntary arbitrator upon request; to exercise all other powers conferred upon a board established under the authority of public resolution 44, 73rd congress; to make a report to the president through the secretary of labor of the activities, the findings, the investigations and the recommendations of the board."

The board is temporary. It will cease to exist when its special duties are completed. The order was issued by the president as reports were received here that national guardmen were standing by the Pacific coast ports in case serious violence should break out. The dispute has resisted strenuous efforts of the labor department and other mediators.

The county budget must be adopted on or by August 30, and the tax rate must be set on the first Tuesday following the first Monday in September.

GAMING SHIP CASE IN L. A. COURTS

Charged with conspiracy to violate the state gambling laws, 18 men waived their right to a jury trial and went on trial yesterday before Municipal Judge Schenman in Los Angeles, in connection with the raiding of the pleasure ship, Monte Carlo, on May 3 off the Orange county coast.

Deputy District Attorney O'Brien soon established the anchorage of the gambling barge at the time of the raid as being in Orange county waters. He contended that by outfitting the Monte Carlo in the West Basin as a gambling ship last February, and by having it towed to its anchorage, as well as by transporting passengers from Long Beach to the ship through county waters, the defendants brought themselves within the jurisdiction of the Los Angeles county courts.

Nine of the 18 defendants, headed by Ed V. Turner, asserted ownership of the boat, were acquitted by a jury at Seal Beach last week on misdemeanor charges of gambling. They have been at liberty on bail since their arrest. The ship was dismantled by Los Angeles and Orange county sheriff's officers and the equipment stored in the county jail here.

DOCTORS CLAIM DEATH DRIVER INTOXICATED

Testimony that Al Brunner, 40-year-old fishing boat captain, was drunk when the car he was driving on the Coast Highway near Dana Point March 10 crashed into one driven by Max Devitt, Los Angeles, resulting in the death of three women, continued to pile up in the trial in Judge James L. Allen's department of superior court yesterday as the prosecution closed its case against Brunner, who is charged with murder in connection with the deaths of the women.

The last witness on the stand in yesterday afternoon's session was Dr. D. A. Harwood, Santa Ana. In answer to a hypothetical question put by Leo J. Frills, deputy district attorney who is prosecuting Brunner, Dr. Harwood testified that he was sure Brunner was drunk at the time of the fatal crash when Mrs. Jennie Orenstine, 45, and her daughter, Beverly Orenstine, 22, were burned to death and Mildred Beckman Devitt, 26, wife of Max Devitt, was fatally injured. Officers also have testified that Brunner was drunk.

When Defense Attorney L. W. Blodgett launched his defense, C. L. Congdon, Santa Ana, who owns a garage at Capistrano and who took Brunner to the hospital from Capistrano, took the stand. Congdon testified that Brunner was unconscious while he was with him, and so could not tell if he was drunk. He said, however, that Brunner's two companions were intoxicated. Reginald Nielbas, who accompanied Congdon, confirmed the story. Today Blodgett called 15 witnesses from the Orange county hospital for submission of testimony.

Chairman Willard Smith was authorized to sign an agreement with the state forestry department, leasing to the state a gas shovel owned by the county at the rate of $160 a month, with the agreement that the county pays the wages for an operator for the shovel, which is being used to build roadways and firebreaks in the forest areas of the county.

Nat H. Neff, county superintendent of roads, was authorized by the board of supervisors yesterday to purchase a machine for use in tearing up oil surfaced roads in the county. The instrument will cost around $1000.

The board informally agreed to allow $1000 for advertising the coast communities in Orange county. This sum, it was said, will be placed in the budget for next year but the coast communities desire that the advertising continue through the summer.

WOMAN TO DIE IN CHAIR IN NEW YORK

OSSENING, N. Y., June 27.—(UP)—Anna Antonio, doomed to be the first woman to die in the Sing Sing electric chair since Ruth Snyder, struggled for a philosophical outlook today as each passing minute indicated there was no hope of executive clemency.

She will die Thursday night unless Gov. Herbert H. Lehman intervenes. Lehman ordinarily takes action if he intends to at least a week before the execution date. Mrs. Antonio allegedly hired two men to kill her husband so she could collect his insurance.

WILL ROGERS
says:
BEVERLY HILLS, June 27.—(To the Editor of The Register:) Congressmen coming dragging in from Washington. Some of 'em look like they had hitch-hiked. Now they're real war stars. That's trying to get elected this fall. I tell you it's no easy life when you consider that battle to get back there. I just don't know what they're going to promise the voters this fall. This a tough time to think up something new. About a man's only chance is to just say, "Well, boys, I don't know what I will do, I will just have to wait till I get there and see what Mr. Roosevelt wants. He knows more about it than me."

WILL ROGERS.

Visualizing the failure of the present conversations and the postponement of the 1935 conference, scheduled to re-draft the existing agreements, big navy men, including leading conservatives were beginning to hint that Britain must increase its strength. While Britain and American talked here, France was preparing for talks with Britain beginning July 8. Minister of Marine Francois Pietri will be the French chief delegate.

ULTIMATUM IS SENT TODAY TO ORANGE COUNTY

the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, and such agencies in Washington as may have charge of the use of funds for flood control and conservation and river regulation.

The letter was signed by Cuttle as president of the Tri-County Water Conservation association.

Orange county's project was fifth on a list submitted by President Roosevelt to Congress as an ideal place in which the government could spend around $12,000,000 on a water development and flood control project. The basic Elliott plan was submitted to Cuttle in order to keep Orange county's position in the government program.

Showing the extent in which water interests in Orange county are working in harmony, a meeting scheduled to be held today between the board of supervisors and directors of the Orange County Water District to attempt to settle any differences there might be regarding details of the plan, has been called off because there was no need for the session, according to C. A. Palmer, secretary of the district.

Another point which shows the harmonious relations regarding water plans is that in the last several water meetings which have been held in Orange county, where formerly fireworks prevailed, now only calm discussions are held.

Orange county's position in regard to the water situation was set out in the following statement, which was included in the basic plan submitted to Cuttle by Thompson:

"Giving consideration to present developments and in view of the fact that there now exists a shortage in supply relative to the demand for water, the water of the Santa Ana River system should be conserved and used only with due regard to the equities of the situation and no part of the area should be developed to the detriment of the remainder.

"Immediate flood control and conservation on the Santa Ana river system is absolutely necessary for the protection of life and property; and for the future development and financial credit of San Bernardino, Riverside and Orange counties. All control and conservation works on this river would be planned with full consideration of the equities and needs of the three counties which have a common dependence upon the water crop of this drainage area."

Communications under this heading must be signed by the name of the writer. These communications express the opinions of the writers of them. The opinions may or may not be the opinions of The Register.

Editor Santa Ana Register,
Dear Sir:
The much discussed and popular Townsend pension plan contains two jokers the general public may not see. Jean Ellis in the Illustrated Daily News, calls attention to this by saying: "The point is cleverly hidden by bait to the unwary—it is to be paid by a sales tax. A federal sales tax, called by President Roosevelt 'horrible', is a scheme favoring the wealthy (strongly upheld by the Hearst papers); it's a tax on the poor to save the imposition of a higher tax on large incomes."

Most of our industries now producing consumable goods are owned or controlled by the so-called "big interests" who are, we believe, blindly "laying up treasures on earth" in tax-exempt securities. Every time the $200 per month pension fund "revolves", big business rakes off a slice from the little pile still in the hands of our common people and adds it to the big pile now in the hands of about 5 per cent of our favored few. This is one of the most clever and subtle devices ever invented for making money. Raise this pension fund by 50 per cent.

When Henry Ford established a higher minimum wage rate in Detroit, rents and the cost of living at once advanced to absorb all or more than this increased buying power. The same thing will happen if the Townsend plan is ever tried. Raise this pension fund by an increase in income and inheritance taxes in the higher brackets and we will have made a beginning in the reduction of our congested wealth, the cause of all our present distress.

Big business can confiscate our boys for cannon fodder when their interests are in danger. Some of us at least consider these far more sacred than property rights. The above proposal will of course be denounced as "confiscation" but it is only "restitution."

Make this change in the Townsend plan and note how strangely silent the "kept press" suddenly will become on this much ballyhoed subject.

I wish I could induce more thinking people to read Upton Sinclair's "Bribe Check" and learn the fact about our controlled press. Before publishing this remarkable book he submitted to Samuel Untermyer, who advised strongly against its publication, as he said it would lay him liable to at least 50 criminal suits and more than 1000 lawsuits. But he published it and was so sure of his facts that no suit was ever brought against him.

When this old boy states a thing as a fact, you can safely bet he knows what he is talking about. Very truly, that no officers were present when Attorney Grover Cleveland Johnson asserted was attacked.

GLASSFORD CHARGES COUNTY SUPERVISORS WILLING TOOLS IN IMPERIAL LAWLESSNESS

In answer to Glassford's assertions that growers have "exploited communistic hysteria for the advancement of their own interests" and had made "willing tools out of county officials," officials pointed to a statement issued by Glassford in April.

This statement by Glassford said in part:

"There exists a very serious situation in the valley, created by attempts to organize a local unit of the canner and agricultural workers' industrial union.

"My investigation has shown place that the union is indisputably a widespread communist program." General Glassford left the Imperial valley Sunday after about three months as federal labor conciliator in the district. In leaving he sent a statement to the board of supervisors advising it that a report of conditions and plans to remedy them was to be forward.

This report was received and made public late yesterday. Four main lines of action were suggested in the report. They are:

1. Outing of B. A. Harrigan as imperial county agricultural commissioner. Establishment of a minimum wage scale based upon a reasonable balance between profit and labor cost.

3. Repatriation of unemployed Mexicans to lessen the relief burden of the county.

4. Elimination of labor camps by providing each worker with a plot of ground of about one-quarter or one-half acre each.

Referring to Harrigan, Glassford charged the official had not "made fair use of his office and authority but helped stifle labor."

be made on the west jetty. The work is to be completed by June 30, 1935.

When the jetties have been extended and repaired and the bay dredged out, the Orange county harbor will be one of the finest yachting harbors on the Pacific coast.

City Engineer R. L. Patterson of Newport Beach pointed out today that the actual signing of the contract will be made by the district engineer in Los Angeles within a few days and that action taken in Washington was approval of the work by the chief of engineers, which makes the actual awarding of the contract a mere formality.

TWO FLIGHTS WILL BE MADE DURING JULY

Almost simultaneously 10 huge Martin bombing planes of the army air corps will take off from Bolling field at Washington on a flight by stages to Fairbanks, Alaska, about 350 miles almost due north of Dutch Harbor.

Pearl Harbor, first time of American naval defense in the Pacific is about 2200 miles almost straight south of Dutch Harbor. If the present flight by navy planes is successful, naval officials believe the next such "training flight" may be attempted from Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, to Dutch Harbor. This would definitely link American naval defense with aerial developments on the Alaskan coast. The present flight will link continental west coast defenses with the northern territory.

The army air corps flight, military strategists believe, will demonstrate the operating radius of the proposed "G. H. Q. Air Force" which the general staff proposes to create. This independent concentration of all types of fighting land planes is expected to total between 800 and 1000 planes. It will operate an offensive and defensive air force, in conjunction with land and naval forces, or independently, as the general staff may decide and the occasion warrants.

The massed flight of the bombing planes is expected to show the practicability of maneuvering whole squadrons of these big planes over long distances.

"Several, who fearing reprisal, have asked their names are kept secret, have come to me with stories of Harrigan's unfairness and tyranny," General Glassford said.

This brought a heated reply from Harrigan who declared that his record of 11 years as a county official was an "open book" and that he was willing and anxious to stand any investigation of his official act.

"General Glassford's failure to gain control of Imperial Valley has rankled," Harrigan said. "He is venting his disappointment upon others."

Glassford's charges that the standard of living of workers was based upon an income of less than $400 a year were minimized by A. N. Jack, president of the Imperial Valley Growers and Shippers' Protective association.

Not Evading

Jack, recently elected a director of the Associated Farmers of California, an organization for combating farm labor troubles, said very few melon growers were evading a wage agreement made March 27.

"Working from six to 10 hours a day, some of our own melon pickers made $65.93 for seven days work last week," Jack said. "In a group of 35 men the average wage was from $3.65 to $12.25 per man per day."

The report of General Glassford was brought to the board of supervisors' room by Chairman B. M. Graham who said the report had been given him by a clerk in the Hotel Dunlack, Brawley, headquarters of Glassford during his stay in the valley.

The session adjourned at 6 p. m. with no reference in the minutes regarding the report except the time of filing.

BOARD TO HOLD FINAL SESSION OF FISCAL YEAR

Members of the board of supervisors will hold a special adjourned session Thursday morning at 10 o'clock to wind up this fiscal year's business and to make plans for consideration of departmental budget requests. It was decided by the board late yesterday afternoon. The fiscal year ends June 30, and department heads must have their departmental budget requests in the hands of the supervisors by July 10, according to County Clerk Joe Backs.

The county budget must be adopted on or by August 30, and the tax rate must be set on the first Tuesday following the first Monday in September.

Supervisors will sit as a board of equalization starting next Monday and continuing through and including July 16, it was learned. During this period the board will receive and act on any complaints regarding taxes and assessed valuations. County Assessor James Sleeper will submit the county assessment roll to the supervisors next Monday noon.

No information regarding the tax rate for the ensuing fiscal year or the amount of the county budget has yet been made public by the board.

PRESIDENT IN DOCTORS CLAIM MOVE TO HALT DEATH DRIVER COAST STRIKE INTOXICATED

thority of this legislation, named a three-man board to arbitrate as reports of a dangerously tense situation came in.

His executive order was seen as a model of future industrial peace plans. The outline broadly is similar to that adopted in the automobile strike this spring.

In the reorganization the president is expected to name a key arbitration board of three members from the present personnel of the national labor board. This board would be empowered to settle all labor disagreements.

On the basis of this action in the longshoremen's situation, it was considered likely that in major conflicts such as the steel case, a special three-man board would be named.

The key board then would be in a position to coordinate the entire national labor situation while special boards strove to solve the knottiest problems.

The reorganization is imperative due to the new legislation and to the faulty functioning of present arbitration machinery. The present national labor board has met constant difficulty in trying to keep the peace due to lack of definite powers.

Individual Boards

Until the issuance of the executive order last night, it was thought that the president planned a single three-man board to act in all major labor crises. Now, however, the possibility seemed stronger for individual boards.

The executive order named the Rt. Rev. Edward J. Hanna, chairman of the arbitration board, with O. K. Cushing, and Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor and advisor to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, as members.

The order was issued under authority of the national industrial recovery act and the labor disputes resolution.

It authorized the board to:

"Investigate issues, facts, practices and activities of employers or employees that are burdening or obstructing or threatening to burden or obstruct the free flow of interstate or foreign commerce; to hear, make findings of fact and take appropriate affirmative action regarding complaints or discrimination against or discharge of employees; to act as voluntary arbitrator upon request; to exercise all other powers conferred upon a board established under the authority of public resolution 44, 73rd congress; to make a report to the president through the secretary of labor of the activities, the findings, the investigations and the recommendations of the board."

The board is temporary. It will cease to exist when its special duties are completed.

The order was issued by the president as reports were received here that national guardmen were standing by the Pacific coast ports in case serious violence should break out. The dispute has resisted strenuous efforts of the labor department and other mediators.

Testimony that Al Brunner, 40-year-old fishing boat captain, was drunk when the car he was driving on the Coast Highway near Dana Point March 10 crashed into one driven by Max Devitt, Los Angeles, resulting in the death of three women, continued to pile up in the trial in Judge James L. Allen's department of superior court yesterday as the prosecution closed its case against Brunner, who is charged with murder in connection with the deaths of the women.

The last witness on the stand yesterday afternoon's session was Dr. D. A. Harwood, Santa Ana. In answer to a hypothetical question put by Leo J. Fris, deputy district attorney who is prosecuting Brunner, Dr. Harwood testified that he would say Brunner was drunk at the time of the crash. The question asked was whether or not Dr. Harwood would consider Brunner drunk at the time of the accident in view of all testimony which had been advanced during the trial.

Dr. Harwood's testimony followed that of several other physicians, who said Brunner was intoxicated at the time of the fatal crash when Mrs. Jennie Orestine, 45, and her daughter, Beverly Orestine, 22, were burned to death and Mildred Heckman Devitt, 26, wife of Max Devitt, was fatally injured. Officers also have testified that Brunner was drunk.

When Defense Attorney L. W. Blodgett launched his defense, C. L. Congdon, Santa Ana, who owns a garage at Capistrano and who took Brunner to the hospital from Capistrano, took the stand. Congdon testified that Brunner was unconscious while he was with him, and so could not tell if he was drunk. He said, however, that Brunner's two companions were intoxicated. Reginald Nielblas, who accompanied Congdon, confirmed the story. Today Blodgett called 15 witnesses from the Orange county hospital for submission of testimony.

The board informally agreed to allow $1000 for advertising the coast communities in Orange county. This sum, it was said, will be placed in the budget for next year but the coast communities desire that the advertising continue through the summer.

Chairman Willard Smith was authorized to sign an agreement with the state forestry department, leasing to the state a gas shovel owned by the county at the rate of $160 a month, with the agreement that the county pays the wages for an operator for the shovel, which is being used to build roadways and firebreaks in the forest areas of the county.

PURCHASE OF ROAD MACHINE APPROVED

Nat H. Neff, county superintendent of roads, was authorized by the board of supervisors yesterday to purchase a machine for use in tearing up oil surfaced roads in the county. The instrument will cost around $1000.

OSSENING, N. Y., June 27. —

(UP)—Anna Antonio, doomed to be the first woman to die in the Sing Sing electric chair since Ruth Snyder, struggled for a philosophical outlook today as each passing minute indicated there was no hope of executive clemency.

She will die Thursday night unless Gov. Herbert H. Lehman intervenes. Lehman ordinarily takes action if he intends to at least a week before the execution date. Mrs. Antonio allegedly hired two men to kill her husband so she could collect his insurance.

PUBLIC HEARING DATE IS SET FOR AUGUST 7

School taxes in the Santa Ana district for 1934-35 will total approximately the same as last year, it was indicated when the preliminary budget for the Santa Ana city schools for the new year was approved last night by the board of education. The total tax rate will be $1.44 per $100 valuation, it is anticipated.

Total expenditures listed are $701,043.78, covering operation of all elementary schools, junior highs, high school, and junior college, plus $35,437 for refunding loans on earthquake damage repair work.

Expenditures for the current year, which closes on July 1, will approximate $722,000, which includes an item of $16,200 for moving the junior college to North Main street. School operation costs for the two years show very little change.

Tax rates for operation of the schools will remain the same as last year, it was indicated; 24 cents per $100 for the junior college, 52 cents for the high school, and 45 cents for elementary schools, despite a 10 per cent decrease in assessed valuation, which amounts to a virtual reduction of rate.

It becomes necessary this year, however, it was pointed out by Superintendent Frank Henderson, to start refunding to the RFC for the loans of some $814,000 granted for earthquake repairs, and a total of $35,437 must be refunded this coming year on principal and interest. In addition to the $701,043.78 required for operation of the schools.

To provide for this refunding, a rate of 23 cents per $100 will be required in the high school tax, which will bring the high school total tax rate to 75 cents, the maximum allowed by law. The total tax rate for school purposes will be $1.44.

The RFC payment required to be made will approximately equal the savings effected by reduced assessed values with the operation rates remaining the same, it was pointed out, so that the tax bills, including the refunding and its increased rate, will bear the same amount in dollars as last year.

As required by law, the local school budget will be submitted at once to County Superintendent of Schools Ray Adkinson, who returns it to the local board by July 15, and with any changes made it will be returned to the county superintendent by July 20 and published.

An open public hearing on the budget was set for Tuesday evening, August 7, at 7:30 o'clock. By August 15 the county superintendent must approve the final budget and file copies with the board of supervisors and county auditor.

Absent from the board meeting last night were W. M. Burke and Dr. Margaret Baker.

PAUL'S FIRST MISSION TALK CHURCH TOPIC

Dr. W. H. T. Dau continued his exposition of Acts 13 before the Southern California Lutheran convention at Zion church, in Anaheim, yesterday. In speaking of Paul's sermon in the synagogue at Antioch, in Pisidia, the essayist stated: "This is the first missionary sermon of Paul on record. Paul proves himself a sound Christian preacher by concentrating on the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ, referring his audience to the cardinal truth of Christianity: justification before God without the law, but by grace through faith in Jesus. He makes the Bible explain itself. Every refusal to accept this Gospel of grace is in itself a return to the law, and they that are under the law are under the curse."

The Rev. A. E. Michel of Los Angeles and the Rev. M. Lankow of Lancaster were appointed to assist Dr. Dau in the preparation of a history of the Southern California district.

In connection with the Rev. M. H. Tietjen's report on Walther League work, Vice President Randt impressed upon the convention the importance of keeping in mind the principle "that it is the duty of the congregation and its pastor to care for the confirmed youth by continuing their indoctrination through systematic Bible study and providing for them wholesome recreation and activity. Let us not forget that the youth of today is the church of tomorrow."

Greetings were received from the North Illinois District, which is holding its annual convention in River Forest, Illinois. Mr. J. Witt of Los Angeles was appointed to serve as temporary chairman of the laymen and arrange for the time of their separate meeting.

The afternoon session was transferred to the evening in order to give the various committees time to complete their studies and be prepared to present their reports. Through the courtesy of the Anaheim Chamber of Commerce and the American Legion, a bus tour of Orange, Olive and Irvine parks was enjoyed by a large number of the delegates to the convention. After the evening session delegates were guests of the Anaheim Nite Ball club in their game with Torrance. The evening session was given to reports on the Church extension fund, by M. L. Wyneken of Los Angeles, who stated that the fund was operating with the sum of $26,000, and urged the members to make loans to the fund, so that mission congregations might be enabled to acquire a church property of their own.

The Mission Report committee presented its survey of the mission congregations in Atwater Park and Burbank, served by the Rev. R. Sager, and the missions in Belvedere Gardens and North Long Beach, served by the Rev. H. A. Fisher.

The convention pledged itself to make every effort to increase the subscription lists of the Lutheran and the Lutheran Witness official publications of the Missouri Synod, so that the membership may become better acquainted with the work of the church at large.

A special service will be held Wednesday evening, beginning at 7:30, in which the Rev. O. Skovremet will speak on Missions, and the Rev. Carl Berner of Los Angeles, chairman of the education board, will speak on Christian education. The public is cordially invited to attend.

DRIVER HELD CAUSE OF FATAL ACCIDENT

Howard H. Wells, Los Angeles architect, killed in an automobile wreck near Corona del Mar Sunday night, came to his death in an accidental manner, caused by the way he was driving his car, it was decided by a coroner's jury yesterday at the Dixon mortuary in Costa Mesa.

Paul Caldwell, El Monte truck driver, testified that his truck and trailer were going uphill at about five miles per hour when the Wells machine crashed into the rear of the trailer. He said the truck tail lights were burning and could give no cause why Wells should hit the heavy vehicle.

California Highway Patrolman Ben Craig gave technical details of the accident. Wells was pinned in the wreckage and received a crushed chest when the steering wheel was sheared off and the post pushed against the driver. He was removed to the Newport Beach hospital and died a few minutes after being transferred to the Santa Ana Valley hospital.

GAMING ROOMS CLOSED AFTER NEWS STORIES IN DEATH CASE

Evidently as a result of extensive publicity given their operations by The Register, Seal Beach gamblers have darkened their back rooms and moved out their gambling apparatus, it was learned last night, when a Register reporter made the rounds of the joints for the third time in a week, and for the first time was unable to find even a poker game in progress.

Visitors to the beach city are still painfully relieved of their cash by means of roulette, tango, roulette, and other outlawed "penalty" games, which proceed unabashed under bright lights. But the back rooms, where the big money went, are closed, to all appearances, and underground rumor has it that they will remain closed, at least till "all this blows over."

Walker's Nite Club had a strangely deserted look about it, as a few dancers struggled to the music of a small orchestra, and waiters handed beer with none of their usual exhortations to "try the back room." The little alleyway through the kitchen and up to the double doors remained unused, and bouncers and lookouts had the evening off.

On the way to Jewel City Inn, formerly the mecca of the easy money crowd, Larry's Tango Shop was crowded, five dealers being required to handle the players. The unidentified shop, known to the world as "Chips," boasted a counter of the unwary, as did the Jewel City's roulette game, but the "two-bit cover charge" sign over the main door, advertising beer and dancing, seemed to tell the truth at last, as the back room remained closed.

Vote Dissolution Of Storm District

Dissolution of the Buena Park-Cypress Storm Water Protection district was approved at an election held in the district yesterday, the vote being 95 to 7 in favor of the plan. The one polling place was located at the Buena Park News office.

The district was formed a number of years ago for the purpose of providing funds for creek cleaning work.

MARKS UNOPPOSED FOR BENCH POST

Judge Emerson J. Marks, formerly of Santa Ana, is unopposed for his position as justice in the fourth district court of appeals and will automatically become elected for a 12-year term, it was learned here today.

Judge Marks has held his high position for the past six years, following his work here in the superior court. While court is in session, Judge Marks alternates between Fresno, San Bernardino and San Diego, serving four months in each city.

Judge and Mrs. Marks are frequent visitors in Santa Ana and spend considerable time at the home of their son, Adrian Marks, 2412 Riverside drive.

HEARING CONTINUED

Following testimony in justice court yesterday, the preliminary hearing of Jose Hernandez, Huntington Beach, charged with drunken driving, was continued until tomorrow by Judge Kenneth Morrison.

California Highway Patrolman Lloyd Groover and Dr. Robert S. Wade were on the stand. Hernandez was arrested June 15 on Stanton road.

Anaheim Nite Ball club in their game with Torrance.

The evening session was given to reports on the Church extension fund, by M. L. Wynken of Los Angeles, who stated that the fund was operating with the sum of $26,000, and urged the members to make loans to the fund, so that mission congregations might be enabled to acquire a church property of their own.

The Mission Report committee presented its survey of the mission congregations in Atwater Park and Burbank, served by the Rev. B. Saager, and the missions in Belvedere Gardens and North Long Beach, served by the Rev. H. A. Fisher.

The convention pledged itself to make every effort to increase the subscription lists of the Lutheran and the Lutheran Witness official publications of the Missouri Synod, so that the membership may become better acquainted with the work of the church at large.

A special service will be held Wednesday evening, beginning at 7:30, in which the Rev. O. Skov of Hemet will speak on Missions, and the Rev. Carl Berner of Los Angeles chairman of the education board, will speak on Christian education. The public is cordially invited to attend.

DRIVER HELD CAUSE OF FATAL ACCIDENT

Howard H. Wells, Los Angeles architect, killed in an automobile wreck near Corona del Mar Sunday night, came to his death in an accidental manner, caused by the way he was driving his car, it was decided by a coroner's jury yesterday at the Dixon mortuary in Costa Mesa.

Paul Caldwell, El Monte truck driver, testified that his truck and trailer were going uphill at about five miles per hour when the Wells machine crashed into the rear of the trailer. He said the truck tail lights were burning and could give no cause why Wells should hit the heavy vehicle.

California Highway Patrolman Ben Craig gave technical details of the accident. Wells was pinned in the wreckage and received a crushed chest when the steering wheel was sheared off and the post pushed against the driver. He was removed to the Newport Beach hospital and died a few minutes after being transferred to the Santa Ana Valley hospital.

GAMING ROOMS CLOSED AFTER NEWS STORIES IN DEATH CASE

Evidently as a result of extensive publicity given their operations by The Register, Seal Beach gamblers have darkened their back rooms and moved out their gaming apparatus, it was learned last night, when a Register reporter made the rounds of the joints for the third time in a week, and for the first time was unable to find even a poker game in progress.

Visitors to the beach city are still painfully relieved of their cash by means of roulette, tango, roulette, and other outlawed "penalty" games, which proceed unabashed under bright lights. But the back rooms, where the big money went, are closed, to all appearances, and underground rumor has it that they will remain closed, at least till "all this blows over."

Walker's Nite Club had a strangely deserted look about it, as a few dancers struggled to the music of a small orchestra, and waiters handled beer with none of their usual exhortations to "try the back room." The little alleyway through the kitchen and up to the double doors remained open, and bouncers and lookouts had the evening off.

Vote Dissolution Of Storm District

Dissolution of the Buena Park-Cypress Storm Water Protection district was approved at an election held in the district yesterday, the vote being 95 to 7 in favor of the plan. The one polling place was located at the Buena Park News office.

The district was formed a number of years ago for the purpose of providing funds for creek cleaning work.

JUDGMENT OF $5000 GRANTED

Judgment for $5000 was awarded the widow and orphaned daughter of Ralph Lloyd Washburn, the "man who died twice" who was fatally injured in an accident, as damages against Earl Gardner, who lives south of Bolsa, by a jury in Judge H. G. Ames' department of superior court last night.

The trial was started yesterday morning, with Marie Washburn, the widow, and Barbara Marie Washburn, the daughter of Ralph Washburn, plaintiffs in the damage suit against Gardner, for the plaintiffs sought judgment for $25,000 each in the suit. The jury went out at 4:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon and returned the verdict against Gardner at 8:33 p. m.

Washburn was fatally injured when a car driven by Gardner collided with a motorcycle ridden by Washburn on March 13 at Memory Lane on North Flower street.

The injured man died in a hospital but was revived later with an injection of adrenalin in his heart. After he came to life he lived for nearly 12 hours before he died for the second time.

HEARING CONTINUED

MARKS UNOPPOSED FOR BENCH POST

Judge Emerson J. Marks, formerly of Santa Ana, is unopposed for his position as justice in the fourth district court of appeals and will automatically become elected for a 12-year term. It was learned here today.

Judge Marks has held his high position for the past six years, following his work here in the superior court. While court is in session, Judge Marks alternates between Fresno, San Bernardino and San Diego, serving four months in each city.

Judge and Mrs. Marks are frequent visitors in Santa Ana and spend considerable time at the home of their son, Adrian Marks, 2412 Riverside drive.

BUSINESS
For the past four months (March, April, May and June) business has been following the usual seasonal trend rather closely on a plane about 75 per cent normal (1922-25).
Prospects strongly point to a little more than a seasonal decline in July and August to be followed by a stronger-than-seasonal improvement in September and October. That is the plain outlook.

CHART
One reason the official government prognosticators are waxing lyrical in their official statements now is that the May and June shrinkage in business was no worse than it was. They had expected a stronger decline.

You can see what has happened from the following table in which each figure represents the percentage of normal (1922-25 averages) at the times mentioned. (The figures are adjusted for seasonal variations).

EXPLANATION

The secret of the strength in industrial production is steel. A price increase goes into effect in July, so the mills have been humming to fill orders before the increased price is effective. That means a sharp curtailment of steel production when the increased price comes along.

Automobile production is going fairly well. Figures for June will be down about 10 per cent from May. The output in April was 356,000 cars, May 352,000 and in June around 300,000. That is because the manufacturers reduced their prices. They ran up against trouble when they tried to put an increase into effect some weeks ago. The trouble was caused mainly by a large manufacturer who refused to go along with the price increase.

The other big industry, textiles, is in a fixed decline. A twelve-week curtailment of cotton textile production (25 per cent) went into effect June 4. Silk weaving shut down for one week in May. That end of the business is now better.

PRICES

The general level of prices has not and will not change much. The price of manufactured goods will be off because of increased competition since the Blue Eagle dulled its talons. Commodity prices should reach moderately upward.

There will be no government action to influence prices materially. No kind of money tampering is seriously contemplated, either by silver buying, devaluation or inflation.

The only bad note in the picture is building.

No one will believe that, after all the pumping and puffing through the PWA and otherwise, the construction industry now is operating at 25 per cent of normal. Yet that is the figure.

The main reason for it is increased prices and increased labor costs, adopted some weeks ago under the code. These costs are already working themselves down to a more reasonable level.

The administration is trying to build up the housing program to meet the situation, but on the inside, everyone realizes that the housing program cannot stimulate the building industry very much this year. It will take months to get the organization set up and working.

PUBLIC WORKS

The June tabulation on building will be out in a few days. It will show a slight decrease from May in the value of contracts awarded.

The May value was $134,000,000, an increase of 2 per cent over April. This might be considered highly encouraging were it not for the fact that the increase is due to one big contract privately awarded for Radio City in New York. Generally, construction was off in May.

The amount of direct public works and public utilities contracts awarded actually declined 1 per cent in May. That hardly fits in with the speech PWA Director Ickes made a few weeks ago claiming increasingly magnificent success for his program.

Of course, Mr. Ickes gets his optimistic figures by counting the amount of money he has advanced to states, municipalities and others for construction. Much of that money has not been spent and cannot be spent for months.

That is the whole secret of the delay in getting the big three billion dollar PWA fund working. Most of the money was loaned out and is now lying idle. Those who got it are unable to start work because they are unable to raise their share of the cost or because their plans were in an embryonic state when they got the money, or for various other reasons their work has been delayed.

PROOF

The proof of that reduction is that the amount of public works contracts let in May was $71,600,000, a decline of 5 per cent from April.

The value of privately financed building was $42,900,000, an increase of 12 per cent (the Radio City project).

SCHOOL BOARD LISTS WORK AS SERA PROJECTS

Extensive improvements of school grounds and buildings will be carried on this summer using SERA labor, if projects submitted are approved by the SERA organization, it was disclosed at the regular board of education meeting last night.

Four projects had already been submitted, and others were ordered submitted at last night's meeting. The board of education will furnish materials on all projects, and asks the SERA organization to furnish the labor without expense to the local district.

One of the new projects approved by board members last night includes installation of several hundred feet of curbing at school plants. The project includes 748 feet of curbing at the west side of the Willard school grounds, 250 feet along the west side of the Franklin school, and 1200 feet of curb at the south, east and west of the Edison school on Orange avenue.

A second project ordered submitted includes remodeling necessary to fit up a junior college of five, 14 by 28 feet, in the southeast corner of the uptown portion of the school administration building on North Main street, which will be used as J. C. headquarters next year.

Other projects, estimated to cost $9084.65, had been previously submitted to the SERA board, including interior painting in several school buildings, cement walks at the Hoover, Wilson, and old Willard plants, demolishing the high school auditorium, and demolishing the auditorium and eight rooms of the Spurgeon school preparatory to rebuilding.

Local observers note that the real purpose of the meeting—to cut the Blue Eagle's claws and make it business as usual instead of master—was not stressed in any public announcement. Instead the conference showed a keen sense of public relations by pledging itself to maximum hours, a minimum wage scale, no child labor, elimination of unfair trade practices, relief of technological unemployment and conservation of natural resources. It's a sign of the times that leadership lies with the business big shots who see the need for such a pledge. They wouldn't have made the grade a year ago.

HOW

Skeptic comment that NRA itself has been trying to enforce these same ideals for the past year—the full weight of government authority behind it—will only indifferent success. They wonder what magic business will invoke—if given its head—to put it over where NRA didn't. They remark that the conference conveniently forgot to mention how these miracles are to be achieved.

Conservatives are by no means so confident that the President will follow their guidance as they were a few weeks ago. Steel developments shook their faith a bit. But their doubts won't keep them from sticking firmly to their charted course.

OUTSPOKEN

Conservatives got a big kick from the pronouncement of Henry I. Harriman—head of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce—that employers could fire workers for belonging to unions despite Section 14. They doubt he would have been so outspoken without Washington encouragement. But they're afraid it's too good to be true and there'll be no concerted rush to act on his advice.

OUTLOOK

Well-informed sources predict that increasing consumer resistance will lead to a sharp break in industrial prices soon. Many industries have inventories that must be disposed of somehow. In most cases the inventory—while troublesome—is only of modest size and the price crisis is expected to be sharp but short. The price-cutting spree will probably cause excitement while it lasts and is likely to leave a flock of business casualties in its wake.

But experts believe it will be all over by the end of July and will leave business on a healthier foundation for a fall rise.

Business people in New York are mostly taking a fall boom for granted—even though it rests chiefly on government spending. This boom psychology should help to minimize the effects of any summer crisis that may develop and hasten the rebound.

Another important factor in the recovery picture is the constantly increasing pressure of unused funds. Local experts believe the latest force of credit reserves will smash the dam of inertia suddenly and instill new life in both business and the markets by the end of summer.

REPRISALS

New York bankers say that Germany is in a position to make damaging reprisals if the British get too tough about confiscating German trade balances to offset defaulted debts. The Germans could easily retaliate by shutting off imports from the British dollar zone and thereby stir up a row within the Empire—with the dominions blaming the mother country for their losses—which would vitally damage British hopes of regaining ascendancy in world

Changes May Be Made In Staff Of School Janitors

Possible revision of the janitor personnel of the Santa Ana city schools in the interests of efficiency was discussed briefly at the board of education meeting last night, when reports were made that several of the janitors were between 70 and 80 years old.

It was suggested that a survey be made in order to plan the work for the coming year, including the lightening of burdens for the older men and increasing the amount of work to be done by younger men in the organization, which numbers 22 men.

It was decided to compile a list of janitors, their ages, length of service, etc., for consideration of the board at its next meeting on July 10.

BOARD NOT TO ACT ON LIQUOR CHANGES

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 27.—(UP)—No immediate action will be taken by the state board of equalization to change administration of state liquor laws as a result of the supreme court ruling that hard liquor cannot be served with meals under terms of the law. It was indicated today.

George Stout, liquor administrator, said there would be no formulation of a new policy until the board's attorneys had opportunity to make a complete study of the court decision.

While state officials considered it probable the court action eventually would change the whole liquor policy of the state and speed a change toward more workable control, board members would not commit themselves at this time.

EXAMINE CABIN OF VESSEL FOR CLUES

NEW YORK, June 27.—(UP)—An outside cabin of the liner Olympic was inspected with microscopic thoroughness by police today for an answer to one of the most enigmatic questions in the case of the missing Agnes Tufterson.

The cabin was the one in which Capt. Ivan Poderjaj secreted himself on a voyage to Europe last December 22, a few days after he had married Miss Tufterson and two days after she disappeared.

Inspection of the cabin was to determine whether the body of Miss Tufterson might have been taken aboard in a trunk which also has disappeared. Police carefully measured the cabin's port-hole on a suspicion that the trunk and possibly Miss Tufterson's body might have been thrown from it into the open sea.

ICKES TO ANNOUNCE OIL CODE SECTIONS

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(UP)—Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes said today he would announce shortly a new enforcement plan for oil code provisions, including controversial marketing sections.

Ickes said he was disappointed at failure of congress to act on the Thomas-Denney oil bill but was determined to use "every means available" to enforce code provisions.

The tax on crude oil, he said, provided an effective weapon to use in enforcing the code. "It supplies a means whereby the treasury department becomes a strong agency in stopping illegal production and refining of 'hot oil' as well as financing the petroleum administration," he said.

CANCELS PROBATION IN BAD CHECK CASE

Admitting that he passed a worthless check between the time he was sentenced to jail and actually started serving a sentence for the same offense, Harold Berry, 22, Balboa Island, was ordered by Judge Kenneth Morrison today to serve the entire six months sentence for petty theft and lose the five months probation. On June 16, however, he purchased liquor from the Jacobs Pharmacy, First and Main streets, and gave a check for $1.55, which was fictitious, according to Judge Morrison.

The original charge was brought by Victor Walker, sporting goods merchant.

DILLINGER AIDE ARRESTED

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(UP)—Albert W. Reilly, fugitive Dillinger gangster, was seized by Federal agents in St. Paul, Minn., the justice department announced today.

Reilly was wanted specifically for harboring Dillinger in St. Paul on March 14. He allegedly arranged for treatment of Dillinger's wounds when the gangster shot his way out of a trap set by federal agents.

Reilly also was believed to have been with the Dillinger gang in their fray with federal agents at the Little Bohemia resort in Wisconsin from which Dillinger escaped after a gun battle in which two men, a federal agent and a CCC worker, were killed.

TELLS EFFECTS OF ALCOHOL ON HUMAN SYSTEM

FULLERTON, June 27.—Mrs. S. W. Douglas brought an interesting group of facts gleaned from the book, "Alcohol and Man," when she talked to members of the Fullerton Women's Christian Temperance union yesterday at the home of Mrs. Emma Wickersheim, at 147 West Amerigo.

She said the book was compiled from results of investigations of scientists whose aim was not to create a prohibitive attitude toward traffic in liquor, but who had as an object clear advice on use of alcohol, and that, considered in that light, it is a book of warning against the use of alcoholic liquors.

She urged that young people be taught facts concerning the effect on the nervous system of use of any kind of intoxicants, and that the ideal of Biblical teaching, that the body is the temple of the Holy Spirit, be carried along with the teaching against defiling the body.

Mrs. Cora Hale presided at the meeting. Although no official action was taken concerning endorsing of candidates for office, she drew attention to the record of Logan Jackson, sheriff, and suggested that those wishing to be fair look over the grand jury report of his activities, as compared with that of preceding officials.

She also said that one candidate for sheriff, Don Wilkie, registered as a voter in Orange county for the first time May 18 and filed his papers of candidacy for sheriff May 25. She said that, so far as she knows, C. E. Jackson is a good candidate, but urged that members do not confuse his with Logan Jackson's name.

Preceding the time of current events and discussion of candidates, Mrs. J. J. Lilley sang a solo, "He Whispered His Love to Me," and Mrs. R. E. Peschel had charge of a devotional service, taking as her topic, "The Fruit."

Posts $250 Bond In Driving Case

Elmer L. Hatcher, 68, charged with reckless driving, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Charles Kuchel, waived his preliminary hearing and had his trial set for July 12. He posted a $250 bond and was released from jail after being booked by Constable Ed Marion.

TWO MEN FINED IN LIQUOR CASES

Two men arrested on liquor violations, one following a wreck, appeared in police court yesterday. N. E. Eastin, had his drunken driving charged reduced to a misdemeanor charge of driving while under the influence of liquor, was fined $50 and given a suspended 60 day jail sentence.

D. H. Thomas, arrested after a wreck at McFadden and South Main streets, paid a $15 fine for drunkenness.

NEW PANEL TYPE DISCUSSION AT Y TOMORROW NIGHT

The theory of the single tax will be presented at a public meeting at the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday evening at 7:30, in a type of discussion new to Santa Ana. It was announced today by General Secretary Smedley.

L. J. Guinby, of Los Angeles, formerly a state senator in Nebraska, and a longtime publisher and newspaper editor, is to explain the theory of the single taxers. Following his address, the subject will be given a "panel" discussion by a group of representative citizens who will raise questions and discuss them for the edification of the audience.

After their discussion, the subject will be open to questions and suggestions from the general audience.

The plan of "panel" discussion is one that has been gaining popularity in the east of late. Smedley said, continuing, "It provides for a more careful and intelligent discussion than it possible without planning. The panel feature is a group of six men who sit as a sort of jury during the address, and then conduct the post mortem on it."

The "six men who are to serve in this capacity Thursday evening are W. Maxwell Burke, County Assessor James Sleeper, Dwight Hamilton and Harold Yost, of the Toastmasters Club No. 1, and E. H. Layton and Ernest Wooster, of the Toastmasters Club No. 2. With this lead for the discussion there should be no lack of interest and information."

The meeting is open to the public and all who are interested are invited.

Demonstration Of Weed Control To Be Held Tomorrow

In response to numerous requests for authentic information on morning glory control in orchard and field, the Agricultural Extension service has arranged a demonstration meeting to be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow, to show practical methods of combating the weed problem. From present inquiries, a large attendance is anticipated by Farm Advisor Harold E. Wahlberg, who states that anyone interested is welcome to attend.

Bert Johnson, weed specialist of the agricultural commissioner's office in charge of weed control in Orange county, will explain the most effective treatments for the practical handling of the morning glory pest, which is considered one of the most stubborn weed pests in the orchard and field. Results of spray treatments will be seen.

The demonstration will be held at the place of L. A. Bortz, on the north end of Tustin avenue, just east of Olive.

STATE EMPLOYE FOR 39 YEARS RETIRES

SACRAMENTO, June 27.—(UP)—W. S. Kingsbury, 63, chief of the division of state lands and former surveyor general, will retire August 1 after 39 years of public service, it was revealed today.

Kingsbury, a native of Oakland, was deputy Los Angeles city engineer before being elected surveyor general in 1904. He was given his present position when his elective post was abolished in 1929 on his recommendation.

Wage Settlement Being Sought In Bastanchury Case

Ben Tarver, referee in bankruptcy, will hold a hearing June 30 at his office in an attempt to secure payment of $3000 said to be due in back wages and which are filed as claims against the huge Bastanchury ranch.

At the same time, it was

CITRUS THREAT NOTE WRITER IS SENTENCED

Ending a peculiar case where a man pleaded guilty to writing extortion letters to orange exchange officials, in which he threatened to release Mediterranean fruit flies in Orange county, Walter E. McCracken, ranch worker of Orange, was sentenced to serve nine months in jail by United States District Judge Cosgrave in Los Angeles yesterday.

McCracken was arrested by sheriff's officers and department of justice agents, following receipt of the threatening letters by the secretary of the California Fruit Growers exchange. The "payoff" of $5000 was to include the placing of the money under a bridge between Villa Park and Olive. McCracken was arrested when he came to the bridge to get the money.

Leon Bone, Justice agent, described in court the extortion scheme and said McCracken was a former fiction writer. Unable to market his stories, he devised from one of his plots the plan to support himself and family, Bone said.

Judge Cosgrave described the scheme as "most fantastic, but not deserving a severe prison sentence," or one permitting probation. McCracken has been in jail eight weeks and this time was included in the nine months term.

learned that the bond holders committee has authorized the trustee to sign two oil leases with the Union Oil company, one of them on land on which the bondholders have secured an option to buy. Both properties are located near property where the Union Oil company now is drilling a well which is down to 2700 feet.

BUSINESS
For the past four months (March, April, May and June) business has been following the usual seasonal trend rather closely on a plane about 75 per cent normal (1923-25).

Prospects strongly point to a little more than a seasonal decline in July and August to be followed by a stronger-than-seasonal improvement in September and October. That is the plain outlook.

CHART
One reason the official government prognosticators are waxing lyrical in their official statements now is that the May and June shrinkage in business was no worse than it was. They had expected a stronger decline.

You can see what has happened from the following table in which each figure represents the percentage of normal (1923-25 averages) at the times mentioned. (The figures are adjusted for seasonal variations).

EXPLANATION

The secret of the strength in industrial production is steel. A price increase goes into effect in July, so the mills have been humming to fill orders before the increased price is effective. That means a sharp curtailment of steel production when the increased price comes along.

Automobile production is going fairly well. Figures for June will be about 10 per cent from May. The output in April was 256,000 cars, May 332,000 and in June around 300,000. That is because the manufacturers reduced their prices. They ran up against trouble when they tried to put an increase into effect some weeks ago. The trouble was caused mainly by a large manufacturer who refused to go along with the price increase.

The other big industry, textiles, is in a fixed decline. A twelve-week curtailment of cotton textile production (25 per cent) went into effect June 4. Silk weaving shut down for one week in May. That end of the business is now better.

PRICES

The general level of prices has not and will not change much. The price of manufactured goods will be off because of increased competition since the Blue Eagle dulled its talons. Commodity prices should reach moderately upward.

There will be no government action to influence prices materially. No kind of money tampering is seriously contemplated, either by silver buying, devaluation or inflation.

BLUE

The only bad note in the picture is building. No one will believe that, after all the pumping and puffing through the PWA and otherwise, the construction industry now is operating at 25 per cent of normal.

The main reason for it is increased prices and increased labor costs, adopted some weeks ago under the code. These costs are already working themselves down to a more reasonable level.

The administration is trying to build up the housing program to meet the situation, but, on the inside, everyone realizes that the housing program cannot stimulate the building industry very much this year. It will take months to get the organization set up and working.

PUBLIC WORKS

The June tabulation on building will be out in a few days. It will show a slight decrease from May in the value of contracts awarded.

The May value was $124,000,000, an increase of 2 per cent over April. This might be considered highly encouraging were it not for the fact that the increase is due to one big contract privately awarded for Radio City in New York. Generally, construction was off in May.

The amount of direct public works and public utilities contracts awarded actually declined 15 per cent in May. That hardly is in with the speech PWA Director Ickes made a few weeks ago claiming increasingly magnificent success for his program.

Of course, Mr. Ickes gets his optimistic figures by counting the amount of money he has advanced to states, municipalities and others for construction. Much of that money has not been spent and cannot be spent for some months.

That is the whole secret of the delay in getting the big three billion dollar PWA fund working. Most of the money was loaned out and is now lying idle. Those who got it are unable to start work because they are unable to raise their share of the cost or because their plans were in an embryo state when they got the money, or for various other reasons their work has been delayed.

PROOF

The proof of that reduction is that the amount of public works contracts let in May was $71,600,000, a decline of 5 per cent from April.

The value of privately financed building was $62,900,000, an increase of 12 per cent (the Radio City project).

PLEDGE

The program for industrial self-government devised by business leaders at Hot Springs ties in neatly with efforts of the National Association of Manufacturers in the same direction (as described recently in this column).

A number of the Hot Springs conference were Democrats and are perfectly willing to play along with the President—if he accepts their advice. Therefore the political slant apparent in NAMUSA's maneuvers is missing. But the ultimate objective is the same and some of the Democrats might change their colors if they can't get what they want any other way.

Local observers note that the real purpose of the meeting—to cut the Blue Eagle's claws and make it business's servant instead of master—was not stressed in any public announcement. Instead the conference showed a keen sense of public relations by pledging itself to maximum hours, a minimum wage scale, no child labor, elimination of unfair trade practices, relief of technological unemployment and conservation of natural resources. It's a sign of the times that leadership lies with the business big shots who see the need for such a pledge. They wouldn't have made the grade a year ago.

HOW

Skeptical comment that NRA itself has been trying to enforce these same ideals for the past year—the full weight of government authority behind it—will only intensify their success. They wonder what magic business will invoke if given its head—to put it over where NRA didn't. They remark that the conference conveniently forgot to mention how these miracles are to be achieved. Conservatives are by no means so confident that the President will follow their guidance as they were a few weeks ago. Steel developments shook their faith a bit. But their doubts won't keep them from sticking firmly to their charted course.

OUTSPOKEN

Conservatives got a big kick from the pronouncement of Henry I. Harriman—head of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce—that employers could fire workers for belonging to unions despite Section 14. They doubt he would have been so outspoken without Washington encouragement. But they're afraid it's too good to be true and there'll be no concerted rush to act on his advice.

OUTLOOK

Well-informed sources predict that increasing consumer resistance will lead to a sharp break in industrial prices soon. Many industries have inventories that must be disposed of somehow. In most cases the inventory—while troublesome—is only of modest size and the price crisis is expected to be sharp but short. The price-cutting spree will probably cause excitement while it lasts and is likely to leave a flock of business casualties in its wake. But experts believe it will be all over by the end of July and will leave business on a healthier foundation for a fall rise.

Business people in New York are mostly taking a fall boom for granted—even though it rests chiefly on government spending. This boom psychology should help to minimize the effects of any summer crisis that may develop and hasten the rebound.

Another important factor in the recovery picture is the constantly increasing pressure of unused funds. Local experts believe the latest force of credit reserves will smash the dam of timid inertia suddenly and instill new life in both business and the markets by the end of summer.

REPRISALS

New York bankers say that Germany is in a position to make damaging reprisals if the British get too tough about confiscating German trade balances. The Germans could easily retaliate by shutting off imports from the British dominions and thereby stir up a row within the Empire—with the dominions blaming the mother country for their losses—which would vitally damage British hopes of regaining ascendancy in world

SCHOOL BOARD LISTS WORK AS SERA PROJECTS

Extensive improvements of school grounds and buildings will be carried on this summer using SERA labor, if projects submitted are approved by the SERA organization, it was disclosed at the regular board of education meeting last night.

Four projects had already been submitted, and others were ordered submitted at last night's meeting. The board of education will furnish materials on all projects, and asks the SERA organization to furnish the labor without expense to the local district.

One of the new projects approved by board members last night includes installation of several hundred feet of curbing at school plants. The project includes 742 feet of curbing at the west side of the Willard school grounds, 250 feet along the west side of the Franklin school, and 1200 feet of curb at the south, east and west of the Edison school on Orange avenue.

A second project ordered submitted includes remodeling necessary to fit up a junior college office, 14 by 28 feet, in the southeast corner of the upstairs portion of the school administration building on North Main street, which will be used as J. C. headquarters.

Other projects, estimated to cost $904.55, had been previously submitted to the SERA board, including interior painting in several school buildings, cement walks at the Hoover, Wilson, and old Willard plants; demolishing the high school auditorium, and demolishing the Spurgeon school preparatory to rebuilding.

PRESIDENT HAS 16 BILLS TO CONSIDER

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(UP)—President Roosevelt has only 16 bills awaiting action, he revealed today. He cleared 139 measures from his desk last night and this morning.

Mr. Roosevelt declined to reveal the fate of the controversial Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage moratorium gesture or other important legislation passed in the closing hours of congress. He indicated that a statement outlining his work would be issued at the White House later.

The president worked until 1 a. m. on the mass of legislation and returned to his desk again immediately after breakfast. The remaining 16 are scattered in government departments for study. Action on them was expected by tonight.

trade and monetary affairs. Other European creditors of Germany are under no such handicap.

MACY

There's a lot of talk in Republican circles about running Kingland Macy for governor of New York—even among those who are not fond of Macy. One party faction would be happy to back his candidacy if they were only sure he would be licked in November. They figure it would be worth the defeat to get rid of his "radical" influence.

Another influential group favors him for an entirely different reason. They figure his views are responsive to a real public demand and his nomination would assure Republican success. If the Republicans can carry New York with Macy as standard-bearer or even with a platform designed by him it would have a profound effect on the party's national policy.

FARMERS

New York Republicans are banking heavily on rural defections from the Roosevelt banner. Mr. Roosevelt as Governor won the support of up-state farmers as no Democrat before him had ever done. But farmers in this section don't think much of AAA and Republicans are working hard to persuade them to say it with votes.

OUT

The original plan for Rockefeller Center involved allotment of individual buildings to England, France, Italy and Germany. After prolonged negotiations the Germans have withdrawn from this arrangement and the German building will become Pan American instead.

It is understood that Germany could not meet the financial requirements and Rockefeller interests offered no concessions because they didn't wish to appear over-friendly to the Nazis.

HID

The airlines think Elliott Roosevelt's trip from Fort Worth with his six-week-old daughter might help divert attention from the crash scare—if they could use it. But they have word to lay off. They demand querulously what's the good of a Roosevelt in the industry if you have to hide him under a bushel.

SIDELIGHTS

Commercial aviation doesn't appreciate Mayor La Guardia's Field. It shows at Floyd Bennett Field. The boys say parachute jumps don't help them sell the inside track for Eugene Black's job as head of the Federal Reserve Board.

Changes May Be Made In Staff Of School Janitors

Possible revision of the janitor personnel of the Santa Ana city schools in the interests of efficiency was discussed briefly at the board of education meeting last night, when reports were made that several of the janitors were between 70 and 80 years old.

It was suggested that a survey be made in order to plan the work for the coming year, including the lightening of burdens for the older men and increasing the amount of work to be done by younger men in the organization, which numbers 82 men.

It was decided to compile a list of janitors, their ages, length of service, etc., for consideration of the board at its next meeting on July 10.

BOARD NOT TO ACT ON LIQUOR CHARGES

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 27.—

(UP)—No immediate action will be taken by the state board of equalization to change administration of state liquor laws as a result of the supreme court ruling that hard liquor cannot be served with meals under terms of the law, it was indicated today.

George Stout, liquor administrator, said there would be no formulation of a new policy until the board's attorneys had opportunity to make a complete study of the court decision.

While state officials considered it probable the court action eventually would change the whole liquor policy of the state and speed a change toward more workable control, board members would not commit themselves at this time.

EXAMINE CABIN OF VESSEL FOR CLUES

NEW YORK, June 27.—(UP)—

An outside cabin of the liner Olympic was inspected with microscope thoroughness by police today for an answer to one of the most enigmatic questions in the case of the missing Agnes Tufterson.

The cabin was the one in which Capt. Ivan Polderjag secreted himself on a voyage to Europe last December 22, a few days after he had married Miss Tufterson and two days after the disappeared. The cabin of the vessel was to determine whether the body of Miss Tufterson might have been taken aboard in a trunk which also has disappeared. Police carefully measured the cabin's port-hole on a suspicion that the trunk and possibly Miss Tufterson's body might have been thrown from it into the open sea.

ICKES TO ANNOUNCE OIL CODE SECTIONS

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(UP)—

Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes said today he would announce shortly a new enforcement plan for oil code provisions, including controversial marketing sections.

Ickes said he was disappointed at failure of congress to act on the Thomas-Dieney oil bill but was determined to use "every means available" to enforce code provisions.

The tax on crude oil, he said, provided an effective weapon to use in enforcing the code. "It supplies a means whereby the treasury department becomes a strong agency in stopping illegal production and refining of 'hot oil' as well as financing the petroleum administration," he said.

Admitting that he passed a worthless check between the time he was sentenced to jail and actually started serving a sentence for the same offense, Harold Herby, 22, Balboa Island, was ordered by Judge Kenneth Morrison today to serve the entire six months sentence for petty theft and lose the five months probation. On June 10, Herby started serving his 30 day jail term on June 18 and would have been released next month on five months probation. On June 16, however, he purchased liquor from the Jacobs Pharmacy, First and Main streets, and gave a check for $1.55, which was fictitious, according to Judge Morrison.

The original charge was brought by Victor Walker, sporting goods merchant.

DILLINGER AIDE ARRESTED
WASHINGTON, June 27.—(UP)—

Albert W. Reilly, fugitive Dillinger gangster, was seized by Federal agents in St. Paul, Minn., the justice department announced today.

Reilly was wanted specifically for harboring Dillinger in St. Paul on March 14. He allegedly arranged for treatment of Dillinger's wounds when the gangster shot his way out of a trap set by federal agents.

Reilly also was believed to have been with the Dillinger gang in their fray with federal agents at the Little Bohemia resort in Wisconsin from which Dillinger escaped after a gun battle in which two men, a federal agent and a CCC worker, were killed.

TELLS EFFECTS OF ALCOHOL ON HUMAN SYSTEM

FULLERTON, June 27.—Mrs. S. W. Douglas brought an interesting report of facts gleaned from the book, "Alcohol and Man," when she talked to members of the Fullerton Women's Christian Temperance union yesterday at the home of Mrs. Emma Wickersham, at 147 West Amerigo.

She said the book was compiled from results of investigations of scientists whose aim was to create a prohibitive attitude toward traffic in liquor, but who had as an object clear advice on use of alcohol, and that, considered in that light, it is a book of warning against the use of alcoholic liquors.

She urged that young people be taught facts concerning the effect on the nervous system of use of any kind of intoxicants, and that the ideal of Biblical teaching, that the body is the temple of the Holy Spirit, be carried along with the teaching against defiling the body.

Mrs. Cora Hale presided at the meeting. Although no official action was taken concerning endorsement of candidates for office, she drew attention to the record of Logan Jackson, sheriff, and suggested that those wishing to be fair look over the grand jury report of his activity, as compared with that of preceding officials.

She also said that one candidate for sheriff, Don Wilkie, registered as a voter in Orange county for the first time May 18 and filed his papers of candidacy for sheriff May 25. She said that, so far as she knows, C. E. Jackson is a good candidate, but urged that members do not confuse his with Logan Jackson's name.

Preceding the time of current events and discussion of candidates, Mrs. J. J. Lilly sang a solo, "He Whispered His Love to Me," and Mrs. R. E. Paschel had charge of a devotional service, taking as her topic, "The Fruit."

Two men arrested on liquor violations, one following a wreck, appeared in police court yesterday. N. E. Eastin, had his drunken driving charged reduced to a misdemeanor charge of driving while under the influence of liquor, was fined $50 and given a suspended 60 day jail sentence.

D. H. Thomas, arrested after a wreck at McFadden and South Main streets, paid a $15 fine for drunkenness.

Posts $250 Bond In Driving Case

Elmer L. Hatcher, 68, charged with reckless driving, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Charles Kuchel, waived his preliminary hearing and had his trial set for July 12. He posted a $250 bond and was released from jail, after being booked by Constable Ed Marion.

NEW PANEL TYPE DISCUSSION AT Y TOMORROW NIGHT

The theory of the single tax will be presented at a public meeting at the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday evening at 7:30. In a type of discussion new to Santa Ana, it was announced today by General Secretary Smedley.

L. J. Guinby, of Los Angeles, formerly a state senator in Nebraska, and a longtime publisher and newspaper editor, is to explain the theory of the single tax. Following his address, the subject will be given a "panel" discussion by a group of representative citizens who will raise questions and discuss them for the edification of the audience. After their discussion, the subject will be open to questions and suggestions from the general audience.

The plan of "panel" discussion is one that has been gaining popularity in the east of late. Smedley said, continuing, "It provides for a more careful and intelligent discussion than it is possible without planning. The panel feature is a group of six men who sit as a sort of jury during the address, and then conduct the post mortem on it."

The six men who are to serve in this capacity Thursday evening are W. Maxwell Burke, County Assessor James Sleeper, Dwight Hamilton, and Harold Yost of the Toastmasters Club No. 1, and E. H. Layton and Ernest Wooster, of the Toastmasters Club No. 2. With this lead for the discussion there should be no lack of interest and information.

The meeting is open to the public and all who are interested are invited.

TWO MEN FINED IN LIQUOR CASES

Two men arrested on liquor violations, one following a wreck, appeared in police court yesterday. N. E. Eastin, had his drunken driving charged reduced to a misdemeanor charge of driving while under the influence of liquor, was fined $50 and given a suspended 60 day jail sentence.

D. H. Thomas, arrested after a wreck at McFadden and South Main streets, paid a $15 fine for drunkenness.

Demonstration Of Weed Control To Be Held Tomorrow

In response to numerous requests for authentic information on morning glory control in orchard and field, the Agricultural Extension service has arranged a demonstration meeting to be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow, to show practical methods of combating the weed problem. From present inquiries, a large attendance is anticipated by Farm Advisor Harold E. Wahlberg, who states that anyone interested is welcome to attend.

Bert Johnson, weed specialist of the agricultural commissioner's office in charge of weed control in Orange county, will explain the most effective treatments for the practical handling of the morning glory pest, which is considered one of the most stubborn weed pests in the orchard and field. Results of spray treatments will be seen.

The demonstration will be held at the place of L. A. Bortz, on the north end of Tustin avenue, just east of Olive.

STATE EMPLOYE FOR 39 YEARS RETIRES

SACRAMENTO, June 27.—(UP)—W. S. Kingsbury, 63, chief of the division of state lands and former surveyor general, will retire August 1 after 39 years of public service, it was revealed today.

Kingsbury, a native of Oakland, was deputy Los Angeles city engineer before being elected surveyor general in 1906. He was given his present position when his elective post was abolished in 1929 on his recommendation.

REGIONAL MEET OF REALTORS AT BEACH CITY

CHEMISTRY OF CITRUS TREES GROWERS TOPIC

Testimony to the growing popularity of Laguna Beach as a place for holding business meetings of limited attendance during the summer months was the action taken at the twelfth regional district meeting of the California Real Estate association held at Laguna last night at the White House cafe, when by acclaim it was decided to hold all summer meetings in that community.

L. C. Nanney, of Whittier, vice president of the California Real Estate association, representing the twelfth district, presided over the meeting. The Laguna Beach Realty Board acted as hosts to the visiting realtors.

A. G. Green, trust officer of the Santa Ana branch of the Security Title Insurance and Guarantee company, a state concern, was the principal speaker, devoting the greater portion of his address to the legal phases and operation of the new law governing trust deeds. Touching upon assignments, the speaker said that in August, 1931, a law was enacted which provided that any assignment of beneficial interest might be recorded, and that such recordation would constitute constructive notice to all persons. He also pointed out that since August 21, 1933, notice of default must be recorded in each county wherein property or some part thereof is situated. Such notice must state name of trustee and nature of default, it was explained.

Green dwelt at some length on new provisions of the law dealing with deficiency actions and judgments. In the course of his remarks the following points were brought out: In any action for deficiency plaintiff must allege and prove fair market value at time of sale; no deficiency judgment shall be issued in excess of difference between said value and the total amount of the indebtedness; and that action for deficiency must be brought within three months from date of sale. Stanley Goode, Santa Ana realtor, reported that all indications point to a marked improvement in the citrus industry with better prices, which upward trend will soon be reflected in all lines of business. Several realtors, identified directly with the citrus industry, voiced their unqualified approval of the pro-rate and market control system which is enabling the orange growers to receive a fair price for their fruit.

The chemical constituents of a citrus tree and how they are affected by soil and fertilizer treatments will be one of the interesting subjects of the annual citrus growers institute next Saturday at the University of California at Westwood, according to announcement from Farm Advisor Harold E. Wahlberg's office representing the University in Orange county.

A. J. McFadden, of Santa Ana, president of the California Pro-rate Commission, will speak on the history of work in agriculture at the University in Los Angeles, and Dr. L. D. Batchelor, director, Citrus Experiment Station, Riverside, will explain the many citrus investigations under way at the station in Riverside.

Other speakers during the morning session will include Prof. Robert W. Hodgson, who will explain what students in agriculture are taught on the Los Angeles campus of the university; and Dr. S. H. Cameron, of the division of subtropical horticulture, who will present a chemical picture of the orange tree.

During the afternoon, those in attendance will hear an organ recital in Royce Hall. Inspection will be made of laboratories and the cold storage plant, and of the experimental orchard.

The Branch of the College of Agriculture in Southern California is an administrative section of the College of Agriculture, University of California, and similar to the Branch of the College of Agriculture at Davis. It was created in 1930 by action of the Board of Regents. It consists of the Citrus Experiment Station at Riverside, and the agricultural group on the Los Angeles campus of the university.

The institute is held under the auspices of the Agricultural Extension Service and the citrus department of the California Farm Bureau Federation. N. C. Kelley, Bureau of Extension, N. C. Kelley, is chairman of the citrus department and will preside at the sessions which will start at 9:30 a. m. in Room 19 of the Chemistry Building on the campus.

DEFENDANT IN HIT, RUN CASE INNOCENT

Tranquillo Solorio, El Modena Mexican charged with failure to stop and render aid after an accident, was found not guilty by Judge H. G. Ames in superior court Monday.

The prosecution failed to prove that Solorio was driver of a car which struck a car driven by Mrs. L. C. Hogenkamp, of Alta Loma, on the Santa Ana canyon road on May 20, it was held. Deputy District Attorney Harold McCable handled the prosecution.

Emeterio Salona and Jose Valenzuela, companions of Solorio on a trip to Corona, both testified that Solorio was driving the car on the return trip when the accident occurred, but admitted being so drunk that they were not positive. Solorio claimed that the other two became so intoxicated they left him in Corona.

Both Salona and Valenzuela are in the county jail, awaiting preliminary hearing in the Orange justice court on the same charges, failure to stop and render aid. They were scheduled to appear in the Orange court today.

BOARD ASKED FOR $10,000 AND NEW ORDINANCE TO AID IN WAR ON TUBERCULOSIS HERE

Edith Tate Thompson, chief of the bureau of tuberculosis, state board of health, appeared before the board of supervisors yesterday to make recommendations regarding a tubercular preventative program in Orange county for the ensuing year.

She asked the board to appropriate $10,000 for the construction of four buildings at the Orange county hospital to relieve the crowded conditions in the tubercular wards. The buildings would take care of a total of 40 more patients. There now are about 90 patients in the hospital in quarters constructed for many less, she said, and there is a long waiting list.

Mrs. Thompson was accompanied by Dr. Harry Zaiser, chief of the Orange county hospital staff, Dr. K. H. Sutherland, county health officer, and Dr. Waldo Wehrly, representing the Orange County Tuberculosis and Health association.

She requested that the board of supervisors adopt an ordinance which would furnish the health officer with more power for seeing that tuberculous cases be removed to the hospital for isolation in cases where isolation in the home is impractical and endangers public health. The proposed ordinance, which was read by Dr. Sutherland, would empower the health officer to isolate other persons who have contagious diseases.

Dr. Sutherland called attention to the recent tuberculosis survey conducted by his department with the aid of the Tuberculosis association which confirmed his conviction that there are a number of infectious tuberculosis cases in various parts of the county which endanger public health.

The survey, he said, included an examination of students of four Mexican schools in the county. A total of 758 children were examined, and among these 16 infectious cases which previously were unknown were found. Eighty per cent of the tuberculosis cases in the county hospital are Mexicans.

LOW INTEREST SAVES $27,000 FOR TAXPAYERS

A merry melange in which the board of supervisors came out with a saving to taxpayers of the district of about $27,000, according to the auditor's office featured the sale of the $275,000 Anaheim Union High school bond issue yesterday afternoon.

It all happened like this. The board had advertised the sale of the school bonds at five per cent interest, so yesterday a number of bond concerns and bank representatives submitted bids to the board just before noon.

Members of the board had inside knowledge that the representatives had alternate bids, and one of these was presented offering to buy the bonds at four per cent. The next move of the supervisors was to reject all bids and to pass a motion offering the bonds at a private sale.

The result was that a representative of the Security-First National bank of Los Angeles offered to buy the block of bonds at three and three-quarters per cent with a premium of $716. He bought the bonds and the supervisors made a deal in which the lowest rate of interest ever paid on school bonds in Orange county was completed. The saving was about $27,000 over the higher bids made earlier in the session at five per cent.

Representatives of the bidding concerns said that banks and other financial institutions have no place to put their money at the present time, and are anxious to purchase sound bonds.

Weeden and Company and the American Trust department bid five per cent with a bonus of $20,025, and also submitted an alternate bid at four per cent with a bonus of $1451.

William R. Staats, Banks, Huntley and Company, and Griffith-Wagenseller and Durst bid five per cent with a premium of $20,877.

R. H. Moulton and Company bid four per cent with a bonus of $378.

Brown-Harriman company and the Anglo-California National bank bid par value and five per cent with an alternate bid of four per cent on the first $200,000 and three and a half per cent on the remaining $75,000.

ASK FORMATION OF TOWNSHIP AT BUENA PARK

Business men and residents of Buena Park and Cypress, through the chambers of commerce of the two communities, yesterday presented to the board of supervisors a resolution petitioning the board to reform the Buena Park township with the identical boundaries which formerly existed. The resolution pointed out that in 1922 the supervisors disbanded the Buena Park township and annexed it to the Anaheim township.

The plea for re-establishing the Buena Park township was based on a need for better police protection in the area, which, it was said, was impossible now without a direct burden on the business men and residents of the section. It was said that the Anaheim township constable had informed the petitioners that the only way he could help was to deputize business men or others to aid in the police work. The supervisors took no action on the matter.

DRUNK DRIVERS IN RIVERSIDE TO LOSE CARS

RIVERSIDE, June 27.—Drunk drivers involved in accidents in Riverside county hereafter not only will face a jail term or heavy fine, but will be deprived of their automobiles. This was disclosed yesterday after Superior Judge O. K. Morton had impounded three cars for as many motorists who were before him for sentence on charges of driving while intoxicated. In one case the defendant said the car he was driving at the time of the accident was a borrowed one. "It isn't the court's lookout to see that you are driving your own car," said Judge Morton, and then ordered officers to impound the automobile until further instructions are issued. The purpose of the new rule, it was disclosed, is to prevent drunken motorists from using their cars until they have "learned a lesson."

REGIONAL MEET OF REALTORS AT BEACH CITY

Testimony to the growing popularity of Laguna Beach as a place for holding business meetings of limited attendance during the summer months was the action taken at the twelfth regional district meeting of the California Real Estate association held at Laguna last night at the White House cafe, when by acclamation it was decided to hold all summer meetings in that community.

L. C. Nanney, of Whittier, vice president of the California Real Estate association, representing the twelfth district, presided over the meeting. The Laguna Beach Realty Board acted as hosts to the visiting realtors.

A. G. Green, trust officer of the Santa Ana branch of the Security Title Insurance and Guaranty company, a state concern, was the principal speaker, devoting the greater portion of his address to the legal phases and operation of the new law governing trust deeds. Touching upon assignments, the speaker said that in August, 1931, a law was enacted which provided that any assignment of beneficial interest might be recorded, and that such recordation would constitute constructive notice to all persons. He also pointed out that since August 21, 1932, notice of default must be recorded in each county wherein property or some part thereof is situated. Such notice must state name of trustor and nature of default, it was explained.

Green dwelt at some length on new provisions of the law dealing with deficiency actions and judgments. In the course of his remarks the following points were brought out: In any action for deficiency plaintiff must allege and prove fair market value at time of sale; no deficiency judgment shall be issued in excess of difference between said value and the total amount of the indebtedness; and that action for deficiency must be brought within three months from date of sale.

Stanley Good, Santa Ana realtor, reported that all indications point to a marked improvement in the citrus industry with better prices, which upward trend will soon be reflected in all lines of business. Several realtors, identified directly with the citrus industry, voiced their unqualified approval of the new rate and market control system which is enabling the orange growers to receive a fair price for their fruit.

CHEMISTRY OF CITRUS TREES GROWERS TOPIC

The chemical constituents of a citrus tree and how they are affected by soil and fertilizer treatments will be one of the interesting subjects of the annual citrus growers institute next Saturday at the University of California at Westwood, according to announcement from Farm Adviser Harold E. Wahlberg's office representing the University in Orange county.

A. J. McFadden, of Santa Ana, president of the California Prorate Commission, will speak on the history of work in agriculture at the University in Los Angeles, and Dr. L. D. Batchelor, director, Citrus Experiment Station, Riverside, will explain the many citrus investigations under way at the station in Riverside.

Other speakers during the morning session will include Prof. Robert W. Hodgson, who will explain what students in agriculture are taught on the Los Angeles campus of the university; and Dr. S. H. Cameron, of the division of subtropical horticulture, who will present a chemical picture of the orange tree.

During the afternoon, those in attendance will hear an organ recital in Royce Hall. Inspection will be made of laboratories and the cold storage plant, and of the experimental orchard.

The Branch of the College of Agriculture in Southern California is an administrative section of the College of Agriculture, University of California, and similar to the Branch of the College of Agriculture at Davis. It was created in 1930 by action of the Board of Regents. It consists of the Citrus Experiment Station at Riverside, and the agricultural group on the Los Angeles campus of the university.

The institute is held under the auspices of the Agricultural Extension Service and the citrus department of the California Farm Bureau Federation. N. C. Kelley, Corona, is chairman of the citrus department and will preside at the sessions which will start at 9:30 a. m. in Room 19 of the Chemistry Building on the campus.

DEFENDANT IN HIT, RUN CASE INNOCENT

Tranquillo Solorio, El Modena Mexican charged with failure to stop and render aid after an accident, found not guilty by Judge H. G. Aines in superior court Monday.

The prosecution failed to prove that Solorio was driver of a car which struck a car driven by Mrs. L. C. Hogenkamp, of Alta Loma, on the Santa Ana canyon road on May 20. It was held. Deputy District Attorney Harold McCable handled the prosecution.

Demetrio Salona and Jose Valenzuela, companions of Solorio on a trip to Corona, both testified that Solorio was driving the car on the return trip when the accident occurred, but admitted being so drunk that they were not positive. Solorio claimed that the other two became so intoxicated they left him in Corona.

Both Salona and Valenzuela are in the county jail, awaiting preliminary hearing in the Orange justice court on the same charges, failure to stop and render aid. They were scheduled to appear in the Orange court today.

BOARD ASKED FOR $10,000 AND NEW ORDINANCE TO AID IN WAR ON TUBERCULOSIS HERE

Edith Tate Thompson, chief of the bureau of tuberculosis, state board of health, appeared before the board of supervisors yesterday to make recommendations regarding a tubercular preventative program in Orange county for the ensuing year.

She asked the board to appropriate $10,000 for the construction of four buildings at the Orange county hospital to relieve the crowded conditions in the tubercular wards. The buildings would take care of a total of 40 more patients. There now are about 90 patients in the hospital in quarters constructed for many less, she said, and there is a long waiting list.

Mrs. Thompson was accompanied by Dr. Harry Zaiser, chief of the Orange county hospital staff, Dr. K. H. Sutherland, county health officer, and Dr. Waldo Wehrly, representing the Orange County Tuberculosis and Health association.

She requested that the board of supervisors adopt an ordinance which would furnish the health officer with more power for seeing that tuberculous cases be removed to the hospital for isolation in cases where isolation in the home is impractical and endangers public health. The proposed ordinance, which was read by Dr. Sutherland, would empower the health officer to isolate other persons who have contagious diseases.

Dr. Sutherland called attention to the recent tuberculosis survey conducted by his department with the aid of the Tuberculosis association which confirmed his conviction that there are a number of infectious tuberculosis cases in various parts of the county which endanger public health.

The survey, he said, included an examination of students of four Mexican schools in the county. A total of 753 children were examined, and among these 16 infectious cases which previously were unknown were found. Eighty per cent of the tuberculosis cases in the county hospital are Mexicans.

LOW INTEREST SAVES $27,000 FOR TAXPAYERS

A merry melange in which the board of supervisors came out with a saving to taxpayers of the district of about $27,000, according to the auditor's office featured the sale of the $275,000 Anaheim Union High school bond issue yesterday afternoon.

It happened like this. The board had advertised the sale of the school bonds at five per cent interest, so yesterday a number of bond concerns and bank representatives submitted bids to the board just before noon.

Members of the board had inside knowledge that the representatives had alternate bids, and one of these was presented, offering to buy the bonds at four per cent. The next move of the supervisors was to reject all bids and to pass a motion offering the bonds at a private sale.

The result was that a representative of the Security-First National bank of Los Angeles offered to buy the block of bonds at three and three-quarters per cent with a premium of $716. He bought the bonds and the supervisors made a deal in which the lowest rate of interest ever paid on school bonds in Orange county was completed. The saving was about $27,000 over the higher bids made earlier in the session at five per cent.

Representatives of the bidding concerns said that banks and other financial institutions have no place to put their money at the present time, and are anxious to purchase government bonds.

Weeden and Company and the American Trust department bid five per cent with a bonus of $20,025, and also submitted an alternate bid at four per cent with a bonus of $1461.

William R. Staats, Banks, Huntley and Company, and Griffith-Wagonseller and Durst bid five per cent with a premium of $20,577.

R. H. Moulton and Company bid four per cent with a bonus of $3785.

Brown-Harriman company and the Anglo-California National bank bid par value and five per cent with an alternate bid of four per cent on the first $200,000 and three and a half per cent on the remaining $75,000.

CAN BAER REALLY FIGHT?

How good is Max Baer? Al Lippe unqualifiedly calls the knockout conqueror of Max Schmeling and Primo Carnera the greatest heavyweight of all time. Lippe's tired old eyes have watched them all—from Sullivan on down the line. He managed Abe Attell, Billy Papke and Jeff Smith—handled scrappers from Syracuse to Singapore.

"Baer fences well enough and any time they punch with him, they're bound to be starched. That goes for Jack Dempsey or anyone else," says the Philadelphia.

Jimmy Johnston and George Engel wouldn't be surprised if Lippe was right. And those acquainted with Johnston, ringmaster at the Garden, know that he isn't talking from a business angle.

"The cocky little Englishman speaks his mind, no matter how painful, which frequently accounts for his being knee deep in hot water. Engel guided Frank Klaus and Harry Greb, and Benny Leonard credits him with his development."

"Baer is fast and can give it and take it and fight all night. If I had met him at my peak, one of us would have been knocked out."—Dempsey.

"Baer turned in a perfect fight against Carnera. He is a terrific puncher. No one knows how to match gloves with him."—Gene Tunney.

"Baer is a killer, that's what he is. If I acquiesced to Walter Neusel meeting him, and Walter was hurt, I would be my fault. And I do not intend to run the risk of having the death of a fine boy on my hands."—Jimmy Bronson, co-manager of the German eligible, who also seconded Tunney.

PUNCH GIVES BAER CHANCE

"On his hitting, Baer must be conceded a chance against any big fellow who ever resined shoes."—Nate Lewis, who has paired and piloted pugilists in and out of Chicago longer than he cares to remember.

NET 'EXPERTS' IGNORE U. S.

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 27.—The finest performers of every lawn tennis playing country in the world are playing in the All-England championships, and for the first time in many, many years an American is not included among those conceded bright chances to reach the final.

The consensus of British experts is that the four major titles will be in possession of one of the following players who are the favorite for the night of play is concluded.

Men's singles—Fred Perry and "Bunny" Austin, England; Jack Crawford, Australia; Gottfried von Cramm, Germany; Christian Bortus and Donnell, France; J. Yamagishi, Japan.

Women's singles—Dorothy Round, Peggy Scriven and Mary Healy, England; Miss Mathieu, France; Fraulein C. Aussem, Germany.

Men's doubles—Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon, France; Perry and Pat Hughes, England; Crawford and Vivian McGrath and A. R. Quist and Don Turnbull, Australia.

This group was compiled after a careful reading of the experts (than which there is none whicher than the English) and, as you see, it ignores America completely.

Of course, it doesn't make sense. To omit Helen Jacobs from the list of candidates for the women's singles is absurd. The experts in explaining the omission, pointed to her defeat by Miss Scriven in the French championships. They might have taken into consideration that the match was started almost in the dark; also that Miss Jacobs defeated both Miss Round and Miss Scriven in the Wightman Cup matches.

Shires Reveals Brother's Bat Weakness

FORT WORTH, June 27.—(UP)—Art (Whittam) Shires offers no quarter to his younger brother, Len, when they meet on the baseball diamond.

Art plays first base for Fort Worth in the Texas league and Len is a utility infielder for Galveston.

When Len came to bat as a pinch-hitter the other day, Art walked to the pitcher's mound and imparted Len's batting weakness to the pitcher.

Big Brother Art then strolled back to first base, disdainfully reclining on the ground, resting his head on the bag.

Little Brother Len fumed and fussed. His best effort was a weak pop-fly.

CEILERS REPEAT WESTMINSTER. 7-2. CINCH RAG

But Lewis, who saw Bob Fitzsimmons paralyze Jim Corbett's legs with the solar plexus punch at Carson City and who made the Chicago matches that skyrocketed Baer into the headlines—those with Ernie Shaaf and Tuffy Griffiths—aren't as thoroughly sold on the Butterfly Butcher Boy as some of the others.

Lewis believes that Art Lasky, the Minneapolis mauler whom he described as a faster puncher than Baer and a murderous hitter in the side, would stir up plenty of trouble for the curly-haired Californian.

"Corbett and Tunney might out-punch Baer," explains Lewis. "Fitz might land first. Jeffries took a punch just as easily and was cleverer and stronger."

Listening to that I was surprised when Lewis expressed the opinion that Baer would have whipped Jack Johnson. Not a few old-timers list L'il Arthur No. 1, and they are almost in accord in pronouncing him the daddy of them all in defensive skill.

"Johnson was vastly over-rated," asserts Lewis. "His reputation is not substantiated by his record. He dropped a 20-round decision to Marvin Hart in 1905. He was 27 then and in full stride, and if he couldn't beat Hart far enough to prevent anybody from giving the Kentuckian a decision, he wasn't a truly great heavyweight."

"Baer would have beaten Jess Willard, who was a slow thinker," Lewis went on.

"How about Dempsey?" he was asked. "I'd like to have a wager on Jack," replied the Bald Eagle of the Boul' Mich.

CORBETT AND TUNNEY?

When Boxing Commissioner Bill Brown stormed that Baer wasn't in condition and demanded that what turned out to be the Carnera carnage be postponed a week or a month or be canceled, numerous flippant writers and critics predicted that after the fight Baer would be referred to as the most illustrious predecessors.

"The newest one always is the best," they wisecracked.

But that isn't always the case. For instance, mighty few classed the cumbersome Willard with his more illustrious predecessors.

I recall calling on Billy Brady, the theatrical magnate who managed Corbett and Jeffries, just before Tunney's swan song with Tom Heeney. Copy came tough. The affair obviously was so one-sided. I sought something different.

I built Brady up for an hour. We talked of everything but boxing. Finally, I had an idea that the time to pop the question had arrived.

"Mr. Brady," I parried, "boxers of the past usually are seen in the flatter light of distance. Can't you possibly conceive Gene Tunney being as fine a boxer as Corbett?"

"I'll never forget the look on the old gentleman's face. Talk about registering disgust! 'Young man,' he replied, 'did you ever see Jim Corbett box?'"

LOS ANGELES, June 27.—(UP)—

Lee Ramo, San Diego, today held a 10-round draw with Maxie Rosenbloom, light-heavyweight champion, after a free-hitting overweight match at the Olympic auditorium last night.

Ramo received the draw from Referee Barney Lee. The decision was roundly booed by the fans who thought that Rosenbloom had a clear win over the San Diegoan.

The two fighters preferred science for the first seven rounds and then turned the match into a slug-fest that brought the crowd of 5,000 to its feet.

Most ring observers gave Rosenbloom a clear victory over his younger opponent. The United Press sheet scored at least five rounds for Maxie and two even.

The San Diegoan was on the floor in the sixth round but got up without taking a count.

HAIL VAUGHAN AS NEW WAGNER

Honus Trains Fullerton Youth, Now Best Shortstop 'ARKY' GREAT HITTER, FIELDER

A couple of years ago George Honus said Floyd Vaughan was one of the brightest prospects he had seen in many a day. And the Fullerton boy lost no time in furnishing additional proof that the former Pittsburgh manager was an expert judge of ball players.

Pittsburgh now hails the 22-year-old Vaughan as a second Hans Wagner. Old Honus himself is glowing in his superlative description of the youngster's attributes, believes "Arky" soon will exceed Joe Cronin and the others in the fielding duties of a shortstop and become the finest in the game.

Vaughan has hit well enough from the outset. The lad who transformed himself from a sand-bat to a big league shortstop in a year is belting the ball at a .370 clip right now, following two years in which he has hit .315 and .314.

A well-built youth, Vaughan came to the majors from Wichita, of the Western league, heralded as a speedster and a clouter worthy of exhibiting his sport as a fast company. He had hit .338 in the Western league, and topped the loop in runs scored and stolen bases. He still is a home-loving fellow, for he leads the current National league parade in runs scored.

Harold Traynor, Pirate third sacker, also the club's new manager, calls Vaughan the fastest man in the league, and the pleating one knows plenty about baseball players. "Arky's" hot feet largely account for his run scoring penchant.

Vaughan owes much of his success to Wagner. Last season, his first year under the tutelage of the Flying Dutchman, who was brought back to the sport as a coach, Floyd committed 45 bobbles, more than anyone else in the league.

At spring headquarters this year, Wagner took Vaughan to one side and showed him how to come up with the ball, and how to get it away to first without effort.

Vaughan proved an apt pupil, and developed into the most exceptional player of the Pirates' training tour.

So far this season, Fullerton Floyd has covered the shortfield in remarkable style. He accepted 225 chances in the first 40 games, and had only six miscues. Cronin, generally conceded to be the finest of the majors' shortstops, made 13 errors in 228 chances in 39 games.

Since figures are reported never to prevaricate, this is a great boost for Vaughan.

PLAN ALL-STAR GAME Although no National Night league baseball is scheduled next week, following the completion of the first-half schedule this Friday, Santa Ana's Stars will play one of their most attractive contests of the 1934 season.

An all-star lineup will be picked from the Santa Ana City league to meet Manag. Bill Cole's club at the Bowl July 6. Observers say the City league is stronger than usual this year, and that its representative team would have an even chance against the Stars.

President Kenneth Morris, Umpires Kintz and Kelly and Official Scorer Tom Moore meet Friday to select the City league's players. Like the Stars, the City leaguers wind up the first half of their season this week.

Santa Ana scored twice in the fourth on singles by Wilcox and Joe Koral and Rod Ballard's double to right. Tommy Young blasted a homer into the left field stands in the fifth, scoring Conrad ahead of him. Successive doubles by Preble, Sears and Conrad and a long single by Stinchfield, which provoked the biggest excitement of the evening among the fans, added three to the Stars' total in the seventh.

The Santa Ana club completes its first-half schedule at Huntington Beach Friday night. There will be a week's interlude before the "new season" starts July 10, with the Stars battling Olive at the Municipal Bowl.

LAGUNA GROUP READY TO GIVE CONCERT PLAY

LAGUNA BEACH, June 27.—Music lovers as well as theater fans of the art colony are looking forward to the presentation next Friday and Saturday nights of Beethoven's "Symphony," a concert drama, at the Little Art theater on Thalia street.

The performance is a play in which the music is used as a part of action of the play. It was explained by Wayne Moore, director of the Little Art theater. The play, he added, is built around the life and character and the music of Beethoven, featuring "The Moonlight Sonata," and the whole of the "Sonata Appassionata." Opus 57, considered a musical gem. Through the lines and stage setting, it was further explained, the audience is taken back a century to the Viennese lodgings of the composer at a time he was threatened with deafness.

Barton Bachman, who interprets the role of Beethoven, is well known in Pacific coast musical circles, having made a number of successful appearances. He is a member of the Redlands university faculty. In addition to being a musician of high order, Bachman is considered an actor of marked ability.

Other members of the cast are Richard McInerney as "Franz Werger," Janet Bachman, "Kachen," and Miss Ruth Rose, "Countess Guillelmi."

KAYAK GROUP PAYS VISIT TO NEWPORT SOON

NEWPORT BEACH, June 27.—The Kayak guards of Fullerton plan to make their initial appearance next Sunday, when they will visit Newport harbor in a body to thank Fred J. Lewis, widely known yachtsman and world traveler and explorer, for his help in the organization and working of their club.

During one of his visits to the waters of the far north, some months ago, Lewis secured a perfect example of the Eskimo boat builders' art in the shape of a walrus hide covered native made kayak. On his return to home waters this kayak was loaned to R. A. Marsden of the staff of the Fullerton Union High school and the manual arts class of the school undertook to make a number of similar boats, using canvas in place of walrus hide.

Going a step further, a kayak club was formed, each member of the club to build his own kayak, as a result of which 25 kayaks of the Eskimo type were built and two of a Danish model. The boats weigh about 50 pounds.

Having completed the preliminaries of their organization, the boys are coming to Newport next Sunday for an official christening party. Following the launching of the kayaks, they will travel down the bay to pay an official call on Lewis. At the same time their leader will confer with Don Douglas, tournament of lights official, to plan an entry for the group in the forthcoming tournament, which will be held on July 23.

HUNTINGTON BEACH TRUSTEES LET CONTRACTS ON NEW SCHOOL; WORK STARTS WITHIN TWO WEEKS

HUNTINGTON BEACH, June 27.—The elementary school board has accepted the bid for the new school building made by Bannister and Field of Los Angeles, according to announcement of W. J. Bristol, member of the board. There were 11 bids on the general contract. The bid of Bannister and Field was $189,924.

The plumbing contract went to Hickman Brothers of Long Beach on a bid of $11,350. The Cave Electric company of Santa Ana was given the electric contract on a bid of $11,935. The American Engineering company of Los Angeles received the heating contract at $15,997.

Allison and Allison, architects of Long Beach and builders of the high school here, will be the architects on the elementary school, which is to be of reinforced steel and concrete, earthquake proof. It is being built with state aid under the Green bill plan.

Bristol stated that all contracts as accepted by the board must, under the Green plan, be approved by the state, before their acceptance is final. This formality is expected to pass the state without delay, and it is expected, Bristol stated, that actual construction work on the new school will start within about two weeks, and the building be completed, ready for use, probably by the opening of school next term.

The elementary school board has also adopted the budget for the next school year, which provides for a total appropriation of $172,355, about $5000 more than last year. The board does not expect to increase the tax rate.

Summer Concerts To Begin Saturday In Garden Grove

PLAN FESTIVAL ASSOCIATION IN LAGUNA BEACH

LAGUNA BEACH, June 27.—Definite steps looking toward the formation of a permanent organization charged with managing and operating the annual fiesta known as the Festival of Arts, were taken yesterday at the regular luncheon meeting when a committee on organization was appointed. Capt. George A. Portus, managing secretary of the chamber, presided over the meeting, which was attended by a large number of business and professional men.

After announcing the subject to be taken up for discussion, Captain Portus turned the gavel over to Andrew S. Hall, local real estate operator, who last year managed the fiesta. The desirability of creating a permanent organization, duly incorporated under the law of California, was stressed by several speakers, who gave voice to the thought that temporary and makeshift organizations, lacking financial responsibility, would prove unsatisfactory.

The chair was authorized to name a committee of organization which is to submit a temporary draft of a constitution and by-laws at the next chamber of commerce luncheon meeting set for next Tuesday. Chairman Hall named the following to the committee: Dr. Luther F. Mallow, Charles Kaichen, Leslie Kimball, Arthur C. Peterson, Frank D. Revere and Dr. D. R. Hamman. It was decided to incorporate the new organization under the name of Festival of Arts Association of Laguna Beach, with offices located here.

FARM CENTER TOLD OF SPIDER CONTROL

LA HABRA, June 27.—Talks on "The Red Spider and 'Morning Glory Control'" and decision to postpone the next meeting until September featured the meeting of the La Habra Farm Center Monday night.

N. M. Launer was appointed chairman of a committee to study a resolution adopted by the county farm bureau in May urging the county supervisors to develop long term projects.

Fifty members were present at the meeting and Edmund Canfield, of La Habra, was program chairman. Dr. A. M. Boyce, assistant entomologist of the Citrus Experiment station at Riverside, spoke on "The Red Spider." Dr. Boyce stated that in the last two weeks the appearance of red spider in the groves is alarming. This is due, he said, to the mild weather experienced so far this summer, and that some real hot weather would probably eradicate the spider. Dr. Boyce gave some of the methods used in ridding the groves of the spider, such as sprays.

Ethelbert Johnson, deputy agriculture county, spoke on ETAOI cultural commissioner for Orange county, spoke on "Morning Glory Control." This common weed pest, he said, came chiefly from the distribution of bean straw in the grove as a fertilizer.

DONNA of the BIG TOP by BEULAH POYNTER

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Donna Gabrielle, performer, falls from the trapeze and is injured. To please her partner, Madeline Siddal, Donna goes to Madeline's home to recuperate, pretending to be the other girl. She is ashamed of the deception but keeps it even when Bill Siddal, Madeline's cousin, asks her to marry him. Bill and Donna are married.

Meanwhile Madeline, discharged by Donna, is her enemy. Amos Siddal, Madeline's grandfather, has a stroke.

Next morning he goes to see Con who shows him the certificate of his marriage to Madeline. Bill thinks his wife has committed bigamy. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XLIV
Donna awakened with a feeling of impending disaster. For a few minutes she lay on the couch, conscious only of a crushing sensation and a bewilderment that she should not be in her own bed. It was still dark and deathly quiet. The wind had ceased to moan through the trees and the snow to flutter against the windows. In the stillness she missed something—the audible breathing of her husband.

That frightened her and she slid from the couch and went into the bedroom. Bill was gone but the bed had been slept in and Bill's work clothes were missing. She looked at the clock and saw that it was almost six. He must be outside, attending to the cattle.

While she was dressing there was a knock at the door. "It's Miss Perkins. Are you awake, Mr. Siddal?"

Donna opened the door. "My husband has gone out," she said. "What is it?"

"Your grandfather is breathing strangely. I can't rouse him. I think he had better send for the doctor."

"Telephone him," Donna said with a catch in her throat. "I'll dress as quickly as I can. Mr. Siddal must be out in the stables. I'll see if I can find him."

sick room when Donna reached the lower floor. "I got Dr. Freeman on the phone," she whispered, "but it will take him an hour to get here. He (nodding toward the motionless figure on the bed) is just the same. It looks like a coma to me."

Donna pressed her hand against her mouth and battled with the sob that rose in her throat. "I wonder if Dr. Freeman can never make it out here in the snow! Telephone him again, please, and find out. If he hasn't a sleigh I'll send Bill after him."

She bent over the old man long enough to whisper his name and to realize that it was useless to try to get him to speak. Then she trapped a heavy shawl about her neck and ran out of the house towards the barn. She called Bill's name several times but received no answer. The path, cut through the drifts, and the cows, munching peacefully in their stalls, informed her that Bill had completed his chores though he was no place to be seen.

Bewildered, anxious, she returned to the house. In the kitchen Minnie was getting breakfast. "Miss Perkins asked I should make her some coffee," Grandpa Siddal is worse," she said.

"Yes, has my husband come in?" "No. And there's no milk. He must be milking the cows."

"No, he isn't. Give me some coffee, Minnie. I'm going after Dr. Freeman. My husband must be somewhere on the farm but we can't wait for him."

She swallowed the coffee so hot it burned her throat but she did not feel the pain. Her thoughts were leaping from one tragic event to another. It was ominous that Bill was not to be found. Grandfather was unquestionably sinking. He had never been like this. If he died before she could get assistance, and in Bill's absence, she would feel like a murderer.

When she discovered that the bobbed was gone she was stunned. Bill must have gone to town before 6 o'clock. That could mean but one thing—he had learned of her meeting with Con David!

Somehow Mrs. Planter had gotten into a malicious gossip had borne bitter fruit. That accounted for Bill's attitude the night before. That was why he had tricked her into a lie, and that lie had been her ruin! He would see Con and Con would tell him the truth! Now Grandfather was lying and Bill was with her enemy!

Donna wiped her wet cheeks with a fold of the shawl and ran back to the house. Mr. Siddal had gone back to town," she said breathlessly. "All we can do is ask the doctor to come in his car. How is Grandfather?"

Miss Perkins shook her head. "No better."

"Donna knelt beside the bed, resting her cold cheek against the withered one. "Grandpa, can you hear me? You mustn't leave us now when we are in so much trouble. I need you! You'll never know how much I need you. You know, don't you, that I love you? Bill will never forgive me, but you will. You'll understand. You said intentions—and my intentions weren't wrong. I was just a coward—afraid of hurting you and Bill and losing the only love I have ever known! Oh, Grandfather, you mustn't die! Not until I can explain everything. Not until you do the right thing by Bill and until I know you forgive me!"

She thought she saw his eyelids flutter, and continued murmuring words of love and contrition. Tears were rolling down her cheeks. Again and again she pressed her trembling lips against the shiveled ones, unconscious that the nurse had returned.

"Mrs. Siddal," the nurse shook her gently. "Mrs. Siddal!" Donna raised her swimming eyes. "Please get up. He can't hear you. He's dead!"

"Dead?" Donna dropped back and let her hands fall in her lap. "Dead? He can't be! Without Bill to say goodbye—without knowing me or—"

"He's dead, my dear. Come!" The nurse bent over and lifted her to her feet.

"He was dying when you went out to get the sleigh. He died while you were sitting there. Poor child, don't grieve so. You knew it was only a matter of weeks. He was so old—"

Donna moved from her embrace, walked unsteadily to the window and pressed her face against it. Grief over losing the kindest, dearest friend she had ever known banished thoughts of self and future. Her sense of loss obliterated everything else.

confidence that he would join his loved ones on the awakening. He knew the guilt she suffered, but he could do nothing to help her. Nothing to right the wrong she had done his boy. It was too late.

Suddenly great wracking sobs tore at her slim body. She tried to stifle them, but they escaped. She wanted to beat at the window and smash the pane of glass with her bare hands, to feel the blood trickle down her wrists and suffer physical pain that would relieve the horrible anguish. She knew that in a few minutes she would scream, shrieking the truth—that she, an impostor, had ruined the life of Amos Siddal's only living relative, had robbed him of his inheritance and stolen the love that should never have been hers.

When Miss Perkins again put her arm about girl and led her from the room she made no protest. "Take this, dear," the nurse whispered and put a glass to her lips.

Donna lay down on the living room sofa. The floor rocked with her. She seemed to be floating in the air. Her lids dropped and she slept.

She heard a mumble of voices. At first they seemed far away. Then she opened her eyes. Through a hazy veil she picked out three figures standing in the doorway. A woman and two men. The woman wore a white uniform and the men were in overcoats. One coat was a dark racoon and there was a cap on the man's head, pushed far back from thick dark hair.

Bill had a racoon coat and a cap like that. But Bill had gone away. No—Bill was standing there. They were telling him that Grandfather was dead.

"We tried to find you," Miss Perkins said, "but there was nothing that could have been done. You mustn't blame yourself."

Donna raised herself on one elbow. "Bill!" she said.

He turned and looked at her. There was hatred in his eyes—a bitter, scathing scorn that seemed to penetrate through her clothing and sear her very vitals. She shrank back, covering her face with her hands. But her hands could not blind her to the expression on his face.

"Leave us alone," he said crisply to the others.

Then he crossed to the sofa. "I know the truth," he said slowly. "I know all about Con David."

"Yes," she could not look at him.

"You know it's the end between us?"

"Yes, I know it."

LAGUNA GROUP READY TO GIVE CONCEPT PLAY

LAGUNA BEACH, June 27.—Music lovers as well as theater fans of the art colony are looking forward to the presentation next Friday and Saturday nights of Beethoven's "Symphony," a concert drama, at the Little Art theater on Thalia street.

The performance is a play in which the music is used as a part of action of the play, it was explained by Wayne Moore, director of the Little Art theater. The play, he added, is built around the life and character and the music of Beethoven, featuring "The Moonlight Sonata," and the whole of the "Sonata Appassionata Opus 57," condensed to a musical form. Through the lines and stage setting, it was further explained, the audience is taken back a century to modest Viennese lodgings of the composer at a time he was threatened with deafness.

Barton Bachman, who interprets the role of Beethoven, is well known in Pacific coast musical circles, having made a number of successful appearances. He is a member of the Redlands university faculty. In addition to being a musician of high order, Bachman is considered an actor of marked ability.

Other members of the cast are Richard McInerney as "Don Juan," Janet Bachman, "Kachan," and Miss Ruth Rose, "Countess Guilelotta." The production is by the Little Art theater.

KAYAK GROUP PAYS VISIT TO NEWPORT SOON

NEWPORT BEACH, June 27.—The Kayak guards of Fullerton plan to make their initial appearance next Sunday, when they will visit Newport harbor in a body to thank Fred J. Lewis, widely known yachtsman and world traveler and explorer, for his help in the organization and working of their club.

During one of his visits to the waters of the far north, some months ago, Lewis secured a perfect example of the Eskimo boat builders' art in the shape of a kayak, which he covered with native kayaks. On his return to home waters this kayak was loaned to R. A. Marsden of the staff of the Fullerton Union High school and the manual arts class of the school undertook to make a number of similar boats, using canvas in place of walrus hide.

Going a step further, a kayak club was formed, each member of the club to build his own kayak, as a result of which 25 kayaks of the Eskimo type were built and two of a Danish model. The boats weigh about 50 pounds.

Having completed the preliminaries of their organization, the boys are coming to Newport next Sunday for an official christening party. Following the launching of the kayaks, they will travel down the bay to pay an official call on Lewis. At the same time their journey will confer with Don Douglas, tournament of lights official, to plan an entry for the group in the forthcoming tournament, which will be held on July 28.

This formality is expected to pass the state without delay, and it is expected, Bristol stated, that actual construction work on the new school will start within about two weeks, and the building be completed, ready for use, probably by the opening of school next term.

The elementary school board has also adopted the budget for the next school year, which provides for a total appropriation of $172,255, about $5000 less than last year. The board does not expect to increase the tax rate.

PLAN FESTIVAL ASSOCIATION IN LAGUNA BEACH

LAGUNA BEACH, June 27.—Definite steps looking toward the formation of a permanent organization charged with managing and operating the annual fiesta known as the Festival of Arts, were taken yesterday at the regular chamber of commerce weekly luncheon meeting when a committee on organization was appointed. Capt. George A. Portus, managing secretary of the chamber, presided over the meeting, which was attended by a large number of business and professional men.

After announcing the subject to be taken up for discussion, Captain Portus turned the gavel over to Andrew S. Hall, local real estate operator, who last year managed the fiesta. The desirability of creating a permanent organization, duly incorporated under the laws of California, was stressed by several speakers, who gave voice to the thought that temporary and makeshift organizations, lacking financial responsibility, would prove unsatisfactory.

The chair was authorized to name a committee of organization which is to submit a temporary draft of a constitution and by-laws at the next chamber of commerce luncheon meeting set for next Tuesday. Chairman Hall named the following to the committee: Dr. Luther F. Mallow, Charles Kaichen, Leslie Kimmel, Arthur C. Peterson, Frank D. Hovener and Dr. D. R. Hoffman. It was decided to incorporate the new organization under the name of Festival of Arts Association of Laguna Beach, with offices located here.

In the stillness she missed something—the audible breathing of her husband.

That frightened her and she slid from the couch and went into the bedroom. Bill was gone but the bed had been slept in and Bill's work clothes were missing. She looked at the clock and saw that it was almost six. He must be outside, attending to the cattle.

While she was dressing there was a knock at the door. "It's Miss Perkins. Are you awake, Mr. Siddall?" Donna opened the door. "My husband has gone out," she said. "What is it?"

"Your grandfather is breathing strangely. I can't rouse him. I think we had better send for the doctor."

"Telephone him," Donna said with a catch in her throat. "I'll dress as quickly as I can. Mr. Siddall must be out in the stables. I'll see if I can find him."

She left the door open and she heard the nurse going down the stairs, heard her voice as she called for Dr. Freeman. If grandfather was dying, if he left everything to Madeline it meant Bill would be cheated out of what was rightfully his and the man who had no right to all these acres would be heir to them. More than that, Donna herself would be dragged into court, to be proven a cheat and a fraud.

Donna reached the lower floor. "I got Dr. Freeman on the phone," she whispered, "but it will take him an hour to get here. He" (nodding toward the motionless figure on the bed) "is just the same. It—looks like a coma to me."

Donna pressed her hand against her mouth and held it there as she sobbed that rose in her throat. "I wonder if Dr. Freeman has a sleigh? If he hasn't he can never make it out here in the snow! Telephone him again, please, and find out. If he hasn't a sleigh I'll send Bill after him."

She bent over the old man long enough to whisper his name and to realize that it was useless to try to get him to speak. Then she wrapped a heavy shawl about herself and ran out of the house towards the barn. She called Bill's name several times but received no answer. The path, cut through the drifts, and the cows, munching peacefully in their stalls, informed her that Bill had completed his chores though he was no place to be seen.

Bewildered, anxious, she returned to the house. In the kitchen Minnie was getting breakfast. "Miss Perkins asked I should make her some coffee. Grandpa Siddall is worse," she said.

"Yes. Has my husband come in?" "No. And there's no milk. He work be milking the cows."

"No, he isn't. Give me some coffee, Minnie. I'm going after Dr. Freeman. My husband must be somewhere on the farm but we can't wait for him."

She swallowed the coffee so hot it burned her throat but she did not feel the pain. Her thoughts were leaping from one tragic event to another. It was ominous that Bill was not to be found. Grandfather was unquestionably sinking. He had never been like this. If he died before she could get assistance, and in Bill's absence, she would feel like a murderer.

When she discovered that the bobbed was gone she was stunned. Bill must have gone to town before 6 o'clock. The could mean but one thing—he had learned of her meeting with Con David! Somehow Mrs. Planter had gotten in touch with him, and the ord of a malicious gossip had borne bitter fruit. That accounted for Bill's attitude the night before. That was why he had tricked her into a lie, and that lie had been her ruin! He would see Con and Con would tell him the truth! Now Grandfather was lying and Bill was with her enemy!

Standing there in the snow, she wrung her hands and sobbed bitterly. But it was only a short time before she regained control of herself. Dr. Freeman must be telephoned again.

Donna wiped her wet cheeks with a fold of the shawl and ran back to the house. Mr. Siddall had come back to town, she said breathlessly. "All we can do is ask the doctor to come in his car. How is Grandfather?"

Miss Perkins shook her head. "No better."

Donna knelt beside the bed, resting her cold cheek against the withered one. "Grandpa, can you hear me? You mustn't leave us now when we are in so much trouble. I need you! You'll never know how much I need you. You know, don't you, that I love you? Bill will never forgive me, but you will. You'll understand. You said intentions—my intentions weren't wicked. I was just a coward—afraid of hurting you and Bill and losing the only love I have ever known! Oh, Grandfather, you mustn't die! Not until I can explain everything. Not until you do the right thing by Bill and until I know you forgive me!"

She thought she saw his eyelids flutter, and continued murmuring words of love and contrition. Tears were rolling down her cheeks. Again and again she pressed her trembling lips against the shivered ones, unconscious that the nurse had returned.

"Mrs. Siddall! The nurse shook her gently. "Mrs. Siddall!" Donna raised her swimming eyes. "Please get up. He can't hear you. He's dead."

"Dead?" Donna dropped back and her hands fell in her lap. "Dead? He can't be! Without Bill to say good-by—without knowing me?"

"He's dead, my dear. Come!" The nurse bent over and lifted her to her feet.

"He was dying when you went out to get the sleigh. He died while you were sitting there. Poor child, don't grieve so. You knew it was only a matter of weeks. He was so old—" confidence that he would join his loved ones on the awakening. He knew now what she had done, knew the guilt she suffered, but he could do nothing to help her. Nothing to take the wrong she had done his boy. It was too late.

Suddenly great wracking sobs tore at her slim body. She tried to stifle them, but they escaped. She wanted to beat at the window and smash the pane of glass with her bare hands, to feel the blood trickle down her wrists and suffer physical pain that would relieve the horrible anguish. She knew that in a few minutes she would scream, shrieking the truth—that she, an impostor, had ruined the life of Amos Siddall's only living relative, had robbed him of his inheritance and stolen the love that should never have been hers.

When Miss Perkins again put her arm about girl and led her from the room she made no protest. "Take this, dear," the nurse whispered and put a glass to her lips.

Donna lay down on the living room sofa. The floor rocked with her. She seemed to be floating in the air. Her lids dropped and she slept.

She heard a mumble of voices. At first they seemed far away. Then she opened her eyes. Through a hazy veil she picked out three figures standing in the doorway. A woman and two men. The woman wore a white uniform and the men were in overcoats. One coat was a dark raccoon and there was a cap on the man's head, pushed far back from thick dark hair.

Bill had a raccoon coat, and a cap like that. But Bill had gone away. No—Bill was standing there. They were telling him that Grandfather was dead.

"We tried to find you," Miss Perkins said, "but there was nothing that could have been done. You mustn't blame yourself."

Donna raised herself on one elbow. "Bill!" she said.

He turned and looked at her. There was hatred in his eyes—a bitter, scathing scorn that seemed to penetrate through her clothing and sear her very vitals. She shrank back, covering her face with her hands. But her hands could not blind her to the expression on his face.

"Leave us alone," he said crisply to the others.

Then he crossed to the sofa. "I know the truth," he said slowly. "I know all about Con David."

"Yes," she could not look at him.

"You know it's the end between us?"

"Yes, I know it."

SUGGEST NON-PROFIT BASIS FOR LIQUOR BUSINESS UNDER U. S. OWNERSHIP, OPERATION

(EDITOR'S NOTE) We are in receipt of the article below. We know the author, and while we would not say we approve it in its entirety, yet it evidences such thought and wisdom that we desire to send it broadcast to the readers of The Register.)

1. The regulation and control of the liquor traffic is a major economic, social and political problem. The evidence of this appears in the rapidly increasing attention being given to it:

- In current newspapers and magazines.
  - In county and state conventions of Parent-Teacher associations, women's clubs and churches.
  - In the large set-up of enforcement machinery.
- A front line battalion of 1400 men was recently delegated to combat liquor law violators, under Captain Sayles, U. S. N., retired. The enforcement army calls for 4000 men.
- The field organization will operate from regional offices located in twelve major cities.

In addition to this federal set-up there is the vast machinery of the states and smaller political units. All this indicates a major problem.

II. The New Deal called for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and promised many benefits as a result therefrom. Repeal was accomplished but the promised benefits have not been realized. The plan proposed by the New Deal for the regulation and control of the liquor traffic is a tragic failure. The proof of this is shown in:

- The large and increasing number of liquor stores, most of which are plain booze joints, for all intents and purposes—saloons. There are ninety in Santa Ana, over 6000 in Los Angeles, as against 200 in pre-prohibition days, and over 700,000 in the United States, in contrast to 177,799 before the adoption of the prohibition law.
- Many sales to minors including, especially, high school boys and girls. In this connection note the investigation and report of the Los Angeles Board of Education and a similar investigation and report in Santa Ana, uniting with Boards of Education in California, the Congress of Parent-Teacher associations is conducting campaigns against selling liquors to students.
- The alarming increase in drunkenness. Los Angeles reports 7622 arrests for drunkenness during last December, as against 3772 for the same period in 1933. According to Judge Falconer, drunks have increased in the Los Angeles night court, 129 per cent since repeal. Since repeal, drunkenness has increased 55.5 per cent in New York (wide open under prohibition). 634 per cent in Duluth; 116.6 per cent in Denver, and 1000 per cent in Philadelphia.

According to Police Commissioner Krumm, Redlands shows an increase in April, 1934, of 600 per cent over April, 1933.

According to late statistics returns from leading American cities, the arrests for drunkenness in 350 cities this year will exceed by 250,000 the number of such arrests during the worst year of prohibition.

4. Increase in drunken driving and accidents resulting therefrom.

Extracts from statement issued by Raymond Cato, chief, California Highway Patrol:

"For several weeks the California Highway Patrol has watched with growing concern the alarming rate of increase of accidents in which drunken driving was involved in California."

"Drunkenness at the wheel or afoot was blamed for 310 fatal auto accidents."

"Drinking figured in 3803 serious traffic accidents, an increase of 26 per cent over 1932, while the percentage of these that resulted in death ran even higher than the proportion for other years."

"I am particularly disappointed over the figures because I had felt the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment would not only put an end to intolerable conditions that were breeding crime, but would also result in less drinking."

"Our figures for the full year of 1933 show an appalling increase. Indeed, they show a 40 per cent increase in fatal accidents involving drunken driving and a 26 per cent increase in all types of accidents in which drinking played a part."

"Reports received by us for January of this year indicate an increase of more than 11 per cent in fatalities involving drunken driving over January of 1933."

5. Increase in the number of bootleggers and moonshiners.

Raymond Moley says in a recent issue of his magazine, Today, "More than one-half of all liquor sold on the market is being sold illegally."

From a recent report of Joseph Choate, federal alcohol administrator, it appears that more illicit liquor is sold than legal liquor. Illicit stills, already confiscated, had a larger capacity than legal distillers and only a small fraction of them have been put out of business. The larger part of the revenue from the reconstituted rum traffic goes into the pockets of the bootleggers and through the financing liberally the gangsters of the underworld. "Bootlegging has increased 100 per cent since the repeal of prohibition." How can it be otherwise when five gallons of alcohol can be bought for $7.50 and the federal tax thereon is $19.00? The profit of $11.50 is the reward for bootlegging.

Representative O'Connor, Democrat repeal leader of New York, says: "Repeal thus far has failed and strict liquor regulations have opened new avenues for enforcement graft and political influence than ever existed before."

In view of the New Deal's failure to regulate and control the liquor traffic, what remedy other than national prohibition should be considered? Here is one:

III. Should the Federal Government own and operate exclusively and on a non-profit basis the liquor business of the United States with provision for state, county and municipal prohibition? In support of this plan the following benefits are cited:

- Illicit manufacturing would cease.
- Boot-legging would cease.
- Beer gardens and liquor dance halls would disappear.
- There would be fewer liquor stores and they would not be located near schools and churches nor in strictly residential districts.
- Liquor advertising, high powered salesmanship and all wet propaganda would cease.
- "Dry" political units would outlaw the traffic and be protected in their action. Experience has shown that the liquor business, operated for profit, whether illegally under prohibition or legally under license, is lawless and a law-defying business.

As Josiah Strong once said: "Ever since the greed of gold sold the Christ and raffled for his garments, it has crucified every form of virtue between heaven and earth."

Take the profit out of the liquor business and many of its attendant evils would be prevented.

NOTE: Since the above was prepared, the New York East conference of the Methodist Episcopal church called for: "Social ownership of the means of liquor production, distribution and sale without profit to anyone, not even the government."

From a recent report of Joseph Choate, federal alcohol administrator, it appears that more illicit liquor is sold than legal liquor. Illicit stills, already confiscated, had a larger capacity than legal distillers and only a small fraction of them have been put out of business. The larger part of the revenue from the resuscitated rum traffic goes into the pockets of the bootleggers and through the financing of the gangsters of the underworld. "Bootlegging has increased 100 per cent since the repeal of prohibition." How can it be otherwise when five gallons of alcohol can be bought for $7.50 and the federal tax thereon is $19.00? The profit of $11.50 is the reward for bootlegging.

Representative O'Connor, Democrat, repeal leader of New York, says: "Repeal thus far has failed, and strict liquor regulations have opened more avenues for enforcement graft and political influence than ever existed before."

A recent issue of the Times-Star of St. Louis states: "St. Louis is back under the dictatorship of the brewers and distillers, with brewers fixing their own tax and license rates."

In view of the New Deal's failure to regulate and control the liquor traffic, what remedy other than national prohibition should be considered? Here is one:

III. Should the Federal Government own and operate exclusively and on a non-profit basis the liquor business of the United States with provision for state, county and municipal prohibition?

In support of this plan the following benefits are cited:

1. Illicit manufacturing would cease.

2. Boot-legging would cease. Boot-leggers boot-leg for money. Moonshiners moon-shine for money.

3. Beer garden and liquor dance halls would disappear.

4. There would be fewer liquor stores and they would not be located near schools and churches nor in strictly residential districts.

5. Liquor advertising, high powered salesmanship and all wet propaganda would cease.

6. "Dry" political units would outlaw the traffic and be protected in their action. Experience has shown that the liquor business, operated for profit, whether illegally under prohibition or legally under license, is lawless and a law-defying business.

As Josiah Strong once said: "Ever since the greed of gold sold the Christ and raffled for his garments, it has crucified every form of virtue between thieves."

"Take the profit out of the liquor business and many of its attendant evils would be prevented."

NOTE: Since the above was prepared, the New York East conference of the Methodist Episcopal church called for "Social ownership of the means of liquor production, distribution and sale without profit to anyone, not even the government."

Seek Concerted Action On Water Plan For County

COMMITTEE OF BOOSTER GROUP UNIFYING AGENT

The water committee of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Orange county was empowered to act as the agent of the Associated in an attempt to unite all water interests in the county to further opportunity for government aid on a water development and flood control program along the Santa Ana river in Orange county, at a meeting of the Associated last night in Peacock Tavern, near Costa Mesa.

J. E. Lewis, chairman of the committee, gave a report on the matter, which was unanimously adopted in a vote. The report asked authority to proceed with a plan to unite all water interests in the county on a general water plan which can be presented to the government.

Discussion in discussion on the water program was conspicuously absent at the meeting, the general feeling seeming to be that the water interests of the county are closer to reaching a harmonious understanding than they ever have been.

Urges Road Extension
A resolution presented by George Kellogg, chairman of the highways committee at the last session, which urged the state highway department to extend South Main street to the coast and the board of supervisors to cooperate in securing rights of way, was adopted.

A motion made by Harry M. May, secretary of the Fullerton Chamber of Commerce, asking that a Southern California code authority for trucking concerns be set up instead of the state-wide authority located at San Francisco, was adopted.

Dr. C. G. Huston, president of the Coast association, urged members of the Associated to attend a meeting with the San Diego county coast group to be held in San Clemente on July 17.

J. A. Knapp, chairman of the taxation committee, reported that by the next meeting his committee would have recommendations to make regarding taxes.

Tom B. Talbot and Judge Charles Patton announced a big Fourth of July celebration to be held in Huntington Beach which will be featured with a parade.

Introduce Candidates
President Talbot introduced aspirants for political offices, including Dr. C. G. Huston, candidate for supervisor in the fifth district; Harry D. Riley and C. E. Jackson, candidates for sheriff; Assemblyman Edward T. Craig and James B. Utt; and Supervisor Willard Smith, candidate for re-election from the second district.

The address of welcome was made by Assemblyman Utt and the response was given by Ross Shaffer.

Harry Welch reported that borings in the Newport harbor are well under way and probably will be completed within 10 days.

George Kellogg reported that the Manchester avenue program is deadlocked because of differences over rights of way, but that the differences are expected to be ironed out by next month.

Members of Associated voted to meet in Laguna Beach in July, in Huntington Beach in August and in Midway City in September.

TWO SOLOISTS ON PROGRAM OF PARK CONCERT

The second program of the Santa Ana Municipal band, at Birch park, at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow, under direction of Leland Auer, opens with the stirring march of the "Hostrausers," by the famous cornettist of yesterday, W. P. Chambers. This will be followed by the overture from Auber's opera, "Masaniello." The opera is vigorous, impressive and very dramatic in its movement.

Next will be heard that most beautiful of concert waltzes, "Valse Triste," by the pioneer of Finnish music, Jean Sibelius. The first soloist on the program will be Henry Freriks, well-known musician in Southern California and who is the concert master of the band. He will play C. M. von Weber's "Concertino" for clarinet, accompanied by the band.

Two items from Tchaikowski's "Casse Noisette" Suite (Nutcracker Suite), the "Minuet-Overture," somewhat in the style of Mozart, and the rather lively march, are next on the program, to be followed by the first two movements of Haydn's 11th or "Military" symphony. Ambrose Thomas' "Raymond" overture, "The Queen's Secret," will be followed by a cornet solo by Arthur Claar, the first cornettist of the band. He will play "Willow Echoes" by Frank Simon.

Theodore Tobani's fantasy on Hungarian melodies and the final number on the program, according to Auer, "again reminds us that Hungarian and Bohemian music shows a fondness for noisy and hilarious forms whose origin is in ardent social merrymaking, or for somewhat grandiose and sumptuous effects, such as imply a half-barbaric notion of splendor. In these respects this eastern music stands in contrast with the more personal and subjective musical poetry of the northern composers. Specially successful are its effects of vigor, of shining rhythm and accents, and of brilliant color in instrumentation."

GETS 30 DAYS ON PETTY THEFT COUNT

Originally held for investigation of attempted robbery and tried for petty theft, John Pasco, 55, Buena Park, was given a 30-day suspended jail sentence and 11 months of probation yesterday by Judge Halsey Spence of Fullerton.

Last Tuesday night, Pasco entered Hall's grocery store at Whitaker and Magnolia streets, Buena Park, and was surprised when Reesa Blythe of Buena Park came in the side door. Pasco is asserted to have threatened Blythe with a gun but when disarmed, the gun turned out to be a toy pistol.

Blythe ordered the man out and later spoke to Fullerton police about the incident. The case was turned over to the sheriff's office and deputies James Ragan and John Ragan arrested Pasco last night and booked him at the jail.

OBSERVANCE OF COUNTY HEALTH LAWS DEMANDED

As a precautionary measure against the spread of infantile paralysis, Dr. K. H. Sutherland, county health officer, has issued rigid instructions to proprietors of grocery stores and fruit and vegetable stands to abide by regulations of the California Board of Health.

The most important of these rules provides that fruits and vegetables must not be wrapped in old newspapers. If articles are first sacked or wrapped with plain paper, then an outer covering of newspapers may be used, providing the newspapers are purchased direct from the newspaper office and have never been distributed to subscribers. This is to eliminate old and dirty papers that may have passed through many hands before being used for wrappers, he said.

Other regulations which will be strictly enforced and which the public is asked to help observe, are as follows:

All dried fruits, berries, candied or soft fruits must be well protected against dirt and dust.

All fruits and vegetables must be kept at least 18 inches above the sidewalk or floor.

All fruit and vegetable stands must have covered cans for refuse

Officers Of 20-30 Club Installed

Installation of newly elected officers of the Twenty Thirty club took place last night at the past president's meeting held at La Casa Trabuca. Officers for the coming term include Dr. Lawrence Cameron, president; Wayne Harrison, first vice president; Lawrence Mitchell, second vice president; Terry Stephenson, secretary; J. Wylie Carlyle, treasurer; and Dr. G. Stanley Norton, sergeant-at-arms.

Entertainment features of the program were presented by various members of the club, Terry Stephenson, Dr. Norton, LeRoy Burns, and Wylie Carlyle were the principal entertainers. Hats were auctioned off by Dick Ewert. In the lining of three of the hats were numbered slips of paper, and the holders of the papers were given prizes.

The floor under the fruit and vegetable stands must be kept washed and in a clean and sanitary condition at all times.

It is unlawful to allow dogs, cats or other animals to run at large in the store or stand.

When fruits and vegetables are washed or sprinkled with water, the latter must be pure and free from contamination or any sort.

SPECIAL ACTS FOR PLAYERS' PROGRAM

Because the between the acts specialty numbers were so well received by the audience at the Friday night performance of Mid-night to Breakfast, last week, the management of the Eight O'Clock Players announced today that a big show of negro entertainment has been secured for this week, beginning at 8 o'clock tonight, in addition to the usual three-act play.

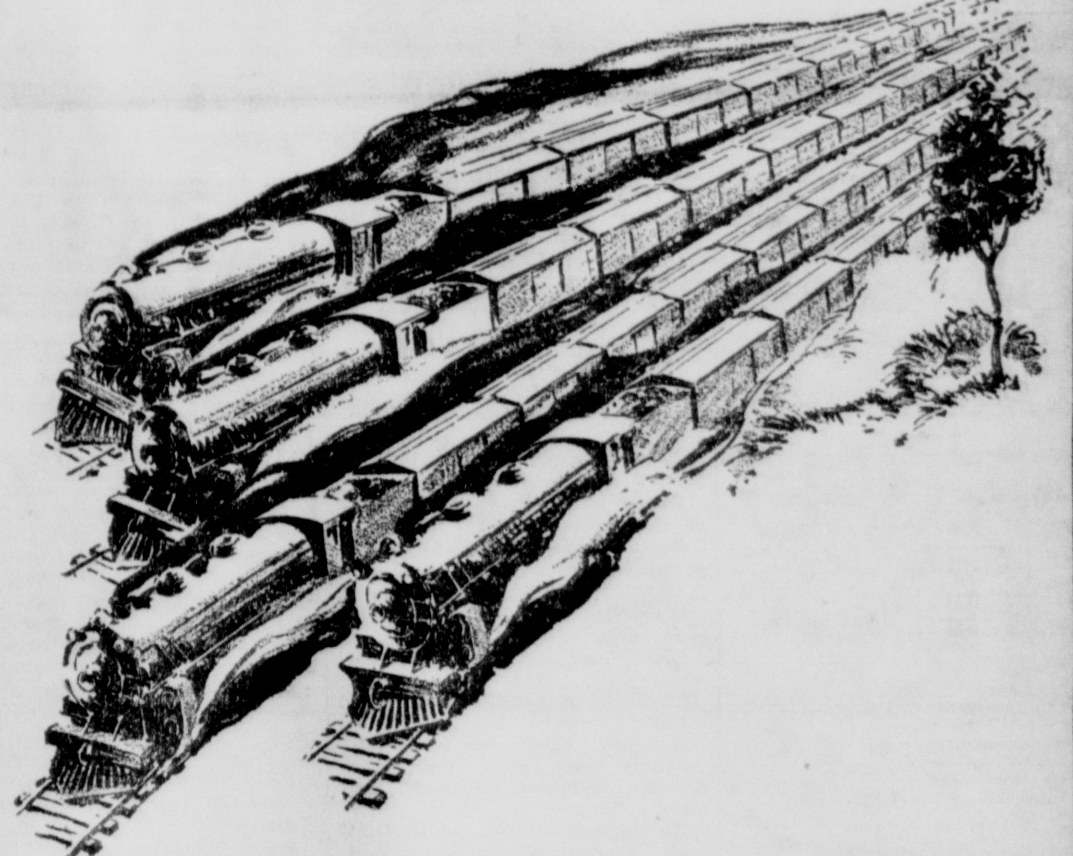

The Tennessee Jubilee singers will give a 30-minute program of negro and southern songs and dances before the first curtain of this week's play, "Hot Money." They will also present one of their number in songs and dances between the acts.

The play, "Hot Money," which, with the other entertainment, will run three days, starting tomorrow, is headed by Miss Vera Deane and Troy Kent, featured players of the group. They are supported by most of the same cast as last week, with the addition of a new player, Miss Vivian Rogers.

Blyth McCausland, business manager of the troupe, said that the big bill of specialties this week is an experiment, but that if it meets with the approval of Temple theater patrons it will be continued throughout the summer.

The shortest route from New York to China is over the North Pole.

One of Many Reasons Why So Many Prefer this Very Modern Refrigerator

It Operates for Only 2c a day!

An unprecedented demand for Electrolux, the gas refrigerator, is sweeping America.

Southern California, in company with every other section of the United States, is demanding more gas refrigerators than in any previous year.

Sales in Southern California, so far in 1934, have increased more than 100% over the same period last year.

MORE THAN FOUR TRAINLOADS of these modern refrigerators already have been shipped from the factory to meet the demands of Southern California's wise refrigerator buyers.

Why this great demand? The answer is simple. Electrolux is modern in all its appointments. It is permanently SILENT. It is economical to operate with a weekly cost of about fourteen cents!

And... it can be bought on easy terms.

spread of the disease. He explained the grove control program being carried on in this county, where the orchard disease is combated through a treatment with carbon bisulfide. These treatments were made in many parts of the county last winter by a CWA crew under the supervision of the agriculture department.

Upon discovering any trace of the oak root fungus, grove owners are advised to contact the agriculture office, which will seek an advisor to inspect the groves. The department cannot issue a booklet of general recommendations for treatment of the disease, Hewitt explains, because soil and other conditions are different.

Some soil requires only eight inches of carbon bisulfide, while other ground requires as high as 14.

LAFAYETTE, NASH ORDERS INCREASE

Forty-three nations throughout the world bought more Nash and Lafayette cars during the first five months of 1934 than were shipped to those same countries in all of 1933, it was reported today by William E. Otis, Fifth and Birch streets, local dealer.

Belgium, with an increase of 450 per cent, heads the list, Union of South Africa shows a 379 per cent gain, while Holland, Sweden and Australia register increases of over 200 per cent.

Orders still on hand from foreign distributors total 80 per cent of 1933 shipments.

OBSERVANCE OF COUNTY HEALTH LAWS DEMANDED

As a precautionary measure against the spread of infantile paralysis, Dr. K. H. Sutherland, county health officer, has issued rigid instructions to proprietors of grocery stores and fruit and vegetable stands to abide by regulations of the California Board of Health.

The most important of these rules provides that fruits and vegetables must not be wrapped in old newspapers. If articles are first sacked or wrapped with plain paper, then an outer covering of newspapers may be used, providing the newspapers are purchased direct from the newspaper office and have never been distributed to subscribers. This is to eliminate old and dirty papers that may have passed through many hands before being used for wrappers, he said.

Other regulations which will be strictly enforced and which the public is asked to help observe, are as follows:

All soft fruits, berries, candied or dried fruits must be well protected against dirt and dust.

All fruits and vegetables must be kept at least 18 inches above the sidewalk or floor.

All fruit and vegetable stands must have covered cans for refuse

Officers Of 20-30 Club Installed

Installation of newly elected officers of the Twenty Thirty club took place last night at the past president's meeting held at La Casa Trabuca. Officers for the coming term include Dr. Lawrence Cameron, president; Wayne Harrison, first vice president; Lawrence Mitchell, second vice president; Terry Stephenson, secretary; J. Wylie Carlyle, treasurer; and Dr. G. Stanley Norton, sergeant-at-arms.

Entertainment features of the program were presented by various members of the club. Terry Stephenson, Dr. Norton, LeRoy Burns, and Wylie Carlyle were the principal entertainers. Hats were auctioned off by Dick Ewert. In the lining of three of the hats were numbered slips of paper, and the holders of the papers were given prizes.

The floor under the fruit and vegetable stands must be kept washed and in a clean and sanitary condition at all times.

It is unlawful to allow dogs, cats or other animals to run at large in the store or stand.

When fruits and vegetables are washed or sprinkled with water, the latter must be pure and free from contamination or any sort.

SPECIAL ACTS FOR PLAYERS' PROGRAM

Because the between the acts specialty numbers were so well received by the audience at the Friday night performance of Mid-nite to Breakfast, last week, the management of the Elgin O'Clock Players announced today that a big show of negro entertainment has been secured for this week, beginning at 8 o'clock tonight, in addition to the usual three-act play.

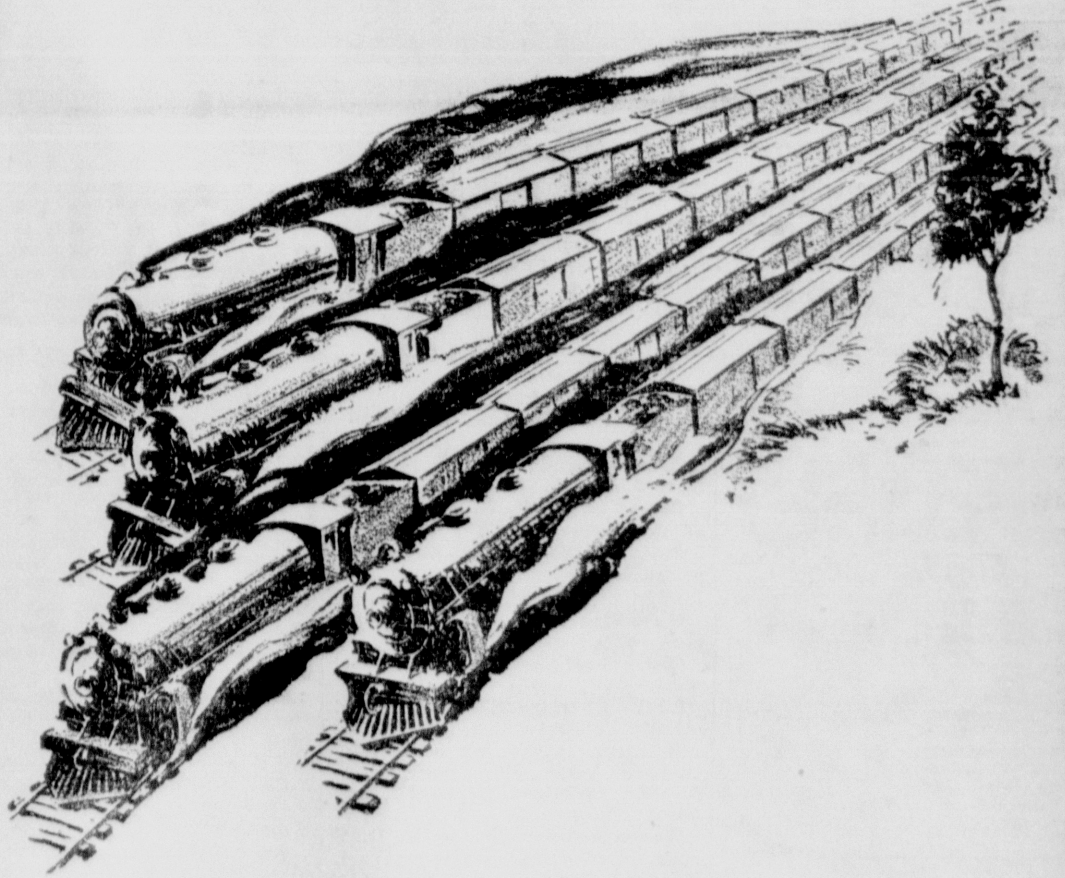

The Tennessee Jubilee singers will give a 30-minute program of negro and southern songs and dances before the first curtain of this week's play, "Hot Money." They will also present one of their number in songs and dances between the acts.

The play, "Hot Money," which, with the other entertainment, will run three days, starting tomorrow, is headed by Miss Vera Deane and Troy Kent, featured players of the group. They are supported by most of the same cast as last week, with the addition of a new player, Miss Vivian Rogers.

Blyth McCausland, business manager of the troupe, said that the big bill of specialties this week is an experiment, but that if it meets with the approval of Temple theater patrons it will be continued throughout the summer.

Gas Refrigerators By the Trainload for Southern California

One of Many Reasons Why So Many Prefer this Very Modern Refrigerator

An unprecedented demand for Electrolux, the gas refrigerator, is sweeping America.

Southern California, in company with every other section of the United States, is demanding more gas refrigerators than in any previous year.

Sales in Southern California, so far in 1934, have increased more than 100% over the same period last year.

MORE THAN FOUR TRAINLOADS of these modern refrigerators already have been shipped from the factory to meet the demands of Southern California's wise refrigerator buyers.

Why this great demand? The answer is simple. Electrolux is modern in all its appointments. It is permanently SILENT. It is economical to operate with a weekly cost of about fourteen cents!

And... it can be bought on easy terms.

It Operates for Only 2c a day!

Children Share Little Girl's Birthday Pleasures

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Crumley's home on Mountain View drive, Tustin, was setting for a merry affair given recently in celebration of the third birthday anniversary of their little daughter, Catherine Dawn Crumley.

Games interesting to the little tot during the early part of the afternoon were given up for a delightful interval during which refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. Guests were seated at a large table centered with a birthday confection frosted in white and lighted with pink candles. Cookies designed as rabbits marked each place, and favors were lollipops whose frilly pink and green dresses made them appear as dolls. Mrs. Crumley's sister, Mrs. Eloise Hickey, assisted in serving.

Pictures of the group were taken during the afternoon.

Sister Hostesses Give Bridge Party for Sorority

Cupid-signed Telegram Announces Couple's Engagement

No sooner had party guests assembled recently in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Junkett, 1226 West Fourth street, than a telegram signed by Dan Cupid arrived announcing the engagement of Miss Madge Russell and Leo Scott. The young couple did not reveal the date chosen for the marriage.

Guests were members of Christian Endeavor society of Silver Acres community church. They extended their congratulations to the engaged pair by filling out regulation telegraph blanks provided by Mrs. Junkett, who is the wife of the pastor of the church.

The remaining time was given over to games. Refreshments served included a decorated cake topped with bride and groom figures standing on a heart. Miss Esther Hoar assisted the hostess in various duties.

Present with Mr. and Mrs. Junkett and their small daughter, Dorothy Yvonne, were Mr. and Mrs. George Patterson and son Robert, and the Misses Jean Anderson, Eleanor Freuburg, Gladys Wilcox, Blanch Baker, Madge Russell, Edith Scott, Emma Russell, Ellen Russell, Esther Hoar, Norma Hess, Mrs. Gracie Lee Marriott and Messrs Orville Hurd, Wayne Weber, Foster Schultz, Leo Scott and William Whitaker.

Honeymoon in Yosemite Is Being Enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Rabe

Spending honeymoon days in Yosemite following their marriage Saturday, June 23 in First Methodist bride's chapel, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Rabe are to return soon to establish their home in Santa Ana, where the bridegroom is in business.

Both young people represent well known Santa Ana families, the bride as the former Miss Ralona Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd B. Smith, 1311 North Ross street and Mr. Rabe as the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Rabe, 918 Kilson drive.

Dr. George A. Warner, pastor, read the impressive service, which a family group had arranged at 10:30 o'clock in the morning. Banked with palms and lighted with tapers rising from slightly candelabra, the altar provided an effective background for the ceremony. Contributing a delicate charm to the scene were pink double larkspur and gladioluses arranged in a large basket.

Floyd B. Smith gave his daughter in marriage. She made a charming bride in her all white ensemble, worn with hat and other costume details in white. She carried a cluster of snowy gardenias tied with a satin bow.

Out of town guests at the wedding included Mrs. Fred Lewis of Ventura, former resident of Santa Ana, and a sister of the bridegroom.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Rabe attended Santa Ana High school and Junior college. Mr. Rabe is a photographer, and his bride has been doing finishing, tinting and other phases of work in his studio for the past three years.

Dinner
1 cup vegetable soup
4 heaping Tbsp. beef stew with fresh vegetables
Choice of:
1 large sliced watermelon
2-3 cup berries with 1 tsp. sugar
4 large ripe apricots
Calory total, from 425-500, depending on choice of fruit.

Steak tails left from a steak dinner, plus extra stew beef, make a sumptuous beef stew. Cut the meat in small pieces, cover with cold water, bring to a boil, then simmer until the meat is done. Take as much of the broth as needed for soup, add parboiled fresh vegetables to the broth for the soup, and to the cooked meat and broth a collection of fresh vegetables—carrots, zucchini, celery, green peas and string beans—partially cooked. Finish the cooking before the gravy is thickened.

The Milk and Orange Juice Diet
The third day dawned warm and clear, the sore spot left from the attack of neuritis, is rapidly diminishing, but my demanding stomach is settling food and liquid in the yelp for food. Coffee with hot skim milk (2 cups) began the day, orange juice preceding it, and the milk and orange juice were taken alternately at two-hour intervals.

It was notable that persistent constipation showed signs of being routed by the liquid diet, but it isn't wise to become too hepped up over the removal of this Ancient Mariner's albatross.

Weight at the end of the day was exactly the same as the day the diet began. (Continued tomorrow.)

Bread and Butter Pickles
12 medium onions, sliced
2 green peppers
Salt

Pickling Mixture
1-4 cup white mustard seed
1-2 cups vinegar
4-1-4 cups white sugar
1-2 quarts vinegar

—Contributed Recipe.
Six quarts of sliced, unpeeled cucumbers, unpeeled cucumbers can be made with the 3 dozen small pickles. Slice the onions over the cucumbers, then a sprinkling of sliced pepper, each layer well sprinkled with salt. Cover and weight down, let stand 3 hours, turn into a colander and drain well.

Bring the vinegar and sugar to a good boil, add the mustard seed, about 1 tablespoonful of celery seed, and the tumeric, previously mixed with a little cold water. When at the boil, add the drained sliced vegetables, and simmer the whole for 10 minutes. Seal while hot.

A heaping tablespoonful of this pickle has an approximate calory value of 50, due chiefly to the sugar.

If you are interested in diet, or simply curious about food value, you'll find a good calory list helpful and entertaining. You may have my list (330 items) with values listed in simple understandable terms. The requirements for getting the list are simple: Send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and a copy of one of your favorite recipes.

Farewell Party Held In Pretty Garden

She will go from here to Los Gatos for a short visit with her daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Argyle, before continuing east. She has been prominent in activities of Mrs. J. W. Law's Bible class of Calvary church, and some 40 members and friends of that group were assembled for the farewell party in the Nida home.

A covered dish dinner was enjoyed at 6 o'clock in the pretty garden of the home, with its grills and equipment for outdoor dining. An evening of genuine entertainment followed with games and contests engineered by different groups among the guests under general direction of Mrs. Josephine Blood.

As a final courtesy to Mrs. Sides, she was showered with pretty handkerchiefs by the Bible class members and guests.

Friendly Attentions Paid to Recently Wedded Couple

One of the first parties complimenting Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Patmore since their mid-June wedding, was a pantry shower given late the past week in the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Bradley, 302 Cypress street, with Dick Bradley as host.

A big laundry basket, provided as one of the shower gifts, was filled to overflowing with the staple supplies brought by the merry group of guests, to stock the pantry shelves of the young couple. After the gifts had been presented, the evening was spent in playing bridge, pool and other games and came to a close with the refreshment hour.

For this feature, guests sought the garden where hamburgers and wieners were toasted over the big outdoor grill, and served with sandwiches, pickles, coffee and watermelon.

Guests included in addition to the new Mr. and Mrs. Patmore, Dick and Mrs. Bradley, Messrs. Dick, Edwin and Ralph Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Patmore, the Misses Vera Getty, Adahurt Ellis, Neva McDonald, Messrs. Clarence Patmore and Harry Clayton.

The marriage of Oscar Patmore and Miss Alyce Brown was an event of June 16 in the Christian Advent church, Tustin, with the Rev. Howard Nason officiating. Miss Brown was gowned in pale blue crepe with touches of delicate pink in its trimming and in dress accessories Miss Vera Getty was her maid of honor and Dick Bradley served Mr. Patmore as best man.

Among events preceding the wedding was one special courtesy directed to the bridegroom, when Mr. Patmore was honored at a new party given in the Clark home at Culver's Corner. Cards and a Dutch-lunch were features of the lively evening, and when guests discovered that another of their group, Dwight Ahern, had recently wedded Miss Martha Drake, he too came in for his share of attention.

Among the guests in addition to the two of special interest, Mr. Patmore and Mr. Ahern, were Messrs. Dick Bradley, Stanley Newton, Fay Clark, Harvey Clark, Lloyd Trickey, Neal Selby, Clinton Selby, Emmett Second, Bud Staples, D. C. Hazen Selby, Wetz, Clarence Patmore, Herbert Myers, Kenneth Kaufman, Oliver Wetz, Dick White and Max Bush.

Former Jaycee Student Wedded in Van Nuys June 15

Santa Ana friends who have kept in touch with the Rev. Logan Harter family since Mr. Harter concluded several years' pastorate at the United Brethren church and went to a Sacramento charge, have been especially interested in learning of the marriage on June 15 of the son of the home, Melvin Hastings Harter, to Miss Margaret Huse of Van Nuys.

Melvin Harter was prominent in all Santa Ana High school and Junior college activities as he was at U. S. C. where he completed his course just about the time the family left Santa Ana. Later he entered Yale university and for the past year has had charge of an interesting parish at Seal Harbor, Maine, proceeding directly there from his graduate studies at Yale.

His bride is also a graduate of U. S. C. where she majored in music, and their wedding culminated a campus romance. They have been making a round of family visits in California and while with the Harters in Sacramento, were joined by the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Harter on a trip into the Yosemite, where they had the pleasure of meeting several Santa Ana friends including Miss Edith Cornell.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Harter will continue east by way of the Yellowstone National park and Chicago where they will visit the exposition, and afterwards stop in Indiana with relatives.

During the Rev. Logan Harter's pastorate here, his wife, Mrs. Bessie Harter, was one of the valuable teachers in the Americanization work of the Santa Ana schools.

Children Share Little Girl's Birthday Pleasures

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Crumley's home on Mountain View drive, Tustin, was setting for a merry affair given recently in celebration of the third birthday anniversary of their little daughter, Catherine Dawn Crumley.

Games interesting to the little tots during the early part of the afternoon were given up for a delightful interval during which refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. Guests were seated at a large table centered with a birthday confection frosted in white and lighted with pink candles. Cookies designed as rabbits marked each place, and favors were lollipops whose frilly pink and green dresses made them appear as dolls. Mrs. Crumley's sister, Mrs. Eloise Hickey, assisted in serving.

Pictures of the group were taken during the afternoon.

Children sharing the event with Catherine Dawn Crumley were Naomi Cluser, Juanita Cluser, Beverly Bullock, Helen Rogers, Betty Balser, Dorothy Lou Kimball, Mary Jane Bacon, Betty Lou Lancaster and the little son of the home, Master Bobbie Crumley.

Guests were members of Christian Endeavor society of Silver Acres community church. They extended their congratulations to the engaged pair by filling out regulation telegraph blanks provided by Mrs. Junkelt, who is the wife of the pastor of the church.

Honeymoon in Yosemite Is Being Enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Rabe

Spending honeymoon days in Yosemite following their marriage Saturday, June 23 in First Methodist bride's chapel, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Rabe are to return soon to establish their home in Santa Ana, where the bridegroom is in business.

Both young people represent well known Santa Ana families, the bride as the former Miss Ramona Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd B. Smith, 1311 North Ross street and Mr. Rabe as the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Rabe, 918 Kilson drive.

Dr. George A. Warner, pastor, read the impressive service, which a family group had arranged at 10:30 o'clock in the morning. Banked with palms and lighted with tapers rising from slightly candelabra, the altar provided an effective background for the ceremony. Contributing a delicate charm to the scene were pink double larkspur and gladioli arranged in a large basket.

Floyd B. Smith gave his daughter in marriage. She had a charming bride in her all white ensemble, worn with hat and other costume details in white. She carried a cluster of snowy gardenias tied with a satin bow.

Out of town guests at the wedding included Mrs. Fred Lewis of Ventura, former resident of Santa Ana, and a sister of the bridegroom.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Rabe attended Santa Ana High school and Junior college. Mr. Rabe is a photographer, and his bride has been doing finishing, tinting and other phases of work in his studio for the past three years.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

Dinner
1 cup vegetable soup
4 heaping Tbsp. beef stew with fresh vegetables
Choice of:
1 large slice watermelon
2-3 cup berries with 1 tsp. sugar
4 large ripe apricots
Iced tea or black coffee
Calory total, from 425-500, depending on choice of fruit.
Steak tails left from a steak dinner, plus extra beef, make a sumptuous beef stew. Cut the meat in small pieces, cover with cold water, bring to a boil, then simmer until the meat is done. Take as much of the broth as needed for soup, add parboiled fresh vegetables to the broth for the soup, and to the cooked meat and broth a collection of fresh vegetables—carrots, zucchini, celery, green peas and string beans—partially cooked. Finish the cooking before the gravy is thickened.

The Milk and Orange Juice Diet
The third day dawned warm and clear, the sore spot left from the attack of neuritis, is rapidly diminishing, but my demanding stomach is getting loud and louder in the yelp for food. Coffee with hot skim milk (2 cups) began the day, orange juice preceding it, and the milk and orange juice were taken alternately at two-hour intervals.

It was notable that persistent constipation showed signs of being routed by the liquid diet, but it isn't wise to become too hepped up over the removal of this Ancient Mariner's albatross.

Weight at the end of the day was exactly the same as the day the diet began. (Continued tomorrow.)

Iread and Butter Pickles
3 dozen dill-sized cucumbers
12 medium onions, sliced
2 green peppers
Salt
Pickling Mixture
1-4 cup white mustard seed
Celery seed to taste
1-2 tsps. tumeric
4-1-4 cups white sugar
1-2 quarts vinegar.

Contributed Recipe.
Six quarts of sliced, unpeeled cucumbers, unpeeled cucumbers can be made with the 3 dozen small pickles. Slice the onions over the cucumbers, then a sprinkling of sliced pepper, each layer well sprinkled with salt. Cover and weight down, let stand 3 hours, turn into a colander and drain well.

Bring the vinegar and sugar to a good boil, add the mustard seed, about 1 tablespoonful of celery seed, and the tumeric, previously mixed with a little cold water. When at the boil, add the drained sliced vegetables, and simmer the whole for 10 minutes. Seal while hot.

A heaping tablespoonful of this pickle has an approximate calory value of 50, due chiefly to the sugar.

Mexican Theme Gives Charm to Supper And Shower

Prominent among the parties with which friends have hastened to express interest in the recently announced plans of Miss Maurine Mathes and W. Floyd Croddy for their wedding on June 30, was the gal little Mexican supper given by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Parker in their home, 2344 North Broadway.

Decorations and table appointments conformed to the theme expressed in the supper menu served buffet style to the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Parker, their guests of honor, Miss Mathes and Mr. Croddy, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lowe, the Misses Clara McDearman, Marjorie Ann Mathes, William Playvan, Louise Young, Tessa Childers, Messrs. Carl Sanborn and Robert Gerwing.

Immediately after supper everyone enjoyed an interval when various pieces of kitchen equipment fell to the fortunate lot of the bride-to-be, object of a gift shower on the part of her friends. The remainder of the evening was devoted to bridge.

Farewell Party Held In Pretty Garden

Complimenting Mrs. Ida Sides before her departure at an early date for her former home, Champaign, Ill., was a delightful party given in the home of Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Nida on Ocean avenue, Garden Grove.

Mrs. Sides is concluding a two years' residence in Santa Ana where her charming personality has won her a host of friends. She will go from here to Los Gatos for a short visit with her daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Argyle, before continuing east. She has been prominent in activities of Mrs. J. W. Law's Bible class of Calvary church, and some 40 members and friends of that group were assembled for the farewell party in the Nida home.

A covered dish dinner was enjoyed at 6 o'clock in the pretty garden of the home, with its grill and equipment for outdoor dining. An evening of genuine entertainment followed with games and contests engineered by different groups among the guests under general direction of Mrs. Josephine Blood.

As a final courtesy to Mrs. Sides, she was showered with pretty handkerchiefs by the Bible class members and guests.

Friendly Attentions Paid to Recently Wedded Couple

One of the first parties complimenting Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Patmore since their mid-June wedding, was a pantry shower given late the past week in the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Bradley, 302 Cypress street, with Dick Bradley as host.

A big laundry basket, provided as one of the shower gifts, was filled to overflowing with the staple supplies brought by the merry group of guests to stock the pantry shelves of the young couple. After the gifts had been presented, the evening was spent in playing bridge, pool and other games and came to a close with the refreshment hour.

For this feature, guests sought the garden where hamburgers and wieners were toasted over the big outdoor grill, and served with sandwiches, pickles, coffee and watermelon.

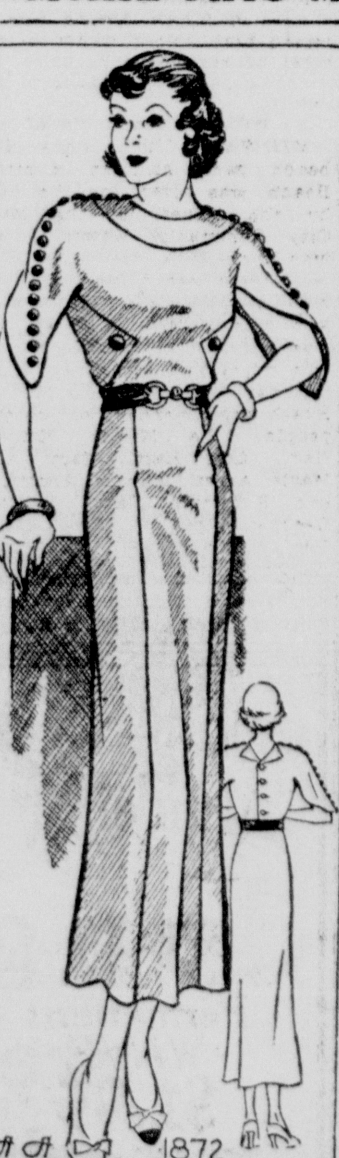

Guests included in addition to the new Mr. and Mrs. Patmore, Mr. and Mrs. Bradley, Messrs. Dick, Edwin and Ralph Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Patmore, the Misses Vera Getty, Adahurst Ellis, Neva McDonald, Messrs. Clarence Patmore and Harry Clayton.

The marriage of Oscar Patmore and Miss Alice Brown was an event of June 15 in the Christian Advent church, Tustin, with the Rev. Howard Nason officiating. Miss Brown was gowned in pale blue crepe with touches of delicate pink in its trimming and in dress accessories Miss Vera Getty was her maid of honor and Dick Bradley served Mr. Patmore as best man.

Among events preceding the wedding was one special courtesy directed to the bridegroom, when Mr. Patmore was honored at a stag party given in the Clark home at Culver's Corner. Cards and a Dutch lunch were features of the lively evening, and when guests discovered that another of their group, Dwight Ahern, had recently wedded Miss Martha Drake, he too came in for his share of attention.

Among the guests in addition to the two of special interest, Mr. Patmore and Mr. Ahern, were Messrs. Dick Bradley, Stanley Newton, Fay Clark, Harvey Clark, Lloyd Trickey, Neal Selby, Clinton Selby, Emmet Secord, Bud Staples, D. C. Hazen, Charles Wetzel, Clarence Patmore, Herbert Myers, Kenneth Kaufman, Oliver Wetzel, Dick White and Max Bush.

TELLS EVILS OF ALCOHOL IN TALK BEFORE W.C.T.U.

ORANGE, June 27.—Pointing out that the use of alcoholic beverages shortens the eye range, lessens the eye span, disorders the blood and weakens the nervous system, thus helping to cause the extensive wave of disastrous automobile accidents throughout the country, Mrs. Pearl Kendall Hess, national director of medical temperance, spoke before the Orange W. C. T. U. meeting held yesterday afternoon at the Presbyterian church parlor.

Talking on the evils of alcohol, Mrs. Hess said that besides being detrimental to the individual user, alcohol also makes dangerous the lives of others, and has been responsible for many thousands of accidents in which men, women and children have been killed.

After drinking, she declared, many drivers lose their sense of color, and many fatal and near-fatal accidents can be traced to this condition. Sometimes a drinking driver cannot distinguish between the green and red lights at an intersection and a crash results, which may cause injury and death to many innocent people, she said.

Mrs. Hess recommended the book, "Syllabus on Alcohol Education," by Bertha Palmer, as a volume worthy of study because of its complete and authentic coverage of the subject which she said should deeply concern every man, woman and child in America during the present wave of licensed liquor traffic.

It was brought out at the meeting that the use of drugs constitutes a dangerous menace to American life and ideals and that cigarette sales, growing by leaps and bounds during recent months, reached the largest peak in history during the month of May, which recorded more sales of cigarettes than any other month in the nation's history.

Mrs. Minnie Neville, president, was in charge of the afternoon's program. Devotionals were led by Mrs. J. E. Parks, evangelistic director, who talked upon the conservation of health, and quoted scripture to show that the body is the "Temple of God" and should be kept holy. Mrs. Mary Atkinson was pianist. At the roll call, members responded by quoting current items of temperance work.

It was decided to dispense with one meeting each in July and August, so that only one meeting will be held each of these two summer months, on the second Tuesday of the month.

Others attending were Mrs. Wal-

OFFICERS FOR Y. M. C. A. CLUB ARE INSTALLED

ORANGE, June 27.—Officers of the Young Men's division of the Y. M. C. A. for the ensuing year were installed at the weekly dinner meeting held Tuesday evening in the Y. M. C. A. The installation ceremony was in charge of J. B. Wilbur.

The new officers include Raymond McCall, president; Donald Todd, vice president; Eugene Eberhart, treasurer; Ralph Shannon, secretary; and Jimmy Duane, corresponding secretary.

Following the dinner, an interesting talk on "The Philosophy of Life" was given by E. M. Nealey, teacher in the Santa Ana Junior college, who stated that the trouble with the present generation is that it is too busy with the immediate things to think or care about the ultimate goal. "In order for the world to come out of its present rut, it must carry on with a spiritual background, instead of a background of mere profit," Dr. Nealey declared.

Musical numbers, "Prelude," and "Mother Machree," were played by Thomas Flippin, accompanied at the piano by Miss Virginia Lee Harper.

Plans were made for the next meeting, at which time all members are urged to bring visitors. Dr. Nealey will continue his lecture on "The Philosophy of Life."

OFFICERS FOR Y. M. C. A. CLUB ARE INSTALLED

ORANGE, June 27.—Officers of the Young Men's division of the Y. M. C. A. for the ensuing year were installed at the weekly dinner meeting held Tuesday evening in the Y. M. C. A. The installation ceremony was in charge of J. B. Wilbur.

The new officers include Raymond McCall, president; Donald Todd, vice president; Eugene Erbenbraut, treasurer; Ralph Shannon, secretary, and Jimmy Duane, corresponding secretary.

Following the dinner, an interesting talk on "The Philosophy of Life" was given by E. M. Nealley, teacher in the Santa Ana Junior college, who stated that the trouble with the present generation is that it is too busy with the immediate things to think or care about the ultimate goal. "In order for the world to come out of its present rut, it must carry on with a spiritual background, instead of a background of mere profit," Dr. Nealley declared.

Musical numbers, "Prelude," and "Mother Machree," were played by Thomas Flippin, accompanied at the piano by Miss Virginia Lee Harper.

Plans were made for the next meeting, at which time all members are urged to bring visitors. Dr. Nealley will continue his lecture on "The Philosophy and Life."

Others attending were Mrs. Walter Hole, Mrs. J. Edward Brown, Mrs. L. L. Chandler, Mrs. R. B. Warne, Mrs. A. H. White, Mrs. Grace Treasler, Mrs. Flora Rhodes, Mrs. Edna Wolfe and Mrs. William Snow, of La Habra. Mrs. Anna Brookhouse, of San Fernando, and Mrs. W. H. Walling, of Buena Park.

THE TINYMITES

The crooked man began to run. "Come on, tois, if you want some run," he shouted to the Tinymites. "I'll bet I'll beat you all. I'll shortly make you pant and puff. 'Aw, you can't run straight enough,' said Scouty. 'You're so crooked that I wonder you don't fall.'"

"Race on, kind friend, with all your speed. A good pace setter's all we need." And so, for quite a little while, the whole bunch raced along.

"I thought you said your hut was near. You're fooling us, I sadly fear," said Duncy, and the man then answered with a little song:

"I am a crooked man," sang he, "As crooked as a man can be. I have a little crooked cat that caught a crooked mouse. "The mouse was quite a friendly sort, and my cat, too, a real good sport. And so we live together in my little crooked house." The song made all the Tinymites roar, and Goldy said, "Please sing some more." "I haven't time," replied the man. "Just look ahead of you."

The Tinymites did, and saw his place. A smile spread on we Coppy's face. "We must admit," he shouted, "that what you have said is true."

The house sure was a funny sight. "Say, are you sure your hut's all right?" asked Windy. "Why, it looks as if 'twould topple to the ground."

"The smoke stack's crooked. So's the door. They'll fall, if they tip any more." "Oh, it's all right," the man replied. "Go in and look around."

"Someone go first," we Duncy cried. "I much prefer to wait outside." "Aw, I'll go in. I'm not afraid," snapped Scouty, with a grin.

Not one bit did he hesitate, and shortly yelled, "The floor is straight. Come on, you will not fall." Then all the Tinymites walked in.

Sea-Going WINGS

FOR the ARMY!

By Andrew R. Boone

UNDER a billowing blanket of fog a half-mile thick, four army aviators flew their amphibian airplane 120 miles west from Rockwell Field, the army air post on the edge of San Diego bay, to Bishop Rock, an invisible shoal over which break the waves of the Pacific. There, having seen the warning bell buoy, they turned northward, climbed up through the thick stuff while following their plotted course 70 miles to a second objective, swung finally toward home and dashed back to the mainland to complete the triangle.

At no point during the long flight were they more than a quarter-mile off course, although the fliers had made the entire trip by dead reckoning navigation.

Here, in the world's only sea-going school for army pilots, air corps fliers, skilled in piloting bombardment, attack and pursuit airplanes, are learning how to fly over the sea. Having mastered the art and science of taking off blind, flying through storm and fog to an unmarked rendezvous at sea, returning and landing in the densest fogs, they have extended the nation's frontier defenses hundreds of miles out over the oceans.

In seaworthy amphibians, the pilots are navigating offshore with an accuracy seldom demanded of men who fly airplanes; so accurately, in fact, that they can send back by radio their exact location no matter how long they may have been flying out of sight of land.

TO the nation this means that twin-engined bombers, with speeds exceeding 200 miles an hour, enable the air corps to dispatch instantly a bombing force to meet an enemy which may still be several hundred miles distant!

They must be able to meet the enemy—and to strike. The new land bombers, while speeding through the air six times faster than the speediest naval ship can plough through the sea, are capable of carrying 2000-pound bombs for a total distance of a thousand miles. They can operate effectively as far as 500 miles out over the ocean. For training, however, amphibians are used since they can land on the sea with safety.

When Capt. H. M. McClelland, commanding officer of the 19th Bombardment Group, was sent from the office of the Chief of Air Corps to Rockwell Field nearly two years ago to inaugurate training for off-shore flying, he started what amounts to a graduate university of the air, with colleges of dead reckoning navigation, radio navigation, celestial navigation, blind take-offs and landings and, finally, unbelievably accurate piloting over long distances.

While the pilot steers the prescribed course there sits in a comfortable passenger's chair in the main cabin a skilled navigator who tells him from time to time, after gazing seaward through a simple indicator containing fore-and-aft and thwart-ship lines, not only how fast they are traveling with respect to the ground, but also how rapidly they are being blown off their course.

Complicated procedure, yet solved in a few seconds. An accurate method, the army pilots have demonstrated many times. So accurate in fact, that they are not permitted to wander more than 1300 feet off course in a flight of 100 miles!

LET'S fly on one of these missions. Lieut. D. D. Fitzgerald, in charge of instrument flying instruction, sits at the controls. Lieut. W. W. Gross, another instructor, occupies the navigator's seat. A plotter and a radio operator complete the personnel. Earphones clamped to their heads, they are ready for the takeoff.

The big ship rolls out onto the field, stops at the near end of the runway. Meantime the navigator has laid out the course, a true compass bearing from north to the objective. Today they fly to Bishop Rock.

Gross presses a button, speaks into the microphone.

"After we're in the air, we will depart from the Point Loma Lighthouse at 1500 feet, course 315 degrees."

Fitzgerald guns the motors. The ship rolls down the runway. Soon they are off. Instead of heading west toward the tip of Point Loma, the pilot circles south and east. He is backing off for a run at the point, hoping to be on course as he sails over the lighthouse.

Immediately the navigator is busy peering down through the drift indicator hoping to get an accurate drift reading at the point of departure. Through the instrument, which resembles an inverted periscope, he sees an object on the ground.

ground speed. Quickly Gross times with a stop watch the passing of a tree between two other wires set at right angles to the line of flight. Knowing his altitude by a quick glance at the altimeter, he refers to a table which reveals the speed in miles.

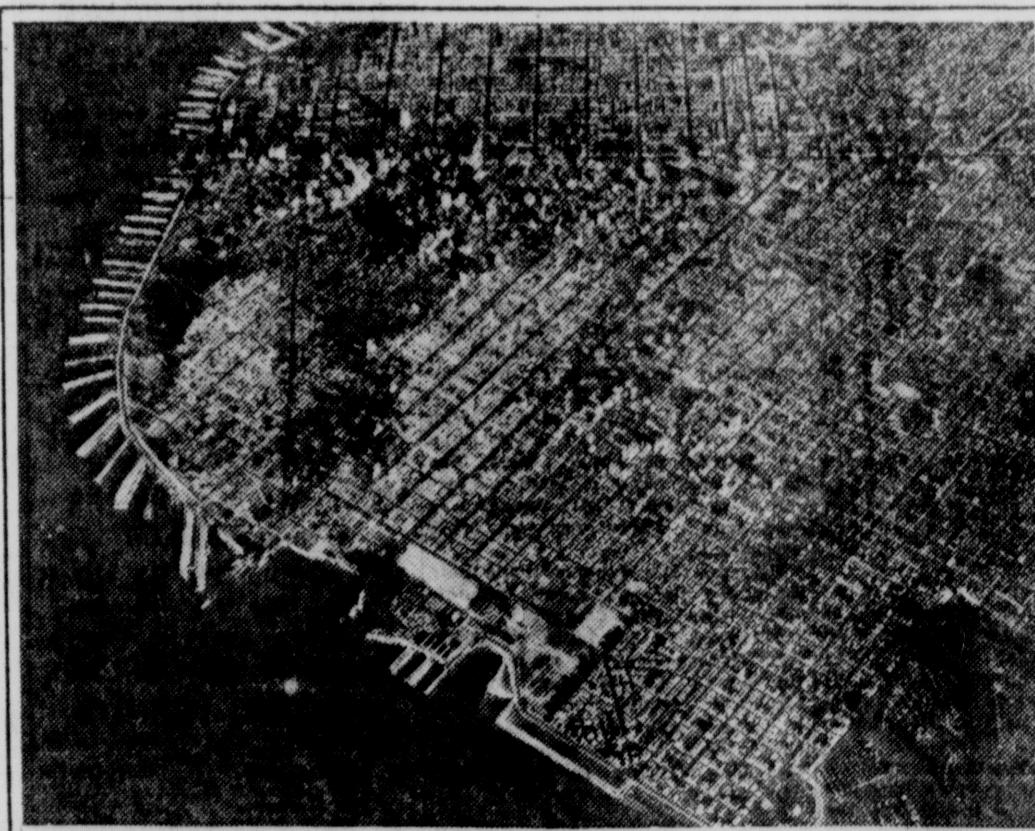

The wind is constant today, blowing from the south five miles an hour. That simplifies the flight. Within a minute, Gross corrects the pilot's course. The two engines roar into the west. The sea-going army ship should reach Bishop Rock in 72 minutes.

It arrives—on time. Under the left

He turns a translucent screen until an object on the ground appears to travel parallel to one of three parallel sight lines. Then he reads the angle between this line and the fore-and-aft axis of the plane, correcting it in terms of ground speed. In this way he can discover what the plane's drift is.

Wait a second! He does not know the wing the waves break, gray and menacing, over the jagged shoals. Meantime fog has been forcing the plane lower and lower. At Bishop Rock the plane is within 300 feet of the surface. Nonchalantly, the crew proceeds about its business. At the rock, Fitzgerald swings the plane 160 degrees right and takes up his new course.

FIVE HUNDRED feet above the top the amphibian roars on. Far ahead is Pyramid head. Three-quarters of an hour after turning, the rocky promontory flashes by, visible through the cabin windows less than a quarter-mile distant.

Again Fitzgerald swings the plane toward the right, and an hour later is comparing notes with fellow members of his crew, safe in the operations office at Rockwell.

If the sun is obscured during a flight, a radio bearing may be taken. The pilot need only signal two coastal radio stations, and quickly experts solve the triangle, two sides of which lead unerringly to the plane. But the pilots acquire self-reliance by learning "dead reckoning" flying.

More than once a crew has flown west over the Pacific only to find the fog extending hundreds of miles in all directions. In that case they turn at the plotted point and speed eastward a hundred miles or more when their flying time and instruments, after interpretation, tell them they have reached the home port, where fog blankets the field.

The landing runway stretches out flat 3000 feet below. The pilot has fulfilled his mission—but how to land?

THE army has worked out its own technique of landing blind on the ground. Simple—when you know how. And safe. Scores of landings have been made at Rockwell in this manner.

The pilot fixes his attention on an artificial horizon, by which he maintains lateral control; and on the gyroscopic turn indicator for direction. He keeps his air speed constant and holds the plane in position so the rate of climb indicator continues to show a vertical descent of 400 feet a minute.

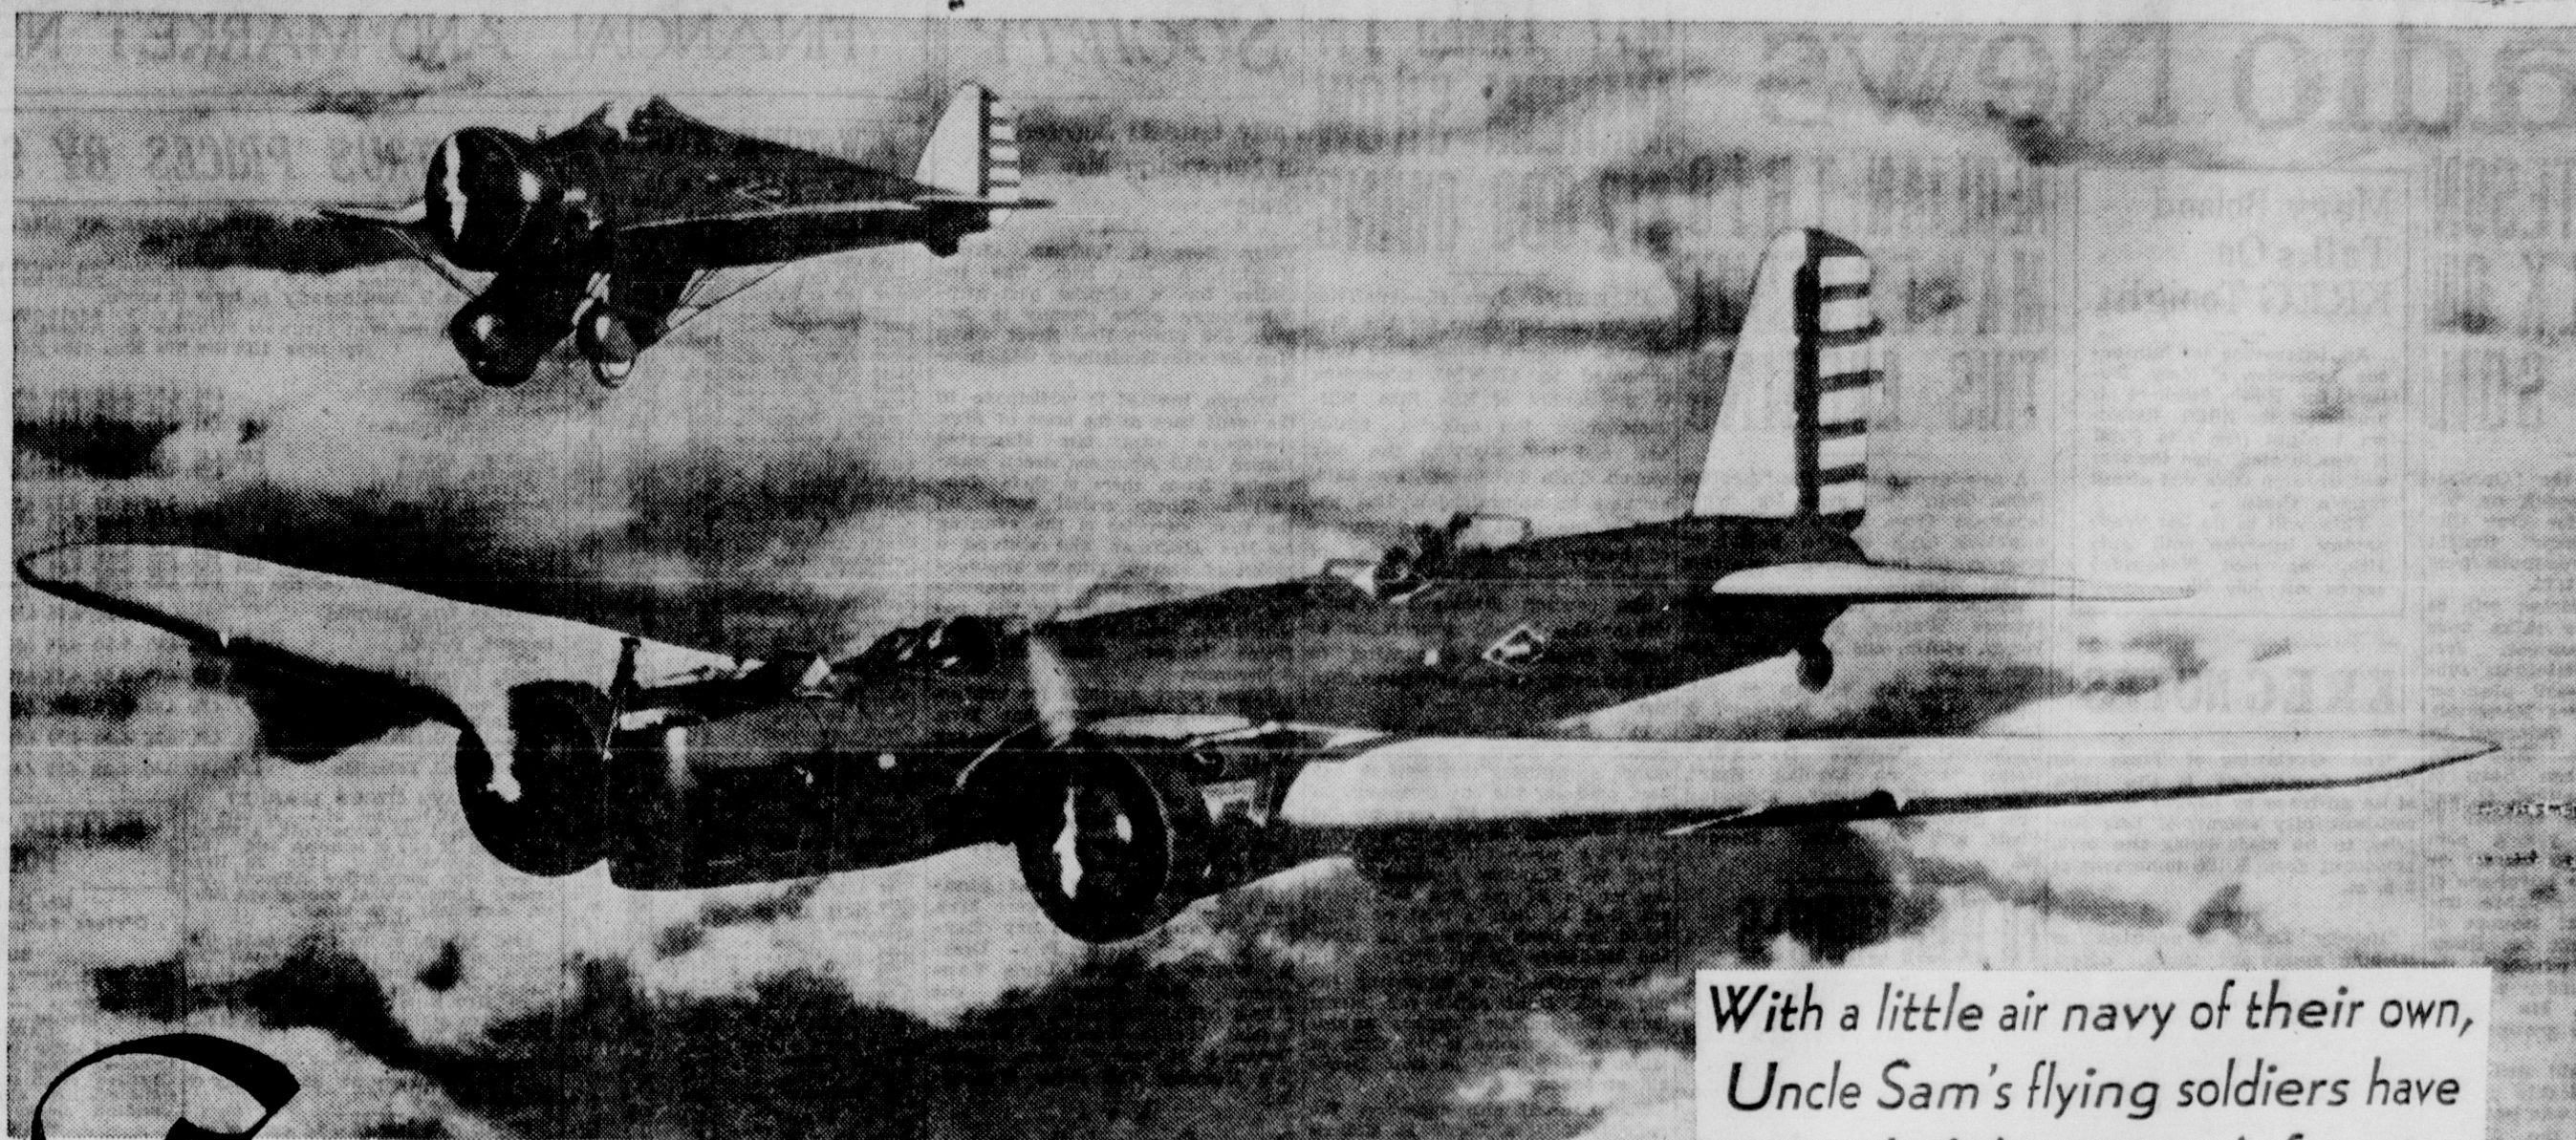

In a few seconds he literally flies on two wheels into the ground. On the first bounce, instead of pulling the tail down as in ordinary flying, he continues to hold the controls in neutral until the plane settles of its own accord. Even here an instrument guides him. Quickly he abandons others and watches the needle on the gyro compass to avoid swinging off into a ground loop, a quick turn which often results in airplanes turning on their sides when they come to earth.

Sometimes when the field is completely obscured the pilots land by radio. Two transmitters, on slightly different frequencies, are situated three miles apart in line with the prevailing wind on the lee side of Rockwell Field. Each has a vertical mast, that it may radiate a narrow, vertical field, giving the effect of a beam.

When he reaches North Island, after a long over-fog flight, the pilot turns west and heads toward the transmitters. He tunes in on one, then the other, until the gyro compass shows the signals come from the same direction. Then he knows he's headed directly for the runway.

UNDER a billowing blanket of fog a half-mile thick, four army aviators flew their amphibian airplane 120 miles west from Rockwell Field, the army air post on the edge of San Diego bay, to Bishop Rock, an invisible shoal over which break the waves of the Pacific. There, having seen the warning bell buoy, they turned northward, climbed up through the thick stuff while following their plotted course 70 miles to a second objective, swung finally toward home and dashed back to the mainland to complete the triangle.

In seaworthy amphibians, the pilots are navigating offshore with an accuracy seldom demanded of men who fly airplanes; so accurately, in fact, that they can send back by radio their exact location no matter how long they may have been flying out of sight of land.

TO the nation this means that twin-engined bombers, with speeds exceeding 200 miles an hour, enable the air corps to dispatch instantly a bombing force to meet an enemy which may still be several hundred miles distant!

FIVE HUNDRED feet above the top the amphibian roars on. Far ahead is Pyramid head. Three-quarters of an hour after turning, the rocky promontory flashes by, visible through the cabin windows less than a quarter-mile distant.

Again Fitzgerald swings the plane toward the right, and an hour later is comparing notes with fellow members of his crew, safe in the operations office at Rockwell.

If the sun is obscured during a flight, a radio bearing may be taken. The pilot need only signal two coastal radio stations, and quickly experts solve the triangle, two sides of which lead unerringly to the plane. But the pilots acquire self-reliance by learning "dead reckoning" flying.

More than once a crew has flown west over the Pacific only to find the fog extending hundreds of miles in all directions. In that case they turn at the plotted point and speed eastward a hundred miles or more when their flying time and instruments, after interpretation, tell them they have reached the home port, where fog blankets the field.

The landing runway stretches out flat 3000 feet below. The pilot has fulfilled his mission—but how to land?

THE army has worked out its own technique of landing blind on the ground. Simple—when you know how. And safe. Scores of landings have been made at Rockwell in this manner.

The pilot fixes his attention on an artificial horizon, by which he maintains lateral control; and on the gyroscopic turn indicator for direction. He keeps his air speed constant and holds the plane in position so the rate of climb indicator continues to show a vertical descent of 400 feet a minute.

In a few seconds he literally flies on two wheels into the ground. On the first bounce, instead of pulling the tail down as in ordinary flying, he continues to hold the controls in neutral until the plane settles of its own accord. Even here an instrument guides him. Quickly he abandons others and watches the needle on the gyro compass to avoid swinging off into a ground loop, a quick turn which often results in airplanes turning on their sides when they come to earth.

Sometimes when the field is completely obscured the pilots land by radio. Two transmitters, on slightly different frequencies, are situated three miles apart in line with the prevailing wind on the lee side of Rockwell Field. Each has a vertical mast, that it may radiate a narrow, vertical field, giving the effect of a beam.

When he reaches North Island, after a long over-fog flight, the pilot turns west and heads toward the transmitters. He tunes in on one, then the other, until the gyro compass shows the signals come from the same direction. Then he knows he's headed directly for the runway.

HARRY BATESON WILL TALK ON BACK TO SOIL

Harry L. Bateson, the "Gardener of the Air," will speak on "An Acre and a Home for Our City and Industrial Workers" tonight during his regular broadcast from KREG, starting at 8:15.

This interesting address will be preliminary to further talks upon the same general subject. Just about a year ago, Bateson submitted a back-to-the-soil plan for the jobs to President Roosevelt, after the plan was endorsed by thousands of signers. The plan was accepted and has been in operation in several cities. It was started mainly in the vicinity of Long Beach. Last year's plan proposed that R. F. C. money be used in financing the purchase of three acres for each capable, unemployed family, that houses of moderate size be built on tracts and that the family purchase the ground and houses under a long-time payment plan. He stated that would make the groups self-supporting.

The plan as he will outline it tonight will be applicable to any Orange county city, it was said.

"The Gardener of the Air" is heard each Monday, Wednesday and Thursday on the local station exclusively.

Bateson will also speak tonight on what and where to plant at this time of the year.

CITY TAXES IN ANAHEIM SHOW $12,000 OWING

ANAHEIM, June 27.—Anaheim city tax delinquencies for the fiscal year 1933-34, ending June first amounted to $12,545.45, according to the report of Miss Etta Williams, city tax collector, which was read last night to the city council. This delinquency, she said, amounts to approximately 12.4 per cent of the total. She also reported having collected a total of $85,218.60 during the year.

The council granted the petition of the federal government to cancel assessments amounting to $75 annually on the new postoffice site.

The city finance committee reported that during the month demands amounting to $16,841.29 had been paid by the city treasury. Of this amount only $475 was on the PWA project. In connection with the PWA project City Electrician Ward W. Hannum reported that the job is 77 per cent completed and that to date a total of $11,983.80 has been expended for labor and $26,340.31 for material.

The contract for supplying the city with light globes for street lights and minor electrical equipment was awarded to the firm of Miller and Steckle on that firm's bid of $2500.

The council also approved the request of Mrs. Carrie B. Schoonover to supply municipal water for her orange grove on Lincoln avenue. Involving of this request and loss dealing will proffer organ accompaniment.

It is probable that another and similar broadcast will be programmed tomorrow night at the same time.

REV. PECK DIES THIS MORNING AT AGE OF 73

ANAHEIM, June 27.—The Rev. Harcourt W. Peck, 73, retired Methodist minister and former superintendent of the Fresno-Los Angeles district of the church, died this morning at his home, 506 East Broadway, after a brief illness. The Reverend Mr. Peck had served in the ministry for 32 years in Hawaii, Arizona and California.

During his active service in the ministry the Rev. Mr. Peck held the pastorate of Santa Ana M. E. church, and spent six years in Fullerton. He had been a resident of Anaheim for more than a year. For 14 years he served as superintendent of the Fresno-Los Angeles district of the church, with headquarters in both cities. He was a native of Canada, but had lived in the United States for 40 years, 30 of which were spent in California.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday from the White Temple Methodist church, with the Rev. Ray C. Harker, pastor of the church, officiating. Harker, a native of Canada, and interment will be in Loma Vista cemetery in Fullerton.

The deceased is survived by his widow, Mrs. Hattie E. T. Peck; one son, Robert G. Peck of Anaheim; a daughter, Mrs. Ray Cooper, San Bernardino; one brother, Nelson R. Peck, Los Angeles; two sisters, Mrs. Ida Campbell and Mrs. Pauline Campbell, both of Canada; two stepsons, Charles Thayer, Anaheim, and Jesse Thayer, Santa Ana, and two stepdaughters, Mrs. Bertha Revell, Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. Robert Peck, Anaheim.

In his talk Mr. Bishop said that the reason for widespread activities of Communists in this state is the fact that there are 181 specialty crops produced in the state, becoming ready for the market on an average of every three weeks during the year.

Mr. Bishop revealed that in 1933 the United League staged 71 strikes, putting more than 63,000 men out of work and causing a loss of thousands of working days. The speaker said that the program of this group is one of tearing down the work of organizations with high American ideals.

THE COUNCIL SPENDS THE PEOPLE'S MONEY

The citizens of Santa Ana, we believe, are pretty thoroughly conversant with the facts concerning the fight for economy which has been made during the past years. There has been a reduction, in the city's expense, of almost 50 per cent, as a result of the members of the city council, supported by The Register, everlastingly keeping at it.

The real fight politically, in nearly all cases, is a money fight. There are certain classes and groups that seem to think they have a special privilege to thrust their hands into the treasuries and take out the taxpayers' money.

There are certain politicians who belong to that school of thought, and they have the strange theory that the higher they can make the taxes, the greater amount of money that can be gotten out of the treasury, the more people they can put on the payroll of the city and county, the better it is for all concerned.

But, strange to say, such groups do not by any means try to take the money out for the needy or for the unemployed. As a rule, they will be fighting against such expenditures as those, but they will always be found fighting for taxpayers' money to be paid to groups that do not need it, and haven't any real claim upon it, and who are already taken care of.

It will be recalled that the other day, in writing on the resignation of Mr. Witmer from our city government, where we called attention to the fact that the city budget for expenditures has been reduced in the three years from $770,000 to $460,000, we used this language:

"There is always a struggle between the private groups of various kinds that want to get their hands into the treasury of the city, and the representatives of the city, who are endeavoring to protect the taxpayers from such raids."

And further on, we said: "Unfortunately, Mr. Hasenjaeger and Mr. Witmer have felt it incumbent upon them to resign, because of recently being selected to important positions, the activities of which they felt would interfere with their work as councilmen. It has been hoped that whoever might be selected in their stead would be men who would take a similar position upon public questions, to that which they have so steadfastly assumed."

"The alignment between the two forces in the city of Santa Ana during the days when the contest was on was very clear and distinct. It is none the less clear, though in recent months there has been less effort put forth to get this money from the treasury, because the minorities knew it was impossible."

We carried these paragraphs because we had been informed that one of the first men who was selected on the city council to take the place of one of the men who resigned, had promised Mr. LeGaye and Mr. Witmer that he would absolutely stand by an economy program and that he had already gone over to the old political crowd, whose control of the city and the county for years boosted public expenditure to outlandish levels.

We saw it coming. We wanted to warn the citizens about it. We didn't think it would get off to as early a start. We didn't suppose that the starting gun was loaded and cocked, and had been kept so for just such a time as this, when a fluke would give this political group a control of the city's purse strings.

The Register, however, is not dismayed. It is thoroughly aware that the people of this city are opposed to looseness in public spending. We believe they are opposed to taking money out of the taxpayers' pockets and putting it in the pockets of any private group, whoever they may be. For government functions and for nothing else should taxpayers' money be spent, and it should be spent only by officials who have been elected by the people and who can be reached by the ballot.

Mr. LeGaye, one of the ablest and most astute and devoted public servants whom we have ever met, who has devoted himself to a city enterprise, saw full well what was coming. So did Mayor Witmer, after the first man had been selected by the council, whose attitude became known.

The only possible hope, Mr. Witmer evidently felt, was in having the city elect its councilmen, because public sentiment could be trusted. He so proposed. Mr. LeGaye so moved. But not a man seconded his motion. Mr. LeGaye objected to money being taken out for luxuries for those who are going to camp, and who are not only receiving fine board, but pay as well. He was the only one who voiced objection.

Twenty-seven hundred dollars was added to the expense by the additional employment of at least one unnecessary man. Mr. LeGaye's voice was the only voice against it.

It was found that the car of the chief of police and other police cars had had a terrible increase in mileage in the three months this year over last year, nearly three times as much, in fact. Mr. LeGaye called attention to it and suggested that the chief of police should have a leave of absence, so that he could conduct his campaign not on the city's expense. Not a voice was raised for him.

The power finally resides in the people. Temporarily men can get possession of a council or any other body, particularly through individuals being false to promises. But our faith finally rests in the principles of democracy.

This situation in the council is one of the reasons why The Register is against political groups dictating in tax-assessing and tax-spending bodies. The difference between leadership and "bosses" is well illustrated in the attitude which has been taken by LeGaye, Witmer and Hasenjaeger in working for the interest of the people and those who have been fighting them.

THE OLD AND THE YOUNG CARRIED THE BURDEN

A letter appears in the open forum today, in which the writer castigates those who favor the Townsend Old Age Pension plan. We presume this writer might favor some old age pension plan, but he attacks a particular plan.

We are rather of the opinion that a man who opposes so harshly any specific plan and doesn't speak for some definite method of meeting the particular distress, is not performing the highest service.

The conditions which have resulted from the character of our depression, through which we are passing, and through which we have almost passed, have hurt two classes of people most severely. One is the old; the other is the young.

There are thousands, if not millions, of men and women, who had provided for themselves a shelter and an income for their last years, who had fulfilled all of the admonitions for thrift and savings through their active life, who were wiped out completely by the failure of institutions in which they had invested their savings and over which they had no control whatever.

These people who, under the supposedly normal conditions, would have had sufficient, and in whose last days would have received the reward that should be received for the type of life they lived, are objects of charity, loaded with penury and want.

Unquestionably society, to which they have given the best years of their lives, and industry, to which they have contributed through building, should see that they receive sufficient income to insure them the necessities and comforts of life.

We believe that the national administration has this definitely in mind, and that the next Congress is bound to act upon it. As to whether the money for this end will be provided by a sales tax or some other method, and as to the amount that can be granted, and all of the infinite details that will go to make up such a measure, there would be a difference of opinion among intelligent men and women.

The Townsend plan has arbitrarily selected a certain amount per month. We cannot help believing that those who selected this amount were quite good psychologists, because a certain amount in the imagination of folks will galvanize them into greater action than an uncertain amount, and what they want is action. Undoubtedly the real brains behind the movement realize this, and the real object is to get support and protection for necessities and comforts for the aged people, and with this leadership and this determination they will find the great mass of the people in thorough accord.

The other class which has been injured, the youth, are injured, we believe, to a greater degree, because in these, their creative days, they have been denied their highest expression.

With the desire to work, and no opportunity afforded, the desire finally weakens and in many reaches the point of destruction. It takes tremendous energy, high-mindedness, and unlimited determination to keep that desire for service in the white heat of readiness to accept, with the constant disappointment of years of denial. This is the greater problem of the two.

The immediate elimination of all men over 60 who would accept the pension would open hundreds of thousands of positions to these younger people who need them. We are for the protection and saving of both these groups.

We believe that upon emerging from the crisis, a portion of it will take care of itself. We are in favor of society solving that which is not solved by the natural developments. And, to that end, we are going to keep patience with those who, in their enthusiasm, have adopted the idea of a pension for old people, which is six times the average income of individuals in normal times—even though we know that this, in the very nature of things, cannot be reached.

Editors in Uniform

Chicago Daily News

Aspirants for editorial posts on German newspapers must undergo a novitiate of one year in uniform, according to the new rules of the German Press Association. That should be no hardship to a people so enamored of uniforms. Indeed, one is tempted to inquire why active Nazi editors should not be permitted to sport Sam Browne belts and stripes. They are no less unquestioning servants of the regime than are members of the storm battalions or the Reichswehr. Theirs not to reason why! Surely such subservience merits the reward of a distinctive uniform!

Dr. Hermann Goering, who has developed the art of the uniform to a degree hitherto unknown, and who possesses a repertoire of several score official costumes, should give the editorial profession the benefit of his creative genius. He would undoubtedly gladden the Nazi editors' hearts with something at once original and expressive of their status in the Hitlerite social order. Just by way of suggestion, there might be imitation manacles on the cuffs to symbolize the status of Journalism in present-day Germany. Shears and pasteboard might be embroidered on the breast in some tasteful design in harmony with a decree from Herr Goebbels inserted between the open pages.

The cap might have printed on the visor some such noble sentiment as, "I regret that I have but one mind to give for my leader." The possibilities are almost limitless, and it is hardly to be doubted that the resourceful Nazi will make the most of them.

CONSOLATION

On learning that evidences of some sort of Wall Street has been discovered in Greece.

I know that great ancients, like Plato,
Archimedes, and all of that crowd,
Who put on a show
In the long, long ago,
With wisdom were amply endowed.
They created a very great nation,
What they started they always put through.
However I learn,
With touch of concern,
That they had their weaknesses, too.

In spite of their lofty ideals,
In spite of their wisdom and poise,
In spite of their brains
They were out after gains,
And they would buck the tiger, those boys.
Archaeologists now have discovered
That they all had their flings in the Street.
And took a long chance
In the game of finance
By gambling in cotton and wheat.

No longer I'll guiltily whisper
To my broker to buy a few shares,
Or feel that it's wrong
To go stringing along
With the chance-taking bulls or the bears.
If the founders of civilization
Went out for unmerited spoil,
I can seek without shame
To get into the game

REALISM OR RETREAT

I am, I confess, a little disturbed by the comments of the professional business columnists on the NRA.

They seem generally to assume that the NRA is drawing in its horns, soft-pedaling its part in the development of economic policy, and clearing the tracks for a larger play of business judgment in its future.

As readers of these articles will know by now, I am completely and without reservation in agreement with the broad objectives the NRA set up for relief and for business.

I agree with the NRA that buying power must be spread more widely.

I agree that government must step into the picture with something to say about wages, hours, prices and profits.

I agree that government must swing the big stick if necessary to stop the kind of competition that is successful because its low production costs rest upon sweat-labor.

But also, as readers of these articles well know by now, I do not agree that the vast complex of NRA rules and regulations in the multitude of codes march steadily forward to this broad objective.

I think the NRA has restricted productive capacity when it should have found ways and means of using it.

I think the NRA has raised prices faster than it has raised wages, save in isolated instances.

I think the NRA, in seeking to wipe out a wrong kind of competition, has helped to hamstring the right kind of competition.

I hope now that the NRA will not retreat and leave the field in the hands of an obsolete kind of business thinking, but will realistically refine itself in the light of the mistakes it has made in its pioneer period.

THE LA TECOMER

There is something about the blithe cheerfulness of the late-comer that works the punctual one into a rage. "Oh, am I late? I hope I haven't kept you." The stupid ice man didn't bring the chipped ice for dessert on time. Then Eliza phoned—such a rush. Isn't it a simply perfect evening? After this she beams brightly upon the sulky group of punctual waiters and says, "Do let's hurry. We're going to miss the first act if we don't."

We miss the first act. We are glared at by the punctual ones already in their places and absorbed in the show. We vow that never, never so long as we live will we invite this latecomer to anything whatsoever, not even a cat show. But one can't isolate oneself so selfishly as person as the one who is behindhand and we have to content ourselves with making sarcastic remarks, openly and privately expressing our rage to the other victims. Can't something be done about it?

I never try to reform grownup people no matter how their idiosyncrasies pierce my tender places. There is little to be gained by it. You can't teach an old dog new tricks. You can try and you can get all worked up about it but you won't be able to make an exhibition job of it. Better save the energy and try to teach the younger generation to keep their engagements punctually.

Habitual lateness is selfishness gone to seed. Any grownup person can tell time, can work to a schedule. Of course that means that once the day's routine has been set nothing short of real emergency is to be allowed to interfere with it. If one has an appointment at two with the dentist or the hairdresser or the dressmaker have to count their minutes and if you bespeak them it is only fair that you be on hand to use them and pay for them. Any well-bred person does just that.

The person who is habitually late for appointments soon finds himself left at home save for the relatives who must invite him. His reputation suffers and he is known as one not to be counted upon!

punctuality. The bells ring by the clock and to be late is a school offense. The child who is late at school is punished because the school strives to instill the principle of morality that dwells in this notion of punctuality. Lateness means selfishness, shiftlessness, inefficiency, lack of self control, lack of good judgment, a host of lacks. We want to rear children to a wholesome respect for their social obligations. They must be on time.

Children depend for this training upon the home people. They depend upon their being on time, on sticking to schedule. If the home is administered by a late-comer the child is going to be late in school and he is going to be penalized according. It isn't smart to be late. It is, as I have tried to point out, everything but if you happen to be one of those who cannot tell time do, for the child's sake, teach him. In teaching him you may acquire the virtue and achieve merit in the eyes of your friends.

(Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.) (Copyright, 1934, The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

THE COUNCIL SPENDS THE PEOPLE'S MONEY

The citizens of Santa Ana, we believe, are pretty thoroughly conversant with the facts concerning the fight for economy which has been made during the past years. There has been a reduction, in the city's expense, of almost 50 per cent, as a result of the members of the city council, supported by The Register, everlastingly keeping at it.

The real fight politically, in nearly all cases, is a money fight. There are certain classes and groups that seem to think they have a special privilege to thrust their hands into the treasuries and take out the taxpayers' money.

There are certain politicians who belong to that school of thought, and they have the strange theory that the higher they can make the taxes, the greater amount of money that can be gotten out of the treasury, the more people they can put on the payroll of the city and county, the better it is for all concerned.

As a rule, they will be fighting against such expenditures as those, but they will always be found fighting for taxpayers' money to be paid to groups that do not need it, and haven't any real claim upon it, and who are already taken care of.

It will be recalled that the other day, in writing on the resignation of Mr. Witmer from our city government, where we called attention to the fact that the city budget for expenditures has been reduced in the three years from $770,000 to $460,000, we used this language:

"There is always a struggle between the private groups of various kinds that want to get their hands into the treasury of the city, and the representatives of the city, who are endeavoring to protect the taxpayers from such raids."

And further on, we said:

"Unfortunately, Mr. Hasenjaeger and Mr. Witmer have felt it incumbent upon them to resign, because of recently being selected to important positions, the activities of which they felt would interfere with their work as councilmen. It has been hoped that whoever might be selected in their stead would be men who would take a similar position upon public questions, to that which they have so steadfastly assumed."

"The alignment between the two forces in the city of Santa Ana during the days when the contest was on was very clear and distinct. It is none the less clear, though in recent months there has been less effort put forth to get this money from the treasury, because the minorities knew it was impossible."

We carried these paragraphs because we had been informed that one of the first men who was selected on the city council to take the place of one of the men who resigned, had promised Mr. LeGaye and Mr. Witmer that he would absolutely stand by an economy program and that he had already gone over to the old political crowd, whose control of the city and the county for years boosted public expenditure to outlandish levels.

We saw it coming. We wanted to warn the citizens about it. We didn't think it would get off to as early a start. We didn't suppose that the starting gun was loaded and cocked, and had been kept so for just such a time as this, when a fluke would give this political group a control of the city's purse strings.

The Register, however, is not dismayed. It is thoroughly aware that the people of this city are opposed to looseness in public spending. We believe they are opposed to taking money out of the taxpayers' pockets and putting it in the pockets of any private group, whoever they may be. For government functions and for nothing else should taxpayers' money be spent, and it should be spent only by officials who have been elected by the people and who can be reached by the ballot.

Twenty-seven hundred dollars was added to the expense by the additional employment of at least one unnecessary man. Mr. LeGaye's voice was the only voice against it.

It was found that the car of the chief of police and other police cars had had a terrible increase in mileage in the three months this year over last year, nearly three times as much, in fact. Mr. LeGaye called attention to it and suggested that the chief of police should have a leave of absence, so that he could conduct his campaign not on the city's expense. Not a voice was raised for him.

The power finally resides in the people. Temporarily men can get possession of a council or any other body, particularly through individuals being false to promises. But our faith finally rests in the principles of democracy.

This situation in the council is one of the reasons why The Register is against political groups dictating in tax-assessing and tax-spending bodies. The difference between leadership and "bosses" is well illustrated in the attitude which has been taken by LeGaye, Witmer and Hasenjaeger in working for the interest of the people and those who have been fighting them.

The other class which has been injured, the youth, are injured, we believe, to a greater degree, because in these, their creative days, they have been denied their highest expression.

With the desire to work, and no opportunity afforded, the desire finally weakens and in many reaches the point of destruction. It takes tremendous energy, high-mindedness, and unlimited determination to keep that desire for service in the white heat of readiness to accept, with the constant disappointment of years of denial. This is the greater problem of the two.

The immediate elimination of all men over 60 who would accept the pension would open hundreds of thousands of positions to these younger people who need them. We are for the protection and saving of both these groups.

We believe that upon emerging from the crisis, a portion of it will take care of itself. We are in favor of society solving that which is not solved by the natural developments. And, to that end, we are going to keep patience with those who, in their enthusiasm, have adopted the idea of a pension for old people, which is six times the average income of individuals in normal times—even though we know that this, in the very nature of things, cannot be reached.

Editors in Uniform

Chicago Daily News

Aspirants for editorial posts on German newspapers must undergo a novitiate of one year in uniform, according to the new rules of the German Press Association. They should be no hardship to a people so enamored of uniforms. Indeed, one is tempted to inquire why active Nazi editors should not be permitted to sport Sam Browne belts and stripes. They are no less unquestioning servants of the regime than are members of the storm battalions or the Reichswehr. Theirs not to reason why! Surely such subservience merits the reward of a distinctive uniform!

Dr. Hermann Goering, who has developed the art of the uniform to a degree hitherto unknown, and who possesses a repertoire of several score official costumes, should give the editorial profession the benefit of his creative genius. He would undoubtedly gladden the Nazi editors' hearts with something at once original and expressive of their status in the Hitlerite social order. Just by way of suggestion, there might be imitation manacles on the cuffs to symbolize the status of journalism in present-day Germany. Shears and pastepot might be embroidered on the breast in some tasteful design—say with a decree from Herr Goebbels inserted between the open blades.

The cap might have printed on the visor some such noble sentiment as, "I regret that I have but one mind to give for my leader." The possibilities are almost limitless, and it is hardly to be doubted that the resourceful Nazi will make the most of them.

CONSOLATION

On learning that evidences of some sort of Wall Street has been discovered in Greece.

I know that great ancients, like Plato,
Archimedes, and all of that crowd,
Who put on a show
In the long, long ago,
With wisdom were amply endowed.
They created a very great nation.
What they started they always put through.
However I learn,
With touch of concern,
That they had their weaknesses, too.

In spite of their lofty ideals,
In spite of their wisdom and poise,
In spite of their brains
They were out after gains.
And they would buck the tiger, those boys.
Archeologists now have discovered
That they all had their flings in the Street.
And took a long chance
In the game of finance
By gambling in cotton and wheat.

No longer I'll guiltily whisper
To my broker to buy a few shares,
Or feel that it's wrong
To go stringing along
With the chance-taking bulls or the bears.
If the founders of civilization
Went out for unmerited spoil,
I can seek without shame
To get into the game
And try to grow rich without toil.

New York wants a new skyscraper with a prison at the top. It's the only way to make prisoners of the higher-ups. Yet a land of free men is the only one where a man continues to work for a woman whose only service is to make his life miserable.

Blessed are the meek. The swell-headed always suffer when life denies them the perfect bliss to which they feel entitled. When history tries to tell how awful these times were, it will tell how Byrd traveled clear to the South Pole and crawled in a hole.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

REALISM OR RETREAT

I am, I confess, a little disturbed by the comments of the professional business columnists on the NRA.

They seem generally to assume that the NRA is drawing in its horns, soft-pedaling its part in the development of economic policy, and clearing the tracks for a larger play of business judgment in its future.

As readers of these articles will know by now, I am completely and without reservation in agreement with the broad objectives the NRA set up for relief and for business.

I agree with the NRA that buying power must be spread more widely.

I agree that government must step into the picture with something to say about wages, hours, prices and profits.

I agree that government must swing the big stick if necessary to stop the kind of competition that is successful because its low production costs rest upon sweat-labor.

But also, as readers of these articles will know by now, I do not agree that the vast complex of NRA rules and regulations in the multitude of codes march steadily forward to this broad objective.

I think the NRA has restricted productive capacity when it should have found ways and means of using it.

I think the NRA has raised prices faster than it has raised wages, save in isolated instances.

I think the NRA, in seeking to wipe out a wrong kind of competition, has helped to hamstring the right kind of competition.

I hope now that the NRA will not retreat and leave the field in the hands of an obsolete kind of business thinking, but will realistically refine itself in the light of the mistakes it has made in its pioneer period.

THE LA TECOMER

There is something about the blithe cheerfulness of the late-comer that works the punctual one into a rage. "Oh, am I late? I hope I haven't kept you." The stupid ice man didn't bring the chipped ice for dessert on time. Then Eliza phoned—such a rush. Isn't it a simply perfect evening? After this she beams brightly upon the sulky group of punctual waiters and says, "Do let's hurry. We're going to miss the first act if we don't."

We miss the first act. We are glared at by the punctual ones already in their places and absorbed in the show. We vow that never, never so long as we live will we invite this late-comer to anything whatsoever, not even a cat show. But one can't isolate even so selfish a person as the one who is behindhand and we have to content ourselves with making sarcastic remarks, openly and privately expressing our rage to the other victims. Can't something be done about it?

I never try to reform grownup people no matter how their idiosyncrasies pierce my tender places. There is little to be gained by it. You can't teach an old dog new tricks. You can try and you can get all worked up about it but you won't be able to make an exhibition job of it. Better save the energy and try to teach the younger generation to keep their engagements punctually.

Habitual lateness is selfishness gone to seed. Any grownup person can tell time, can work to a schedule. Of course that means that once the day's routine has been set nothing short of real emergency is to be allowed to interfere with it. If one has an appointment at two with the dentist one doesn't begin doing over the pantry shelves at half past one. Those shelves and the appointment was scheduled and the appointment was. The dentist or the hairdresser or the dressmaker have to count their minutes and if you bespeak them it is only fair that you be on hand to use them and pay for them. Any well-bred person does just that.

The person who is habitually late for appointments soon finds himself left at home save for the relatives who must invite him. His reputation suffers and he is known as one not to be counted upon!

The schools are strict about

punctuality. The bells ring by the clock and to be late is a school offense. The child who is late at school is punished because the school strives to instill the principle of morality that dwells in this notion of punctuality. Lateness means selfishness, shiftlessness, inefficiency, lack of self-control, lack of good judgment, a host of lacks. We want to rear children to a wholesome respect for their social obligations. They must be on time.

Children depend for this training upon the home people. They depend upon their being on time, on sticking to schedule. If the home is administered by a late-comer the child is going to be late in school and he is going to be penalized according. It isn't smart to be late. It is, as I have tried to point out, everything but. If you happen to be one of those who cannot tell time do, for the child's sake, teach him. In teaching him you may acquire the virtue and achieve merit in the eyes of your friends.
